

Three Die in Collision

A 15-year-old Floyd Kellam High School student was the lone survivor among four occupants of an auto which collided with a school bus at approximately 8:40 a. m. Tuesday morning. Two of his school mates and a soldier died in the accident.

David N. Howe, son of the Robert Howe's of Ansel Lane, received severe head injuries in the accident on Holland Road about one mile from the school. Two of those fatally injured were Wanda Gae Bess, 16, daughter of the G. E. Bess, Jr.'s of Peachwood Lane; and Deborah Lee Wood, 16, daughter of the Elton E. Wood's of Pinewood Drive. The soldier was identified by military officials as Pfc. Michael Fred Liphtratt, 19, son of the Cyril M. Liphtratt Jr.'s of Ft. Stewart, Ga., attached to Ft. Story.

The driver of the school bus, Mrs. Doris Cook, 34, of Stratford Hall Drive received only minor injuries. She was held at the General Hospital of Virginia Beach for observation. Her son, five-year-old Scott who was riding with her in the bus at the time, received treatment for minor injuries and was released. Mrs. Cook and her son were the only occupants of the bus at the time.

Police officer F. R. Scarborough, who investigated the accident, said the auto apparently went off the right side of the road then careened back across the roadway striking the school bus head on. Scarborough said Mrs. Nell Rollins of the 300 block of Crisfield Road was directly behind the auto, driving a school bus when the accident occurred. Scarborough quoted Mrs. Rollins as saying the auto appeared to be travelling at a normal rate of speed when the car went off the road. Scarborough added, "This apparently is when it all started, but we don't know if she accelerated speed when she attempted to get back on the road."

Scarborough was referring to Miss Bess, whom police said was driving the vehicle at the time. Miss Bess, Miss Wood and Pfc. Liphtratt were riding in the front seat of the car. Young Howe was the only rear seat passenger. Investigation indicated Howe apparently "hitch hiked" a ride to school. Another car-school bus collision in October 1967, about a half mile closer to Kellam High on Holland Road, killed another student, a student, struck a loaded school bus head on. There were no serious injuries to bus passengers.

Although Holland Road was widened last summer, it is still a twisting road with ditches on both sides.

Residents Disapprove Tuition Aid

The SUN SURVEY question of last week appeared to touch a nerve. The answers came pouring in. And there is a definite negative feeling about the continuation of tuition grants in Virginia.

A total of 77.8 per cent said "No" to the SUN SURVEY question, "Should state-tuition grants continue to be given to help defray the cost of education of children in accredited private schools?" Only 22.2 per cent said "Yes".

The tuition grants have been left in the proposed modernized Virginia Constitution which comes before a special session of the Virginia General Assembly at the end of this month, but there appears to be strong sentiment against them and the matter is still also being fought in the courts.

While the public opinion survey does not profess to represent the thinking of all the residents of Virginia Beach, it does represent a cross section of those who took time to clip the survey and return it to us.

Your attention is called to this week's SUN SURVEY question also, which appears below in the box at the lower left corner of the page.

Each week a new question will appear, and the results will be published the following week. The questions will be timely, and the more answers we receive the more responsible the opinion.

SUN SURVEY

QUESTION: Should the state of Virginia be allowed to proceed with plans to develop the valuable ocean-front area of False Cape south of Sandbridge as a state park instead of allowing it to be developed by private landowners for residential and commercial use?

Council Discusses Constable

In closed session following the informal session Monday City Council discussed bringing the office of the High Constable under direct City Manager Control.

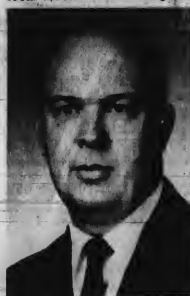

The matter was brought up by Councilman Curtis Payne. Payne said the High Constable's office is now the only office in the city government that lacks day-to-day supervision.

The office is an appointive one, and is held by R. R. (Buddy) McChesney. His duties include the serving of all civil papers for lower courts and the handling of bailiffs for those courts. The job was created at merger in 1963. McChesney had twice been elected City Sergeant of the old City of Virginia Beach and John Marr, who became City Sergeant of the new city had been Sheriff of Princess Anne County. The duties were split with the new office.

McChesney told the VIRGINIA BEACH SUN he had no objection to working under the supervision of the City Manager if that is the way Council wants it and that he was surprised that Payne was apparently making such a big issue of it. Payne was himself a Council appointee who took his seat on Council at the death of vice-Mayor Paul Brown.

Councilman John McCombs suggested that action be deferred until the duties and supervision of similar offices in other cities could be determined. Council agreed.

Council also received a letter from Ben R. Wroton whom it is supposed is still chairman of the City Planning Commission. Wroton was dropped from the commission altogether

McChesney

In December when Council moved to streamline and make smaller the commission, but because of threatened court action the new commission ordinance was rescinded on the basis of cost and time involved while zoning matters would have to wait.

That placed Wroton back on the commission, but whether he is still chairman is not known. His letter to Council asked for a meeting with Council to discuss commission-Council relations. Council asked City Manager Roger Scott to meet with the commission just prior to its regular meeting next Tuesday in an attempt to straighten out any problems first. A long docket is expected to be heard.

A number of Councilmen have privately noted they were displeased with Christmas cards they received from Wroton following his earlier removal. The cards of Wroton's company bore only one word... "Thanks."

What will happen at next week's regular meeting of the commission is only open to speculation.

In other action Monday, Council asked Scott to talk with the Bay Colony Civic League to determine feelings about Trailways buses entering that area in the morning and afternoon to bring domestic help from the Seatack area. The request for the service in the Bay Colony area and also in the Birdneck area was made by the Technical Action Panel, and Trailways has agreed to two runs in the morning and two in the afternoon on a trial basis if it is agreeable. Scott has the authority to make the trail but wants first to determine sentiment.

Council also received a re-

Recreation Scrutinized

The accent was on recreation at the informal City Council meeting Monday. Bids on the city's golf course adjoining Redwing Park and the proposed state park south of Sandbridge at False Cape both came under close scrutiny.

The golf course is to be built on land leased to the city for 99 years through the last session of the Virginia General Assembly from Camp Pendleton. It is adjacent to the city's major park and lies partly on Lake Redwing.

Plans to this time have called for a championship golf course that would rival any in the United States to be built on the site. A total of $428,000 was earmarked for the course two years ago in a bond issue. This amount was to pay for the construction of the course, all out buildings and a clubhouse. The construction amount was set by a consultant at that time at $300,000.

Costs however have mounted considerably since that time. The lowest bid received by the city last week was for $527,000, for the construction of the course only. That bid came from the John Malbon Construction Co. of Virginia Beach, working in conjunction with Colonial Gardens of Marietta, Ohio.

The other two bids came from Higerson-Buchanan, Inc. of Chesapeake for $528,423, and from E. V. Williams, Inc. of Virginia Beach for $695,995.

Bids were originally scheduled to be opened on Jan. 6, but because of the holidays, considerable illness and the relatively short time given contractors to bid, the bid opening was delayed until Jan. 30. One of the original bidders dropped out of the bidding in the interim.

The Malbon bid, however, was negotiated down over the weekend to approximately $440,000, on the condition the city would take over the three-month maintenance when the course is completed in the summer of 1970 and other minor changes. After the three-month period the course should be ready to play in the early fall of 1970.

Scott said that his office is now working on the appropriation of non-referendum bonds for next year, and that possibly the additional $150,000 needed to finish the entire project, as well as build a new circuit court, could be included in the $2 million of bonds.

Members of City Council agreed that the city cannot stop at this point and that the city is committed to the project that they expect to pay for itself in a relatively few years. They also noted they did not wish to compromise on the quality.

The original consultants also agreed that the negotiated bid was fair and recommended approval. Formal approval is expected next Monday at the regular meeting, but Councilmen have already decided to approve.

The course will be officially

Board Set To Review Property

A board of survey has been set up to review the property occupied by the 24th Street Coast Guard Station, which was decommissioned Jan. 15.

Commander of the 5th Coast Guard District, Rear Adm. E. C. Allen Jr., signed the order establishing the board. He said the board would meet this week.

The property will probably be declared in excess by the board and a recommendation to that effect forwarded to the Coast Guard headquarters in Washington D. C. The survey will then be released to General Services Administration who will dispose of the property.

Virginia Beach officials have expressed an interest in the property. The city would like to develop the facility for recreational purposes.

Part of the property may go to heirs of the Edward Drinkwater family on the basis of a reversion clause in the original deed.

known as the W. Russell Hatcher Virginia Beach Municipal Golf Course, in honor of the former city manager, but Scott

The beach at Seashore is open only to campers, and Council opposes that same limitation also in the proposed False Cape

Park if it is built. The general feeling of Council was that the park would probably be built anyway, but members wanted to be on record opposing it in its present form.

Next week's regular meeting of City Council is expected to be far shorter than usual because of no zoning docket. The City Planning Commission did not meet in January because of problems concerning Councilmatic action disestablishing then being forced to re-establish the commission.

This is the desolate False Cape area of Virginia Beach where the park will be developed. A number of cottages and hunting lodges can be seen on the mile-wide strip of land between the Atlantic Ocean and Back Bay.

Battle Names Committee

William C. Battle, Democratic candidate for governor, has announced the formation of a 112-member campaign committee in Virginia Beach headed by four co-chairmen.

Battle's Virginia Beach co-chairmen are state Sen. Edward T. Caton III, City Councilman J. Curtis Payne, Owen B. Picke, chairman of the city Democratic Committee, and business executive J. Frank Malbon.

The campaign committee also includes Del. B. R. Middleton and Kenneth N. Whitehurst Jr., three other city councilmen, Vice Mayor Robert Cromwell, Earl Teaball and D. Murray Malbon. Three constitutional officers, Commonwealth's Attorney Andre Evans, City Sgt. John Marr and Treas. V. A. Etheridge are also included.

"I am very pleased to have the active support of this large group of leading citizens in Virginia Beach. It includes leaders of various segments of the Democratic Party there who have not always united during primary campaigns," Battle said. "It is another encouraging sign that my candidacy can be

Non-Candidacy Comes As Tickets Shape Up

Following a surprise announcement, the field of announced candidates for the House of Delegates from Virginia Beach subject to the July Democratic primary remains at two.

Attorney A. Joseph Canada, who was reported to be on the verge of announcing his candidacy for one of the city's two seats in the lower house of the legislature said Monday he will not run.

Canada, a former assistant Commonwealth's Attorney in Virginia Beach, was reportedly ready to announce that he would be a candidate about a week ago, but the day before, Rhae Adams announced he would seek the seat being vacated by attorney Kenneth Whitehurst, Jr. Within hours after that announcement, B. R. Middleton said he would seek re-election and that he would do so on a ticket with Adams.

While Canada did not say so, his support feelers in the wake of this double announcement were apparently not strong enough. On the day Adams and Middleton made known their intentions Canada said he would decide within a week. One week later exactly he said he would not run.

In his non-announcement

Canada said he would be active in the William Battle campaign for Governor; however his name does not appear in the 112-man campaign staff for Virginia Beach issued by Battle over the weekend. (See separate story)

Thus Adams and Middleton remain the only two announced candidates so far. With Canada definitely out of the race the only other non-candidate whose name is being bandied about with great regularity is that of attorney Richard Guy. Guy says he still has no comment on the subject.

Political observers say however that they expect other candidates to announce before the April filing deadline.

Adams, who once managed a Republican candidate for Congress in his unsuccessful campaign in the First District, said that in last November's General Election he supported the nominees of the Democratic Party.

Adams also said that he considers his candidacy a chance for the voters of Virginia Beach to continue in a youthful movement.

Now the waiting game is on just who will announce next and when remains the big question.

School Sites Donated to City

About 25 acres of a 40-acre parcel which was donated to the Virginia Beach School Board last week may be used to build the proposed vocational-technical education center which has been planned for several years.

The original site for the vocational school was to be on part of Green Run Farm, but early test drillings showed that a tremendous number of pilings plus extensive fill would be necessary to stabilize the area. School Supt. E. E. Brickell said.

The 40-acre site was donated by Beach Interstate Associates. It is part of the 500-acre Upton Farm owned by the Associates and is located on North Landing Road about a half mile from Princess Anne. The other 15 acres will be used for an elementary school in the future, Brickell said.

Dr. Bernard Batleman, president of the Associates, said, "The group hopes this will set a precedent for other developers who are interested in the problems and orderly growth of our city.

The vo-tech center which will cost an estimated $2.6 million plus another $800,000 for equipment, has been waiting for federal funds for construction for over a year. Plans for the school have been completed and approved.

Dr. Edward Myers, a member of the Associates, said the rest of the land might subdivide some day. "We're investors, not builders."

CofC Seeks Nominations

The Virginia Beach Chamber of Commerce, through its Agricultural Committee, will recognize the city's "Man of the Year in Agriculture," on March 25.

Local organizations are being asked to nominate the person who has contributed greatly to the success of the Virginia Beach Industry of Agriculture.

To be eligible for this award a person must live and have his business in Virginia Beach and his business or profession must be within the scope of the industry. The scope includes professional agriculturists, those who provide farmers and home owners with agricultural supplies and services, the farmers and those who take the farm product from the farm gate and get it to the consumer.

C & P to Add More Equipment

The Chesapeake and Potomac Telephone Company of Virginia has announced plans to install additional dial equipment in the Virginia Beach-Chinese Corner communications center.

C & P will spend some $315,000 on this project. When the work is completed late next fall, the dial equipment that has been installed will provide 2,400 lines for the expected growth in telephone subscribers in the area served by this center.

Search Continues

Efforts are continuing to locate two Virginia Beach men missing since last Friday when a Navy F4J Phantom jet crashed into waters of Albemarle Sound.

The men have been identified as Cmdr. John E. Florance, of Ashley Drive, pilot of the craft; and Lt. (jg.) Michael Joselin, of Ocean Front, radar intercept officer.

Indications are the plane crashed into about 15 feet of water during a routine training flight shortly after take off from Oceana Naval Air Station.

the vehicle to reunite similar divisions within our party across the state to work for a better Virginia.

The campaign committee represents members of two usually competing elements of the Democratic Party in Virginia Beach.

In addition to the campaign co-chairmen and the elected and party officials, the campaign committee of 100 citizens includes the chairman and former chairman of the city planning commission, a member of the planning commission, a former city councilman, three retired admirals, a retired air force general, six doctors, a former assistant commonwealth's attorney, seven other lawyers, four women, five retired persons, four farmers, three teachers, and 62 other business and professional men.

'Oliver' Plans Local Premiere

This is the famous scene in which young Oliver asks for more food. Mark Lester plays the title role in the forthcoming movie version opening Wednesday at the Princess.

Chekov Plays Scheduled

Lake Wright Playhouse will have a change of pace from the comedies performed so far when the theatre performs two Chekov one-act plays on Feb. 9 and 10.

The plays are "Swan Song," which deals with the loneliness of an old man who is wifeless and childless, and the other is "The Brute," concerning a bear of a man who comes to collect money from a widow who turns him into butter.

Producing-Director Timothy L. Jones will portray the brute, while Barbara Hicks, wife of

The movie musical "Oliver," based on Dicken's "Oliver Twist," will have its Tidewater premiere in Virginia Beach at the Princess Theatre near Princess Anne Plaza on Virginia Beach Blvd.

Opening day is Wednesday, Feb. 12. Several benefit performances are also set during the opening week, but the highly-heralded movie is expected to remain in Virginia Beach for some time to come.

The legitimate theatre version of "Oliver" is now nearly nine years old. It delighted audiences first in London, then in New York for nearly four years, before touring the United States and a number of foreign countries.

John Woolf then obtained the rights for a movie of the musical to be made in England. The result is a pleasant one and gives the play added dimension and depth.

While most in the cast are relatively unknown to American audiences, it is a cinch that they will be known after this movie, and long to be remembered will be the portrayal of young Oliver by Mark Lester.

There's song and dance, memorable warmth and humor and the flavor of Dickens, all transformed into one package for every member of the family. Rarely does a movie come along that can offer so much, "Oliver" does.

stage manager Will Hicks, will play the willow widow.

Company professionals, Bill Camp and Walter Williamson, comprise the case of "Swan Song," directed by Mrs. Hicks. Camp is directing "The Brute."

On Sunday the plays will begin at 2 p.m. and on Monday at 8 p.m. This will be theatre only, with no dinner served. Admission will be $1.50 for adults and $.75 for students. Free and open discussion will be encouraged after the performances.

quest for duplicate copies of cards of its voter rolls for a business venture by Roland Winter. Council and Scott said they felt granting such a request was up to the Electoral Board and that if any cost was involved Winter or anyone else should pay for it. Winter plans to publish the voter rolls of the city for sale.

Council also asked Scott to get a progress report from the Electoral Board Chairman John James on the purging of voter rolls and redistricting of precincts underway for sometime. Long lines on election day and some poor locations of polls prompted the study and some precincts had also reached totals above the legal limit.

Councilman Larry Marshall said if the entire plan is not completed three months before the July Democratic Primary it shouldn't be done until afterward to avoid any confusion.

Beasley Gets New Position

An insurance firm with Home Office in Columbus Ga., has announced the appointment of a local man as Regional Manager to serve an area including Virginia Beach.

Dale Beasley, District Manager for the past year with American Family Life Assurance Company, will begin his new duties effective Feb. 1.

Terri Moore and Ian Goodwin rehearse a scene from the Shaw comedy, "Arms and the Man," opening this Friday night, Feb. 7, at the Courtyard Playhouse. The Virginia Beach Little Theatre production will play Feb. 7, 8, 14, 21 and 22. For reservations call 428-8500 daily except Sundays. Curtain time is 8:30 p.m.

Wedgewood Makes Change

Wedgewood Dinner Theatre in Toano is now Wedgewood Theatre. The fact that the word "dinner" has been dropped from the name does not mean that dinner is no longer available but that the emphasis is now on theatre.

Dinner is still a part of the evening's entertainment if the customer wishes. The buffet in the Blue and White Pantry is no longer a necessary part of the package. Special rates will be available for students and military wishing to attend only theatre also.

The name change and the policy change are only a part of the overall transformation. Wedgewood is now merely the holding company for the Performing Arts Center in Virginia, a non-profit organization.

The center will produce the plays but will have as its primary aim education. The summer apprentice program, the experimental theatre and hopefully a professional school of theatre which will operate all year are all parts of the goals of the center.

This will be the first theatre of its type in Virginia. At present Wedgewood is the only full-time, year-round, paid, fully-staffed professional theatre with these goals.

The new operation begins with the current production of "Summer Tree," a modern play about protest and Vietnam.

Marionettes To Perform Saturday

Two performances of "Alice in Wonderland" will be performed by the Niccolo Marionettes of New York Saturday, Feb. 8 at First Colonial High School.

The performances are sponsored by the Virginia Beach Chapter of the American Association of University Women for its fellowship program which provides aid for work on doctorate degrees and beyond for foreign students.

All characters in the show will be played by marionettes except the role of Alice, who will be a live actress. Performances are scheduled at 10 a.m. and 2 p.m., and all tickets are $1. Tickets are on sale at schools and at the door.

Play Sets Tryouts

The Virginia Beach Little Theatre will hold try-outs for the Arthur Miller drama "All My Sons" on Feb. 10 at 8 p.m. at the Courtyard Playhouse on 17th Street.

This post-WWII drama concerning wartime profiteering will be directed by Sam Hakim. It will play March 28 & 29, April 4 & 5, and April 11 & 12.

Five men between 25 and 60 and four women between 18 and 50 are needed in the cast.

Collision

Princess Anne Courthouse and Princess Anne Plaza Volunteer Rescue Squads were sent to the accident scene, in addition to numerous police units. Investigators said Miss Wood and Miss Bess were apparently killed instantly in the crash. Pfc. Liphtratt died a short time later at the hospital. Howe was rushed to Norfolk General Hospital where he remained in surgery until about 4:45 p.m. that afternoon.

Authorities had difficulty in identifying Liphtratt and Howe. Identification of Liphtratt, who reportedly did not have any papers or bilfold on his person, was made after the accident through Army enlistment papers which were discovered in the wreckage of the car. Howe's identification was not made final until after he had been released from surgery. He carried no papers or other means of identification. Only after his release from surgery were his parents able to establish his identification at the hospital. Howe remained on the critical list more than 48 hours after the accident.

Alphin Is Chairman - for Now

J. Roy Alphin of Virginia Beach was elected chairman of the Southeastern Virginia Regional Planning Commission at the Jan. 30 meeting.

Alphin succeeds Suffolk Mayor James F. Hope in the office. Other officers elected were: David Clark IV, Norfolk, vice chairman; E. F. Reese Jr., Chesapeake, secretary; Charles D. Lane Jr., Portsmouth, treasurer. Those named to the executive committee are James F. Hope, George M. Cornell of Nansemond County and Alexander P. Grice III of Norfolk.

Terms for the new officers may be short-lived since the Division of State Planning and Urban Affairs have proposed a new division of 22 planning districts in Virginia. Under this system, which may go into effect as early as July 1, SVRPC would no longer exist.

Instead, the SVRPC members, Virginia Beach, Norfolk, Portsmouth, Chesapeake, Suffolk and Nansemond County, would form Planning District 20 together with Franklin, Southampton County and Isle of Wight County.

State law decrees that a majority of SVRPC's board of commissioners would have to be elected officials, necessitating a new election.

The 1968 Virginia General Assembly passed a law which stated the principles of the new system.

T. Edward Temple, state planning director spoke to the SVRPC, saying that even though some parts of the state are unhappy with the boundaries of their planning districts, he expects this area to be one of the first to make an orderly transition.

A new highway plan, projected to 1985, was presented to the SVRPC at the meeting. The new plan was revealed by Wilbur Smith & Associates, consulting firm, as an update of the 1980 plan which was made public in 1965.

The new plan is designed to fill deficiencies in the 1980 plan, such as in certain road improvements and in the estimate of money needed. The 1980 plan called for a network of roads totaling 810 miles costing $366 million; the 1985 plan reports a need of a network of roads totaling 848.9 miles costing $569 million. The estimate jump is mainly caused by the jump in road-building costs since the 1980 report was compiled.

Included in the updated plan is the development of Southern Blvd. and Plaza Trail Extended in Virginia Beach.

Two interesting items in the new plan are the estimated drop in area population as compared to the 1980 plan and the expected reduction of traffic volume on the Chesapeake Bay Bridge-Tunnel.

The 1980 plan estimated an area population of 1.18 million, whereas the 1985 plan estimates the population at 1.1 million. The updated plan does estimate the over-all labor force at the same level. There is an increase expected in blue and white collar jobs and a decrease in military jobs.

The estimate of the Bridge-Tunnel traffic in the 1980 plan was made prior to the opening of the Bridge-Tunnel; it was 30% higher than the estimate in the 1985 plan, which employs the current usage figure as its basis.

Beach C. of C. Backs Existing Road Plan

The Virginia Beach Chamber of Commerce has passed a resolution urging the activation of the existing plan that calls for doubling of the Hampton Roads Bridge-Tunnel as the primary connection between Southeastern Hampton Roads and the Peninsula.

The resolution was made after the Highway Committee of the Chamber of Commerce had reviewed recent proposals reported through the news media for possible alterations of the previously approved Interstate Highway System for this area. In their study the Highway Committee found the existing plan well projected and satisfactory. The Committee stated that because of the expense of the project, the approval given the plan in the beginning, the near completion of the project, and the need for immediate relief for the volume of traffic now using the Hampton route, the planned crossing should be completed.

Also included in the Chamber of Commerce resolution are their views concerning the construction of a freeway and four-lane bridge-tunnel crossing the James and closing the western arm of the loop. This plan was found desirable, but the Chamber of Commerce feels that this construction would serve a different primary purpose and should not negate the firm commitment to a freeway connection to the Peninsula through the doubling of the Hampton Roads Bridge-Tunnel and the completion of Interstate 64 as planned. The western loop crossing should be considered as an addition to the over-all system.

Sociology Class Is New

First Colonial High School By Clemence Descheemaeker

This semester 20 junior and senior students at First Colonial High School are participating in an experimental sociology course. It was originated at the University of Michigan and is being taught in only 275 classrooms in the nation.

The objective of this project is to enable the student to actively participate in an inquiry or inductive method of study. Students will work on problems and form their own opinions in studying the human group as a network, a structure of relationships.

Instructional materials for the class are produced by the Sociological Resources for the Social Studies. In a few years a new textbook should be completed which will be the result of the work being done by all students taking the course.

Juanita Gentry, instructor for this class at First Colonial, stated that her purpose is not to tell but to discuss conclusions her students reach. This project, established by the American Sociological Association, is supported by the National Science Foundation.

Youths Await Sentencing

Two 16-year-old Virginia Beach juveniles, charged with violation of ordinances prohibiting glue sniffing in the Dec. 29 death of Leslie C. McGrady of Chesapeake, are awaiting sentencing. A third 16-year-old has been committed to care of the State Department of Welfare and Institutions.

Police officials said the youths were with McGrady as the group rode through the Windsor Woods and Malibu sections of the city purchasing tubes of glue at 7-Eleven Stores and a Tinee Giant, and engaged in glue sniffing. It was during this ride that McGrady became ill and, according to a medical examiner's report, choked to death during a vomiting spasm brought on by glue sniffing. Two other juveniles, charged in connection with the same episode, have also been found within the purview of the courts and are awaiting the outcome of presentencing reports.

Cure your wife's big hang-up.

If your wife has a hang-up about it raining on washday, an electric dryer is the cure. Or if she gets all hung-up about hanging heavy loads on the line. And then having them blown down on the ground by the wind. Or if she gets hung-up about clothes getting sun faded. Wind-whipped. And dirty from the dust in the air. Or if she gets hung-up about the permanent press suddenly disappearing from your family's clothes. All these hang-ups can be cured quickly, easily. Simply by getting your wife an electric dryer. And by the way, if you think that you might get hung-up on the cost of an electric dryer, think again. They're within the budget of just about everybody. The modern electric clothes dryer. An inexpensive way to cure everybody's laundry hang-ups.

False Thinking at False Cape

City Council has seen fit to oppose the development of all the land on the oceanfront south of the Back Bay National Wildlife Refuge as a state park. A resolution to that effect will probably be passed Monday, and that follows official objections some time ago to only a small part of the land being used for this purpose.

It is difficult to agree with City Council on this one, but we are forced to do so. We are aware of how little oceanfront is actually public in Virginia Beach because of military installations and because of Seashore State Park being only for its campers. Then, too, the city has its park acreage at Sandbridge. There is that wildlife refuge. And there is much residential property which, while it cannot prohibit public use, certainly inhibits it.

The addition of the False Cape park, if it is only to be open to campers, would definitely be wrong. It must be public if it is to be built at all. We are aware of the desirability of a camping area there because of crowded conditions at Seashore, but the general public must be able to use it too or the purpose will fail.

Actually it is a shame, and this is the crux of the matter, that it must be a park at all, regardless of the needs of the public on the vanishing oceanfront land. The city of Virginia Beach could certainly gain more from the land if it could be developed in an orderly fashion, both residentially and commercially.

And so we are betwixt and between. We favor the park, but see the advantage to the city if it is not a park. Reluctantly we must let hard logical thinking take over and favor the resolution.

Perhaps the state will take heed and stop acquiring land in the False Cape area. Perhaps a compromise can be worked out, and the state can stop with the acreage it has already acquired or has almost acquired.

The oceanfront is all too important to Virginia Beach and its future development to become the subject of big flap between the state and municipal governments.

The Names on the Ballot

One of the proposed changes to the Virginia Constitution that is bound to run into trouble at the special session of the Virginia General Assembly would list alphabetically the name of candidates for a particular office on a ballot.

The politicians there are sure to fight about this, since there has been the time-honored tradition of placing the "ins" first in some places, the practice of placing names by ticket or affiliation in others or even placing them on the ballot in the order they file in still others.

Actually we can see little good in the proposed change except uniformity. Hopefully the voter has made up his mind whom he is going to vote for before he gets to the poll on election day and can find his man's name on the ballot, no matter where it is.

Virginia Beach election officials say they don't mind the alphabetical listing, but by ticket, which has often been the practice here. The consensus already seems to be in Tidewater that there is opposition to the proposed change by those who may be influential enough to stop the revision off.

Of course there are those watchdogs of government who will claim that alphabetically is the only fair way. But then we certainly pity the man at the bottom of the list at the hands of the uninformed voter. Mr. Zyenncompf just doesn't have a chance.

The Students Can't Wait

It was somewhat disturbing to find that the State Board for Community Colleges will not authorize construction of any more new community colleges at this time because all future sites have not been selected or arrangements have not been completed for some sites, and because matching federal funds for those to be built later are still a matter of question.

No time has been set on settling all this, and the Virginia Beach community college is not one of the three slated for construction in the 1968-1970 biennium, but we hope that all this can be cleared up as soon as possible so that the much-needed facility in our city will not be delayed.

We were elated when the site was announced and when it looked like we might receive some priority in the 1970-1972 biennium, but if the three already slated for construction are delayed too long by red tape, especially matching federal fund red tape, the result could be devastating here.

We urge our elected and appointed representatives to investigate and to determine just what this means to Virginia Beach and if there is a delay possible take all necessary steps to eliminate the roadblocks.

Obviously the change in Administration in Washington has much to do with the federal fund question. Hopefully it can be resolved to our satisfaction. The announcement from the State is couched in cautious and ambiguous wording which seem to mean delay. We hope this is not so for the same of all Virginians, but especially for the people of Virginia Beach.

Teacher Salaries

Editor, VIRGINIA BEACH SUN: I, for one, am willing to pay whatever is necessary to help raise teacher salaries. I have two children in the public schools of this city at present and another will begin next fall.

I agree that for too long teacher salaries were terribly low, but they have now moved to a decent level at which a professional can plan to work and stay with it.

Lower salaries have caused problems for me. My oldest child was in a class last year of a very poor teacher in her first year of teaching. She was right out of college and was apparently only in the business until she could get a husband. She was not a teacher, and fortunately she is not teaching this year, but my child is having a difficult time this year as a result of her lack of ability or interest.

Higher salaries can perhaps mean better teachers, or at least I hope so. It would seem to me that with the recommended salary for next year Virginia Beach should have its choice of the best teachers. I understand, however, all the new teachers that are needed every year and how hard it is to fill all the jobs in a growing city.

I also know that my taxes do not pay the bill for my children in school. But our children are the hope of the future and I think all of us must pay what we must pay in taxes to insure that future, and to insure quality education for our children. Alfred G. Turner.

Speed Complaint

Editor, VIRGINIA BEACH SUN: I've never been in favor of speed traps, and I'm not now, but I think something should be done at the junction of Laskin

Road and Virginia Beach Blvd. at London Bridge. On the Blvd. the speed is 35 m.p.h. for a long stretch. On Laskin, however, it drops from 55 to 45 then 35 in just a short distance.

I'm tired of being the only one who obeys the speed law. Everybody else whizzes past; manybunk. I've even had police cars, without their red lights on, pass me along there.

The speed limit may not be acceptable to all, but it is the law, regardless! Yet I have never seen a car stopped for speeding along there, and I go through the area at least twice a day.

If they're going to set speed limits, then enforce them. If they're not going to enforce them, why not change them? Mrs. Harold Feamster

The VIRGINIA BEACH SUN welcomes letters. They will be published when possible. Each letter must be signed and include address of the writer. Letters are invited on any question. Mail each to: Editor, VIRGINIA BEACH SUN, Post Office Box 657, Virginia Beach, Virginia 23451.

Special Report

Howell's Time to Howl

Big surprise! Henry Howell is staying in the Democratic Primary race in July.

Actually he had no choice. Had he pulled out and decided to run as an independent in November he would have been fair game from all sides. His own supporters who have advocated Democrats acting and voting like Democrats all the time would have been laughed out of the political arena. And the other two candidates could easily have said he wasn't a Democrat at all. After all, look what happened to George Wallace, the Independent. His efforts were not overly successful nationwide.

Most political observers believe Howell never really had any serious thoughts about bolting the primary in the first place. They feel he was looking for as much mileage out of the matter as possible, and that he got it. Now he must look for some other way to get his name in the headlines. Some observers believe that with Howell in the primary he is in the safest spot to be beaten.

There is little doubt now that there will be a runoff election in August to determine the Democratic nominee. William Battle and Fred Holland have worked hard building impressive lists of campaign stalwarts throughout the state. Neither is going down to defeat without a major struggle.

The costly runoff provision so that the party candidate will have a majority was written into Virginia law some years ago and attempts to get it out have failed. Unless there is a major change in feeling the runoff will most likely be between Pollard and Battle. This will be the first real major test between an old-line Organization man (Pollard) and a new moderate (Battle). Pollard does not have the announced total support of the Organization however, and many of the younger men lean to Battle.

Some political buffs say that the moderates have risen to a place of power only by a fluke anyway. When William Spong beat A. Willis Robertson in the 1966 Senate race, the contest was more between an old man who refused to quit and a young man. The buffs say a truly strong candidate would have beaten Robertson badly, not by just a handful of votes as Spong did.

And as far as T. Marshall Hahn is concerned, it is probably too late for him to enter the fray. Most believe he would be well advised to announce his non-candidacy, then wait until 1973. Too much has already been done by too many people now. Too many important to Hahn are already committed to someone else and they are not likely to convert in droves just because Hahn would say he is ready. Hahn obviously does not have the full support of the Organization either.

Hahn is well liked and probably could run a good race, but using Virginia Beach as an example, it is doubtful that many of that 112-man list of supporters of Battle would desert. Of course many important men and women, including a number of high officials in the city are not committed at all so far. How they finally go could make all the difference in this Democratic race.

Most Democrats, regardless of how they may feel about any one candidate, will pull together after the primary, that is, if Howell doesn't win it. They are aware of the danger of too much commitment before the Primary, since it is difficult in the minds of many to heal those open wounds between July and November.

Thus the Democratic campaign should really be the most friendly one on record in many years. Mr. Howell not necessarily withstanding. In the final analysis, it's November that counts and even Howell has said he will support the nominee of the party.

The GOP is waiting in the wings for any slip-up the Democrats make. Edwin Holtzman smiles a lot there days, and maybe with good reason.

But now the Democratic race, outside the Second Congressional District, looks like a two-man race between Pollard and Battle. Howell's campaign at present seems stalled in direction or decision. Howell's time to howl may already be passed. Messrs. Battle and Pollard are well aware of that.

SPOTS

By H. Joseph Lowenthal, Jr.

"Very funny," she said, not meaning it at all. "Oh, that's very funny."
"What's so very funny?" he asked, trying to look as innocent as possible.
"Your little display upstairs in our bedroom," she said, "I liked that a lot."
"Oh, that?" he said. "Did you really like it? I thought it made a most impressive display and proved my point well."
"Your pants all lined up on hangers on a clothesline across the room with the right pockets out look like upside-down one-eyed soldiers at attention," she said.

A Pocketful of Pins

"That's very good," he said. "But did you happen to notice anything else?"
"Yes, I noticed there were safety pins on each one of those eight pockets," she said. "I wondered where all my safety pins were going."

"Okay, that is enough. Did you get the message?" he asked. "What message?" she asked sweetly. "I didn't see any messages, just pants with one safety-pinned pocket out."
"There was no written message," he said. "I had rather hoped that all of my pants with the exception of the pair I have on hanging on a line with safety pins hooked to the shortened pockets might point out to you the state of disrepair of all of my pants," he said.

"All but the pair you're wearing," she reminded him. "Tell me, why are those safety pins in those pockets?"
"Well, you see, I have this thing about safety pins...Because they all have holes in them, dummy."

"Oh," she said. "Why didn't you tell me about this before? I would have fixed them as the holes appeared. Now it's too much of a job. I suppose you'll have to take them to a tailor."
"Listen, Mrs. Tailor," he said. "I did so inform you with each new hole, and you've been promising to fix each one for months."

"Really?" she asked with a smile. "I must have forgotten. And if you wouldn't carry so much junk in your pockets to begin with it wouldn't happen."

"I have to carry my change and keys somewhere," he said. "I'd look pretty silly walking down the street with a purse."
"I bet that would get a lot of laughs," she agreed.

"Look, I'm down on bended knee. Will you please fix my pants before it's too late?" he begged.

"What do you mean, 'too late'?" she asked.
"I've had to put so much junk in the left pockets that now the left pockets are starting to go," he said. "Soon I'm going to have air conditioned pants with two vents where the pockets belong."

"You can get up now," she said. "I'll fix them as soon as I can. But the ones I don't get around to by the time you go into summer clothes will have to wait until fall."

"Don't let that bother you," he said. "All my summer pants have holes in them that are waiting for spring like you promised last summer."

"Why all this fuss all of a sudden?" she asked. "This has apparently been going on for a long time."

"Because the small safety pins won't hold any more," he answered.

"Oh, is that all?" she asked. "Well why didn't you say so. I'll get you some larger safety pins."

When Franklin D. Roosevelt took office on March 4, 1933, the collapse of the economic system was almost complete.

Unemployment was estimated at from 13,000,000 to 17,000,000. Over 1350 banks had closed their doors and more than 20 states had either declared banking moratoriums or were allowing banking operations under very special conditions. The nation was tense and worried. The entire American Dream, including the very survival of our system rested on his shoulders. Into this stalemate, Roosevelt brought confidence with the words "the only thing we have to fear is fear itself."

Roosevelt took positive action. He declared a nationwide banking moratorium; he placed an embargo on the transportation of gold and silver; he strengthened the Federal Reserve System and the Reconstruction Finance Corporation; he initiated the first Agricultural Adjustment Act which regulated farm prices by curtailing the production of farm products.

As an aid to industry and to stimulate employment, he secured the passage of the National Industrial Recovery Act. This was followed by the Tennessee Valley Development Act; the Utilities Holding Company Act; the Motor Carriers Act; the Emergency Relief Act; the Public Works Administration was established to promote construction in the public interest; the Works Progress Administration (WPA) came into existence by executive order; the Fair Labor Standards Act; the National Labor Relations Act; the Railroad Retirement Act; and the Social Security Act.

When the Supreme Court was not liberal enough in its thinking, the President attempted to change its membership by forced retirements and an increase in the number of justices. This attempt to "pack the court" touched off a bitter debate and met with failure.

All this legislation was referred to as the "New Deal." Rightly or wrongly, the New Deal was an attempt to establish a planned economy in an effort, Roosevelt believed, to save the capitalist - free - enterprise system. It extended governmental regulation, supervision, control, and activity into every phase of the life of the nation. It sought to prevent the complete disintegration of the economic system by establishing a more equal balance between agriculture and industry; the wage earner and the employer and the consumer.

The entire program met with much dissent. Politicians feared the great increase in federal employees needed to administer the programs; the increase in presidential powers; and the loss of power by the states.

In the Presidential campaign of 1936 the Democrats pointed to the returning prosperity and the Republicans looked with alarm to the social-welfare legislation. The result was a democratic victory of epic proportions; if you consider the electoral vote 528 to 8. Gradually and painfully, and, at the cost of a permanent change in our political and economic system, the nation struggled to its economic feet.

Meanwhile, Old Glory was threatened from other quarters. In Europe a former Austrian corporal decided that the Germans were the Master Race. In Japan, Hirohito decided his empire needed more room. Thus, the stage was set for World War II.

Coast Guard Is Family Tradition

C.P.O. Stanford W. (Peewee) Morse's retirement from the U. S. Coast Guard last Friday marked the close of service with the Coast Guard which has spanned two generations.

Chief Morse, who ended 20 years of service, followed in the footsteps of his father Elsworth Morse, director of the Virginia Beach Erosion Commission, who is a veteran of 30 years Coast Guard Service. "Peewee" joined the Coast Guard in Norfolk, on Jan. 13, 1949, and upon completion of boot training at Cape May, N. J., returned to the Virginia Beach Coast Guard Station for his first duty assignment. He received his first electronics training in the Coast Guard school at Groton, Conn. and was reassigned to duty in the district engineers office at Fifth Coast Guard District Headquarters in Portsmouth, Va. Morse was next chosen for advanced training at the Coast Guard research and development station at Wildwood, N. J. and was subsequently reassigned to the electronics repair shop at the Coast Guard Station in Virginia Beach in Oct. 1966. On Jan. 2, 1968 Morse was named as Executive Officer of the C. G. Electronic Shop on Atlantic Avenue, a position which he held until his day of retirement.

When Morse was asked what stood out in his mind during his many years of service with the Virginia Beach Coast Guard station, Morse replied, "I guess probably the hurricanes that battered the coast line from here to the Carolinas and the many times the Coast Guard was called upon to go to the assistance of those in distress in the Atlantic."

Although Morse hesitates to talk in any detail about his accomplishments during the past 20 years, his devotion to duty with the Coast Guard was marked by his earning several awards which included the National Defense Service Medal and the Coast Guard Good Conduct Medal with one silver star.

The respect which Morse has gained in Virginia Beach was quite evident in those persons who witnessed his retirement ceremonies. The large number of persons on hand included Mayor Frank Dusch; Lt. Cmdr. D.A. Corey, Deputy Commander of the Coast Guard Group, Norfolk; Virginia Beach Borough Fire Chief E.B. "Bubba" Bayne; and a large number of firemen and police officers of the city.

Another tribute was paid to Morse just last month when he was named "Fireman of the Year" by men of the Virginia Beach Borough Volunteer Fire Department. This marked the second time Morse was so hon-

Checkups Recommended

"Resolved, that I will start 1969 with a physical checkup, which may enable me to reduce my risk of heart attack."

This New Year's resolution was proposed by the Tidewater Heart Association for adoption by all adults—especially men.

The Association pointed out that doctors—now more so than ever before—are equipped to identify coronary-prone individuals, for whom a regimen of risk reduction is vital. Others, during the course of an examination by their physician, may acquire valuable information regarding what can be done to improve their chances of avoiding or delaying heart attack.

"It is a tragic fact that many millions of people are unknowingly walking around with high blood pressure, which not only triggers hypertensive heart disease, but also accelerates conditions which set the stage for heart attack and stroke. In most instances, the physician can bring high blood pressure under control."

"Another good New Year's resolution," said the Association, "is a determination to give generously to the 1969 Heart

Dr. Dickinson

Fund Campaign, which will be conducted here and in 8500 other American communities through February."

The Heart Fund drive will reach its high point here during the 15-day period starting February 12th, when Heart Sunday volunteers will visit their neighbors to deliver educational information and to receive Heart Fund contributions. The gifts support research, educational and community service activities of the local Heart Association.

Authority Seeks Bids On Clearing

The Virginia Beach Industrial Development Authority is seeking bids for clearing land at the Little Creek industrial park site.

Bids for the work have to be submitted to VBIDA secretary L. Dean Curtis by 2:30 p.m. Feb. 14. At that time the proposals will be opened and read. There will be no extension of the bidding period.

Frank D. Tarrall Jr. and Associates should be contacted for information about the job.

The land to be cleared is part of the property recently purchased by the city from Penn-Central Co. The property is to be developed as a second industrial park.

New PTA Forms Plans

The nominating committee of the new Point O'View Elementary School PTA steering committee met at the home of Mrs. Elaine Kohn Tuesday, Jan. 21 to formulate a slate of officers for the first organizational meeting scheduled Feb. 11 at the school.

The committee will welcome any additional names that may be added to the group they already

Company Declared In Default

Circuit Court Judge Paul W. Ackiss has denied a motion to lift an attachment against contractor E. C. Womack, his wife and two companies. The attachment proceedings are being instigated by Transamerica, the bonding firm on Womack's contracts.

The attachment applied to Womack, Mrs. Jewel H. Womack, Lakeside Development Corp. and Southeastern Electric Contracting Co. Southeastern Electric has been sold by Womack, although it was surety on the bonds obtained from Transamerica for contracts worth $19,122,105.

Judge Ackiss has continued the motion against Southeastern Electric until the receipt of a ready have at the Feb. 11 meeting.

The entire steering committee will meet for the second time Jan. 30 at Point O'View School to complete the agenda for the organizational meeting. The nominating committee members in attendance at Mrs. Kohn's home were Mrs. Bernice Moore, Mrs. Elinor Traylor, Mrs. Nell Kuchera, Mrs. Elaine Kohn and Mrs. Shirley Barondoss.

Liquefied, the powdered milk supplied by UNICEF would fill the United Nations Building 27 times.

new petition for attachment from the Richmond firm of Sands, Anderson, Marks and Clark, who represent Transamerica.

Trial date for the attachments will be set in April at the next docket call.

Several suits have been filed against E. C. Womack, Inc., which has been placed in receivership and had its records impounded by U. S. District Court Judge John A. Mackenzie. Southeastern Electric and Lakeside Development also had their records impounded.

Transamerica filed suit Jan. 30 as a result of Womack having been declared in default on a number of highway contracts in Maryland, Virginia and Pennsylvania.

Wayne Lustig, Norfolk attorney representing Womack has said that he will argue on the District Court action in a hearing Feb. 10. He maintains that the proceedings in Virginia Beach preclude the suit in federal court.

E. C. Womack, Inc. had been declared in default on a highway construction project in Frederick County, Virginia and Transamerica had been asked to arrange for completion of the project. Highway Commissioner Douglas B. Fugate took this action on Jan. 24. The $3,264,374 contract had been awarded April 12, 1967. The contract provides for construction of the 3.7-mile north segment of the Winchester bypass.

The project is about 68 per cent completed. When a partial winter shutdown went into effect in November, the project was 12 per cent behind the anticipated schedule.

Commissioner Fugate first wrote to the Womack company on Jan. 10, saying it had come to his attention that the firm has been declared in default on two highway contracts in Maryland and that the bonding company had asked the Virginia Department of Highways to withhold payment of any further funds to the firm.

The Commissioner asked at that time to be advised of the position of the Frederick County project insofar as its completion within the contract time limit was concerned. He said unless a satisfactory reply was received by Jan. 23, it would be necessary to declare the firm in default.

Miscasting Hurts 'Yum Yum'

Cavaller Dinner Playhouse's current production of Lawrence Roman's comedy "Under the Yum Yum Tree" has an accent on youth, in fact too much youth. The presentation of this light, frothy piece is generally good, but some dreadful miscasting makes some of the premise a little tough to swallow.

The play is occupied and preoccupied with sex. The entire story concerns that subject. A young rising Junior majoring in lab technology takes over her aunt's apartment when the aunt, a disillusioned, divorced sociology teacher, leaves San Francisco to teach in a girls college. The trouble with the new young tenant is that she has not quite grown up and wants to desperately.

A young attorney is in love with her and wants to marry her, but she is not certain that the entire relationship is not purely physical. She therefore invites him to move in with her on a platonic basis only so that they can get to know each other better. Chemistry being what it is the arrangement obviously causes some problems and a few funny twists.

All this is complicated by an irrepressible, eavesdropping, heavy drinking landlord who lives next door. He has had many success with the women in the apartment, including the one who just left, and in his amusing, egotistical way continues his attempts at conquering.

If it were not for Kathleen Coyne, who plays the young girl, the production would have been a failure. But this young lady and her pixieish qualities, reminiscent of a young Audrey Hepburn or Jean Simmons, moves so well through her believably innocent characterization that she almost pulls it off entirely alone.

Michael Sander does an acceptable job as the attorney, but his knowledge of fisticuffs for a supposed former college middleweight is lamentably lacking. Theresa Stallings is miscast as the aunt. She is too young in the first place, and no matter what attempts she makes at the sophisticated called for, the micro-mins she is costumed in do not help. She tries hard, but cannot bring off what she is not suited for.

John Welch is also too young or at least too young-looking to play the lecherous landlord. He has some nice moments particularly when he has hangovers and keeps the pace going well, but his youthful appearance makes it difficult for the audience to identify with him. The set is a nice one, but hardly looks like an attic apartment in an aged building that the program says it is.

Director Richard Michaels has added some pleasant directing touches but has a tendency to throw in "cuttle" business that is just not needed in this one.

Altogether this is a pleasant evening regardless of obvious casting flaws, and Miss Coyne's performance makes it more than worthwhile. HJL

VOT Program

Sometimes They Work Too Well

By Yatta Jones

"Sorry, but we need someone with work experience."

These are familiar words to many high school graduates when they try to get a job after graduation. They may have the necessary skills, but because they have not held a job they lack one of the qualifications for a certain position.

There is a fortunate group of students, however, who will graduate from high school with skill and on-the-job training. These are the students who are enrolled in the Vocational Office Training program.

VOT is a phase of vocational education made possible by special state assistance to local school divisions. Students who participate in the program work with local businesses while under continual instruction and supervision at school.

Certain requirements have to be met before a school can participate in the VOT program. For example: there has to be evidence of employment opportunities for at least 12 graduates a year in the high school service area; there has to be an "office laboratory" appropriately housed and equipped at the high school to accommodate a class of 12 students; there has to be a teacher-coordinator, competent in training and work experience to coordinate the in-school training with student on-the-job assignment.

Only seniors participate in the program. They go to school part-time and are placed in employment with the approval of their parents, the school and their employer at a rate consistent with customary entrance pay.

Mrs. W.F. Barber, coordinator at Princess Anne High School, instructs one of the VOT students in the classroom laboratory.

The participating students have to have at least four units in business skills before they can enter the program. They are evaluated once every six weeks by written and/or personal contact with their school coordinator.

Before the students are accepted into the VOT program they have to make an application with two teacher references. They are then judged on their ability as a student, their ability to get along with others, whether they really want to work and their dress.

In Virginia Beach there are VOT programs at First Colonial, Bayside, Kellam and Princess Anne High Schools. The program at Princess Anne is the oldest...it has been in effect for 21 years.

Mrs. William F. Barber is head of the Business Department, and VOT coordinator at Princess Anne. At the moment she has 22 girls involved in the VOT program—all of whom are working, except one who is an interim worker and will soon be on another job.

In class the students work on business machines in order to perfect their skills. The business laboratory at Princess Anne is equipped with typewriters (both manual and electric), transcribers, duplicators, calculators, posting machines, a peg-board accounting machine and a 10-key adding machine. Next year they will have a data-processing machine which Mrs. Barber feels will bring male students into the program.

The students work in four basic areas—stenographic, accounting, typing and general clerical. They rotate in these areas so that they get experience in all phases of office work.

Mrs. Barber works closely with the students' employers. She checks regularly with the employers to see if the students need special instruction in any field. If so, she works with the student until the skill is mastered.

The students are employed in many different fields—department stores, real estate firms, investment corporations, insurance firms. One girl works at the hospital, one works for a court reporter and another for a travel agency.

There are very few problems with the program. Sometimes a student is mismatched with a job so that an adjustment has to be made, but this very seldom happens. Mrs. Barber is extremely careful in placing the students where their skills will be put to best use and where they will find the job exciting and challenging. Many times the students find their work so satisfying that they end up working in that field as a career.

There is one problem for which there seems to be no solution. The problem is gratifying and yet exasperating. Many times a student works out so well in a particular position that she is kept on as a permanent employee. Then Mrs. Barber has to find another employer because there is no longer an available position!

Next week we will talk to some of the employers and the VOT students to see how they feel about the program.

Council Makes Plans

Plans for World Day of Prayer and for a retreat were discussed at the meeting of the Virginia Beach Council of Church Women, United last Friday at Seateck Community Center.

World Day of Prayer will be held at 11 a.m. March 7 at Virginia Beach Methodist Church. The service will be followed by lunch. A nursery will be provided.

Ben Campbell Johnson, director of Lay Renewal of the Methodist Church in Atlanta, and his wife will be guest speakers for World Day of Prayer and for the retreat.

The retreat, now an annual occasion for couples, is scheduled for Feb. 28 and March 1 at the Washington Club Inn.

The Council voted to co-sponsor Howard Thurman with the Beach Borough Ministerial Association. Thurman, a retired Dean of Marsh Chapel at Boston University, will be at First Presbyterian Church to speak from March 30 until April 2. He is a distinguished author who has had 17 books published.

Rehobath Baptist Church was hostess church for the meeting.

Club Plans Program About Canada

The Princess Anne Woman's Club of Virginia Beach will hold its regular meeting at the Ocean Heath Restaurant, 57th and Atlantic Avenue, Feb. 11, at 11 a.m.

Mrs. P. C. Hartman, arts and crafts chairman, has requested club members to bring their arts and crafts which will be displayed and judged. The results of the judging will determine Club entries in the contest sponsored by the Tidewater District FWOC, at the Spring Meeting.

After lunch, the International Affairs Department will present Capt. Vernon H. Howland of the Canadian Navy. He is serving on the staff of the Supreme Allied Command Atlantic in Norfolk.

Mrs. H. L. Dickens will be the guest soloist according to Mrs. W. J. Tuttle, music chairman.

Mrs. Lacey Robeson, First Vice President, will preside in the absence of Mrs. M. B. Zoll who is vacationing in Florida.

Checks Given to Kindergarten

The kindergarten for retarded children, probably the most enthusiastic project of the Virginia Beach-Princess Anne Jr. Woman's Club, has grown so that it is now a project adopted by the entire community.

The idea grew from a Sunday School class of three, which was started at Galilee Episcopal Church. The class was so successful that the concept of a kindergarten was formed.

In checking with the Tidewater Association for Retarded Children the club found that TARC would give them nominal support if the kindergarten could be organized under TARC's standards. After the groundwork was laid TARC chose ten children to attend the kindergarten. All of the children were trainable or educable.

The club found an experienced teacher and then needed money to equip and supply the class with teaching aids. They also needed a year's salary for the teacher. In order to get the necessary funds letters were sent to civic clubs and church groups in the area.

Over $3,300 has been received in answer to this call for support, as well as gifts. Some of these gifts are a record player, toys, a sliding board and a play house.

At their Annual Follies in November the club added $2,000 to the kindergarten fund. Members of the club have freely given their services as well as monetary gifts. Some of them are volunteer teaching aids, some make supplies such as rhythm band instruments, puzzles, and number sheets.

where they collected $80.80 for toys...they also collected Green Stamps for playground equipment. Another department holds book raffles at each meeting which has brought in $65 for the kindergarten. Over 75,000 working hours have been contributed to the project by the club members.

There have been many gratifying results from the project. Volunteers from outside the club have helped immensely with the kindergarten. A young dancing teacher gives children dancing lessons each week; a small church with facilities but no funds is making plans to form a second kindergarten for retarded children soon.

And, of course, the response of the children themselves has been the most satisfying result. One child spoke his first word, one child can count to three and understand the concept, another is able to tie shoes and cookies for the entire class.

One of the big hopes is that some of these children will be able to attend a public school next year. For those who cannot, there will still be a place where they can learn and progress.

Job Grows with the Schools

By Carolyn McAllen

Approximately 500 new teachers will be needed in the Virginia Beach public schools next fall, and Miss Louise Luxford and Phil Meekins have been recruiting candidates since last October.

Miss Luxford is director of instructional personal and Meekins is associate director.

A total of about 250 additional teachers will be needed to staff new schools. The others will replace teachers who have resigned. Miss Luxford pointed out that 75 school systems in Virginia employ a total of 250 or less.

Miss Luxford's job has grown with the school system. In 1960 the school staff was 773 in 19 schools. It is now 2090, and there were 3 schools last September.

Where do the teachers come from? They come from every state in the U.S.A. Some are military wives. Others are teachers returning to teaching after raising families. Many others are recent college graduates recruited by Miss Luxford and Meekins. Their schedule before June will include 65 to 70 college campuses.

Three new states have been added to the itinerary—West Virginia, Pennsylvania and Maryland. Other states will include Tennessee, North Carolina, Kentucky, South Carolina and Georgia.

According to Miss Luxford, salaries and the progressive school system of Virginia Beach are main factors in attracting new teachers. Many young teachers hear about Virginia Beach from friends who have already graduated, she said.

"We're looking for people with new approaches to teaching and materials. We're a fast growing school system. The door is open," said Miss Luxford, pointing out that 50 per cent of the teaching staff is young and has been teaching five years or less.

Before Miss Luxford and Meekins visit a campus, attractive colored posters showing a beach scene announce their arrival. Bright folders telling about the city and the school system are given out. A rental list is even provided for those who desire it.

"We don't consider the percentage of young teachers a handicap," said Miss Luxford. "They're a compatible group with excellent teacher-training background."

Although a number of teachers are military wives, there were only 131 who resigned because their husbands were transferred last year, while 162 resigned because of marriage, maternity leave or household duties.

The Virginia Beach School system has progressed rapidly since 1960. At that time there were no speech therapists or remedial reading teachers. All schools did not have full time music teachers and librarians as they do now. The supervisory staff was small. "Special education has mushroomed," said Miss Luxford.

All of Miss Luxford's professional experience has been in Virginia Beach. She received her B.A. degree from Madison College and her M.A. from the University of Virginia. Her teaching career began at Charity Elementary School near Pungo, where she was also principal. Later she taught at Creeds and was elementary supervisor.

Miss Luxford has been in personnel work with the school system about 15 years. She is in charge of hiring elementary teachers and of teacher certification. Meekins screens secondary applicants.

Three new staff members have been added recently to the (See 'Job' p. 8)

And the Rains Came

The roof leaks.

This interesting fact was brought to light during all the recent rain -- at 6:30 on a Sunday morning that is. The six-year-old could hardly wait to wake us up and tell us the happy news. In fact she didn't wait. She threw herself into the announcement. Ever been waked out of a sound sleep by a 50 pound weight landing on top of you?

"It's dripping on the table."

"Fine. Put a newspaper under it and go back to bed."

Two minutes later she was back. "I wiped up the water, but it dripped again."

"Put a newspaper under it and go back to bed."

She came back again. "I couldn't find a newspaper, so I used a paper towel."

"Thanks. Now please go back to bed."

My husband spent two hours on the roof trying to tack down any loose shingles. Still it dripped. Then one of the neighbors came to his rescue with a can of sealer. Still it dripped.

And it isn't just an ordinary drip. It runs down the light fixture and off the tip of the chandelier. The three kids just stood there fascinated watching it. "There it goes again."

We finally put a bowl under it. Then I got to worrying about the light. What happens if we turn on the switch? I always did think dinner by candlelight was romantic.

At least the rain stopped. Now all we need is a good snow storm.

Symphony Plans 2nd Ball

The Second Annual Symphony Ball, sponsored by the Women's Auxiliary of the Norfolk Symphony Orchestra, will be held March 1 from 9 p.m. until 1 a.m. at Pembroke Mall.

Admission for the Ball is $25 per couple. There will be reserved seats of tables of five couples. Ushers from Old Dominion college will escort guests to their tables.

Hot and cold hors d'oeuvres will be served. Set-ups will be provided.

The Glenn Miller Orchestra, under the direction of Buddy De Franco, will play for the Ball. The orchestra has appeared twice in less than a year at the New Wagon Wheel in Lake Tahoe, Calif. It has played the Flamingo Hotel and the Tropicana Hotel in Las Vegas. It has appeared at the Waldorf Astoria in New York City and every year for the past nine years at Steel Pier, Atlantic City. It has played over a million miles of successful one-nighters from Portland, Maine to Portland, Ore. The Orchestra has played two concert tours in Europe, and three tours in Japan and the Far East.

HERE COMES OLGA!

I crashed a chattering party Friday night and you will never believe how.

The party was given at the home of Mrs. and Mrs. Pappy White, I walked up to the door and knocked, the front door was open, but the storm glass door was closed. Mrs. White came to the door and for approximately five minutes she just stood staring at me through the storm door. No doubt she was thinking she didn't know me from Adam.

Finally she opened the door. I did not give my name but told her I was sent over by some of the neighbors because of the unbearable odor coming from her house, and we were afraid maybe someone was dead. Immediately she wanted to know even before she would let me in as who were the neighbors that reported them. I told her I was sorry but I could not tell her. But she insisted that I tell her—in fact she was getting just a little bit upset with me. I finally asked if I could come in and talk with her about it and she said, "Please do. I would like for you to tell my guests what you have told me." Finally I got to the living room where her guests were sitting having a cocktail before dinner. As I walked into the living room, Mrs. Wiley Harrell announced "She is a reporter". Mrs. White jumped on this remark and wanted to know what kind of reporter I was.

Before answering her as to what kind of reporter I was, I told her that I did not smell any bad odors, so maybe it was a mistake. Then again Mrs. Harrell spoke up and said, "She covers parties for the paper". Her guests then got to laughing. She told me that they had cooked the chitterlings outside and it would not have surprised her for someone to say something.

Her guests were Mr. and Mrs. Wiley Harrell, Mr. and Mrs. Jack Shorter and Mr. and Mrs. James A. Johnson.

The menu for their dinner was chitterlings, collards, cracklin bread, souse, sausage, sweet potatoes, relish dish and, for dessert, apple pie -- and of course Yo-Peon tea which is a must with this type of dinner. I was asked to stay to dinner but I was afraid that the chitterlings and I would never get along so I thanked them and left. I am sure Mr. and Mrs. Pappy White are still wondering how I knew about this dinner. (I'll never tell.)

Saturday night I attended a party given at the home of Mr. and Mrs. William F. Foley for the Cardinal Garden Club of Birdneck. This party was in honor of the husbands of the members. When I arrived everyone was there and, as usual, Mrs. Foley with her delightful way of greeting people and immediately making them feel at home met me at the door.

Valentines were quite predominant in her decorations. The walls and the door of the den had valentines arranged very nicely, and in the corner of the den was a table set up with red punch with a background of red candles.

Everyone was moving about talking with one and then the other, and much to my surprise there were many that I knew personally which, of course, made the party more enjoyable for me and easier to get the names down.

Those attending were: Mr. and Mrs. Paul Maestas, Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Potter, Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Hamlin, Mr. and Mrs. Richard Kline, Mr. and Mrs. Charlie Reed, Mr. and Mrs. Norman Bertels, Mr. and Mrs. Reeves Johnson, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Beamon and Mr. and Mrs. Ervin Murden. Mrs. Joe Myers was dressed in a very attractive pant suit of silver sequins. Her shoes were also of silver. Her jacket was not the usual long tunic jacket but certainly most becoming.

Mrs. Reeves Johnson was dressed in a short cocktail dress of silver sequins and silver shoes. Mrs. Gordon Potter wore a hot pink cocktail dress with sequins around the jewel neckline and down the center of the sleeve. She too wore navy shoes. With her dark hair this hot pink was most becoming to her.

After a few cocktails and a lot of conversation the crowd started for the dining room where a buffet dinner was set up. In the middle of the table was a big valentine with a tall candle of gold. The food consisted of ham biscuits, pumpkin bread, roast beef, crackers for dips such as crab dip and salmon dip, Swedish meatballs, fried chicken, stuffed celery, Greek meatballs and a Polynesian dish which consisted of meatballs, pineapple, cocktail weinies and sweet and sour sauce. The food was delightful and everyone seemed to enjoy it very much because they kept returning to the table.

Others I met were: Mr. and Mrs. Julius Myers, Mr. and Mrs. Raymond G. Downing, Mr. and Mrs. Whit Frank, and Mr. and Mrs. Russell Gilbert. Julius Myers, who is quite an attractive man, was wearing a turtle neck shirt with a blazer and slacks. To me these new styles are quite outstanding because I think women get sick of seeing men in the same old styles as much as the men get sick of women in the same old styles. I enjoyed so much talking with Charlie Reed, it seems that we have a friend in common, and this person became quite the topic of our conversation.

Of course, I have never yet attended a party given by the Foleys that wasn't a delightful experience. Until next week when I will see you all again stay well and look for "Olga".

Son Born

Mr. and Mrs. Edward L. Carroll announce the birth of a son, Donald Scott, on Feb. 1 at General Hospital of Virginia Beach. Mrs. Carroll is the former Miss Martha Ward, daughter of Mrs. Donald E. Ward of Virginia Beach and the late Mr. Ward.

It's an old wives' tale that cake mix cakes don't keep well. Early in their development, cake mixes were inferior and the cakes they produced were tasty only for a few hours. Today, the cakes keep as beautifully as the home baked variety—some experts say it's impossible to tell which cake comes from a "box" and which from grandmother's favorite recipe.

Good Southern cooking and party crashing combined when Mr. and Mrs. Pappy White had a chattering party Friday night. At the party were, left to right, Mr. and Mrs. Wiley C. Harrell, Mr. and Mrs. White and Mr. and Mrs. Buck Shorter.

Crafts Contest Names Winners

The Virginia Beach-Princess Anne Junior Woman's Club met Tuesday night at Calilee Episcopal Church. The program included judging of the Crafts Contest.

Speaker for the meeting was Dr. Wadell, president of the Virginia Beach Safety Council, who spoke on "Safety in Virginia Beach." After presenting his topic Dr. Wadell was given a $20 check from Mrs. P. J. Terveer, president, on behalf of the club. The check is to further the cause of the Safety Council.

The club held their annual Craft Contest to select winners for the District Federation of Women's Clubs meeting this spring. First place winners were: Mrs. John G. Perry, Children's Knitting; Mrs. Samuel Mock, Knitted Afghan; Mrs. Stanley Williamson, Ceramics—Stain; Mrs. John S. Salmons, Ceramics—Overglaze; Mrs. David Foxwell, Wood Carving; Mrs. S. D. Brown III, Decorated Eggs; Mrs. Daniel DeHart, Decoupage; Mrs. Samuel Scott, Children's Sewing; and Mrs. Daniel DeHart, Original Creation.

Two checks were presented to the club for the retarded children's kindergarten they are sponsoring. One check, for $250, was presented by Mrs. J. V. McCall Jr., on behalf of the Driftwood Circle of King's Daughters. A $50 check for the kindergarten was presented by LaSertoma.

Amphibious Wives

The Amphibious Officers' Wives Club will hold a luncheon Feb. 12 at the Amphibious Base Officers' Club.

A social hour will be held at 11:30 a.m., with the luncheon beginning at 12:30 p.m. Cost for the luncheon is $2.25.

An exhibition of gems and a showing of slides will be presented by the firm of S. D. Hardy and Sons. The program will be given in the Lynnhaven Lounge immediately following the luncheon. A gift handmade by S. D. Hardy and Sons and valued at $50 will be given as a door prize.

YWCA Adds Neal-Sheppard Wedding More Classes

Because of popular demand, a beginners bridge class will start at the YWCA within the next two weeks and will be held from 9:30 to 11:30 each Monday morning for eight weeks. Mrs. Theodora Estes will be the instructor.

Tennis classes have been scheduled for six weeks for the beginner and more advanced student on Tuesday and Thursday with the organization of additional classes as the demand requires. Mrs. Nancy Batchelder and Mrs. Jane Anderson will be instructors.

Several spaces are available in the golf class beginning 10 a.m. Feb. 19 at Stumpy Lake. Bowling has some openings also.

For those interested in these sports, the YWCA invites inquiries at the office 303 30th St. by phone 428-8228.

Use Models To Rearrange

Are you buying new furniture? Or thinking of rearranging your old furniture?

If you can buy new furniture you are beginning, in the easiest and most convenient way, a comfortable and attractive home. Each piece of furniture, then, is obtained for a particular use and place, suggests Katherine L. Habel, Extension home economist at Virginia Tech.

Whether you are buying new furniture or rearranging old furniture, the easiest way to plan the arrangement is to use a scale model. A scale model may be made with graph paper of one-fourth inch squares and blocks of colored paper representing various kinds and sizes

Irene Neal and Harlo J. Sheppard, III were married Dec. 28 in the Chapel of the Good Shepherd at NAS Oceana with Lt. Cmdr. M. E. White, chaplain at Dam Neck, officiating.

Mrs. Sheppard is the daughter of Mrs. B. L. Neal of 27th Street.

Mr. Sheppard is the son of Lt. Col. and Mrs. H. J. Sheppard, Jr. of Tampa, Fla.

Mrs. Langley P. Land of Virginia Beach was her sister's matron of honor. Her niece, Neale Land, was junior bridesmaid and her niece and nephew, Cindy Neal and Lane Neal, were flower girl and ring bearer.

David Hale of Virginia Beach was best man. Ushers were Edward Williams and Richard Simon, both of Virginia Beach.

Following a reception at the Ft. Story Officer's Club, the couple went on a skiing trip to Canada.

Mardi Gras is coming -- this traditional celebration will be held for the first time at Star of the Sea Catholic Church on Feb. 14. The theme for the evening will be Blackbeard's Den. Behind the masks are, left to right, Keith Curry, Mrs. Joseph Barraco, Mrs. Mary Curry, Peter Dondero, Mrs. Mary Wade and the Rev. Anthony Just.

of furniture. Indicate the doors and windows on your plan. Move the cutouts around until you have the effects you want and trace or paste them in place. The graph will easily show a balanced room with walking space. And remember, the underfurnished room is much better than the overcrowded one.

Discarding is one of the toughest tasks everyone faces. If you have an attic or storage area, fill a large box with the things you really don't need in a room. After six months of living without them, ask yourself if you really want them back.

If your food costs seem high, count up how much you've spent on non-food items. Add the cost of cleaning supplies, cigarettes, beer, toys and kitchen gadgets.

Watch That Dirt

(Editor's note: Here is another in the series on home horticulture by Wesley P. Judkins, Extension horticulturist at Virginia Tech.)

What kind of soil mixture do you use for your house plants and to produce the seedling vegetable and flower plants for your garden? You probably use a standard formula such as one part each of soil, shredded peat moss and sand plus one-half part dried manure or leaf mold.

The above mixture is fine for most house plants or seed flats. Add about four cups of bonemeal per bushel to supply phosphate. A somewhat heavier mixture can be made by using twice as much soil. To reduce disease and insect problems, you should sterilize this mixture by baking for one hour at 200 degrees Fahrenheit or by using a commercial soil fumigant as directed on the package.

This all sounds quite easy, but you know it is a real nuisance to get all of those different materials together. Also, sterilization presents an added problem. You may find it is easier to buy your soil mixture from a local garden center or greenhouse and avoid all the trouble of mixing your own.

There is another solution. Have you tried any of the mixtures using peat moss and vermiculite? These are becoming quite popular with home gardeners and commercial growers. They require no sterilization and thus avoid that time-consuming chore.

One of the simplest mixtures you can prepare is made by using one part shredded peat moss and one part horticultural grade vermiculite. Add two ounces of ground limestone and six ounces of 5-10-5 fertilizer per bushel. In measuring the lime and fertilizer, one cup equals about eight ounces. All of these materials are valuable for other purposes around the garden, so you can easily find uses for any surplus you may have.

This peat moss and vermiculite mixture is light in weight and will produce uniform, highly fertile seedlings. The fertility level is sufficient to provide all the nutrient needs of most plants for four to six weeks. Be sure to use a 5-10-5 fertilizer containing iron and boron as minor elements, to avoid any deficiency of these nutrients.

If this mixture is to be used for house plants, add about five quarts of dried manure per bushel. This will provide additional nutrients and promote good growth for several months. You should then feed your plants about every two weeks with a soluble house plant fertilizer following the instructions on the package. Apply the soluble fertilizer as needed to maintain good green growth.

The peat moss and vermiculite mixture has another important advantage. You may use it as a rooting medium for the cuttings of your coleus, geraniums, or other house plants. The easy way is to root the cuttings directly in the mixture, in three-inch pots. Be sure to keep the rooting medium moist at all times.

After rooting, the young plants may be grown in the small pots for several weeks until you are ready to set them out in your flower bed or border. If they become too large, shift them to four-inch pots, using some of the same peat moss and vermiculite mixture in place of soil.

personnel department to relieve Miss Luford and Meekins of some of the research and service duties—services such as assistance to retiring teachers, arranging sabbatical leave scholarships, aid to principals, etc. Said Miss Luford, "No one realizes how much time is spent in general interviewing."

Miss Shirley Jacobs will not only help with general interviewing, she will assist in services to teachers. Miss Florine Davis will interview, and she will also coordinate the substitute teacher program. John Daniels, besides interviewing, will coordinate evaluation procedures, conduct research and coordinate requests for absence from work.

Miss Luford refused to be photographed. "All my pictures look like Louise Luford," she quipped. "I'll have one made when I retire."

Contrary to that statement, Miss Luford, a small and very attractive woman, shows no signs of slowing down yet. In fact, she's preparing for another spring on campuses interviewing more prospective teachers.

Skrunch Is a Game You Eat

PITT

Skrunch is a new fun-candy that's made in a milk carton, or in any waxed paper container, or molded free form in your own creative way.

It is a mixture of cereals, nuts and chocolate or butterscotch chips held together with a syrup mixture. Skrunch is not just a candy but a play candy.

Make a bowl of skrunch for a wide awake youngster, provide him with a variety of cartons and containers and let him come up with his own ideas. To make free form shapes, cool about 15 minutes then shape as desired.

SKRUNCH

- 2 c. corn flakes
- 1 c. crisp rice cereal
- 1/2 c. semisweet chocolate or butterscotch chips
- 1 c. broken pecans or walnuts
- 3/4 c. light or dark corn syrup
- 1/4 c. sugar
- 2 tbs. margarine
- 1/2 tsp. vanilla or almond flavoring

Cut one end from waxed paper carton (select milk, cottage cheese, sour cream, yogurt or other). Combine cereals, chocolate or butterscotch chips and nuts in large bowl; set aside. Combine corn syrup, sugar and margarine in a small or medium saucepan. Stirring constantly, bring to full boil over medium heat and boil 3 minutes. Remove from heat. Cool 10 minutes. Add vanilla or almond flavoring. Beat mixture with wooden spoon about 3 minutes or until mixture turns a lighter color and thickens. Pour over cereal mixture all at once. Toss to coat evenly. Press firmly into carton or cartons. (When using a 1-quart milk carton, press full amount of mixture into carton, then press mixture down about three inches from the top.) Chill until set, 1 to 2 hours. Cut off end of milk carton with a knife. Loosen skrunch with a spatula and slip out of carton or slit milk carton lengthwise at one corner and remove. Does not require refrigeration after loaf is set. Makes about 1 pound or enough to fill a 1-quart container 3/4 full.

Note: To make free form shapes, cool about 15 minutes in the bowl and shape as desired.

Here's a fort built by children from Skrunch—a cereal candy. After play, they slice and eat the chocolate cereal candy. It's a building game with the simple ingredients right in the kitchen.

Birth Date Governs Colors

There are many subtle ways a person's horoscope influences their personality and there are many more astrological determinants than mere sun signs.

However, there are general characteristics that apply to most people born under a particular sign which reflect themselves in a woman's wardrobe. Usually this has more to do with overall fashion image, mood and attraction rather than strict color choices, but basically the following colors will be more frequently selected by those under the sign:

- Cancer: Lavender, glittering silver, white, pale yellow, pale green, beige and grey.
- Leo: Bright yellows and oranges; deep, rich, royal purple and sometimes red.
- Virgo: White, dove-grey, dark forest green, beige, both dark and powder blue.
- Libra: Heavenly blues, pink and pastel shades of all colors.
- Scorpio: Deep red, maroon or wine, black, deepest greens.
- Sagittarius: Shades of purple, bright sky blue, deepest greens.
- Capricorn: Black, brown, navy blue, dark green, beige—never white.
- Aquarius: Electric blue or other vibrant hues and greens.
- Pisces: Sea green, various blues, lemon yellow, mauve, white and grey.
- Aries: True, bright red (without a touch of orange) and any shade of blue with a preference for sky blue or medium blue.
- Taurus: Pale pink to deep rose, light blue, browns and greens.
- Gemini: Clear lemon yellow, pale grey, aquamarine and emerald green.

Cox-P. A. Game Is Surprise

This has been the week for surprises and even an upset or two, as well as some close calls and some spine-tinglers. Maury had an easy time of it on Friday night against Lake Taylor, but was stunned on Saturday night by Booker T. Washington of Norfolk. The Bookers, who have been dominating the Eastern District lately and still seem to be getting stronger, zoomed past Maury and broke Maury's consecutive win streak at 41.

The loss, however, does not affect the District standings. The game was not a conference game. So Maury's record was still unblemished. Booker T. had one District loss in an earlier game with Maury.

Norview, only a so-so team previously, smashed Princess Anne's hopes last Friday night with a runaway defeat of the Cavaliers 73-64, PA, until that time, was unbeaten in District competition, although the Cavaliers had suffered two other non-conference tilts.

And so it was on Tuesday. Cox remained the only team in the District with a completely unblemished record, six of its wins in conference games. Cox was idle over the weekend and spent most of the time scouting Princess Anne, Booker T. and Maury, all of which they were scheduled to meet within a week.

The Falcons knew if they were to stay in contention at all they had to get by PA on Tuesday night. Both teams were obviously up for the game and the result was difficult to predict. Princess Anne always gave Cox problems, but the Falcons beat them earlier in the season by one basket. The Cavaliers were improving steadily, however, and several players consistently scored in double figures, including Don Maskall, Skeeter Whitlow and Ricky Michaelson. Cox had a well-rounded team, but had won some close ones, with 21.8 point average Keith Sudduth often being the difference between victory and defeat.

It was, as expected, a hard fought contest, and the Cavaliers came out on top, 71 to 63, to end Cox's streak at 12, although Sudduth scored 26 points. That action almost overshadowed all other games Tuesday night, but Granby downed Bayside, which has also lost some heartbreakers lately in its non-win season, 78 to 43; Kempville downed a weak Kellam team, 54 to 49; and Union Kempville continued its winning ways, downing John F. Kennedy of Suffolk, 87 to 56. Princess Anne also played a inter-district game with Deep Creek Wednesday night.

Last weekend the schedule was light for Virginia Beach teams. Besides the Princess Anne-Norview clash Friday night, Booker T. rolled over Kempville 79-36, Granby topped Kellam 82-69, First Colonial barely made it past Bayside 67-65, and Union Kempville soundly trounced Northampton 94-54, for the second time in a week. The Wednesday night victory was 91-71.

No Virginia Beach teams played Saturday night. Now the next few days could tell the story for Cox and Princess Anne. The Falcons meet Maury Friday night at the Princess Anne gym and then meet Booker T. Monday night at the Norfolk arena, at the same time Princess Anne is meeting Maury on the Commodores' home court. Cox has never beaten Maury and has never played Booker T.

Also Friday night Bayside is at Kempville, First Colonial is at Granby and Kellam is at Lake Taylor. Next Tuesday Lake Taylor comes to Bayside, Kempville is at First Colonial and Norview is at Kellam. On Wednesday Union Kempville plays John F. Kennedy in Suffolk.

By that time the titles in the Districts should be decided, and just how high Cox and PA can stay in the standings depends on what happens in the next week. While the Falcons have not showed any particular razzle dazzle all season, they had been consistent winners. Now it's Princess Anne's turn to show off.

Sewage Plant to Operate

Frank H. Miller, Hampton Roads Sanitation District manager, indicates the Little Creek sewage treatment plant should be in full operation within the month.

Several private utility companies, which reportedly are presently discharging waste into the Lynnhaven River, have indicated they will link up with the new system when it is put into operation. These are listed as Holland Utilities, Princess Anne Utilities, Pembroke Utilities, and Aragona Utilities.

A number of city owned sewage treatment systems such as the Virginia Beach Borough plant, Point-O-Woods, and the lagoon on Great Neck Road, will reportedly join the Oceana Naval Air Station in eventually tying in with the new system.

Members of the commission have also been informed work on the Virginia Beach pumping station on Newtown Road is over 50 per cent complete. Final inspection is expected soon on the central trunk line recently put into service adjacent to Independence Boulevard between Haygood Road and Shore Drive, and that bids to extend the main trunk line to Great Neck Road along Shore Drive will be discussed at the commission's meeting of Feb. 26. Estimated cost of this project was placed at some $260,000. The city reportedly has agreed to bear the $30,000 cost of a 2,550 foot, northerly extension of this main trunk line.

Scout-O-Rama Is Feb. 8

The Princess Anne-Virginia Beach District Scout-O-Rama will be held Feb. 8 at the Civic Center from 1 until 7 p.m.

There will be 45 booth demonstrations in the Civic Center, as well as a few outside demonstrations. These demonstrations are planned to show Cub, Scout and Explorer units in action. They have been described as "the Handbook laid open for all to see its exciting contents."

The demonstrations will be judged on the basis of originality, preparation and performance. Ticket sales awards are also being given to scouts who qualify. A Ticket Salesman patch will be awarded to each boy selling 10 tickets and a neckerchief title to each boy selling a total of 20 tickets. In addition prizes will be awarded to the Cub, Scout and Explorer selling the most tickets.

Tickets are being sold for the Scout-O-Rama by the Scout units for 25¢ each.

Cavalier Expansion Starts

A ground breaking ceremony was held Feb. 2 at Cavalier Golf and Yacht Club on Cardinal Road for a $1 million expansion program. The expansion program will be accomplished in three phases over a ten year period.

Construction on the first phase, a two-level structure, will begin within 30 days. The building will cost approximately $500,000 and will house a dining room for 300 people on the top floor. The ground floor will be composed of an informal recreation/dining room. The 13,000 square foot building will contain the most up-to-date kitchen facilities in the Tidewater area. Charcoal-broiling facilities will have the capacity to serve steak to 200 people in five minutes.

The second phase of the program will be located where the pro shop stands now. It will contain golf lockers, a pro shop, snack bar and bar facilities.

The present clubhouse will be torn down for the third phase of the expansion. The building replacing the clubhouse will also be a two-level structure. The top floor will be composed of a large cocktail lounge and two meeting rooms; the ground floor will contain the club's business offices.

McCorkle, Northern and Associates are architects for the project. The contractor is Haycox Construction Co., Inc.

First Colonial High School was host Jan. 31, Feb. 1 and 2 to the District Two-A Virginia Band and Workshop Band. The two bands were composed of students from high schools and junior high schools throughout Virginia Beach and Norfolk. The students met for practice sessions on Jan. 31 and Feb. 1 and presented a concert on Feb. 2.

Carl W. Clark Jr., director of the Campostella Junior High School band, was guest conductor for the Workshop band. Frederick C. Ebbs, of Indiana University in Bloomington, Ind. was guest conductor for the Regional Band.

The students who participated in the concert had to audition for their positions prior to the practice sessions. There were approximately 250 students selected to participate in the concert. They spent a little over ten hours in preparation for their Sunday performance.

Free Plots Offered

The deaths of police officers Robert R. Monette and Roger Lee McClung, who lost their lives last month in Lake Wesley while training with the police diving team, has resulted in the provision of cost-free cemetery plots for any Virginia Beach police officer or fireman who is killed in the line of duty.

Charles C. Kirkpatrick, co-owner and president of Rosewood Memorial Park and Princess Anne Memorial Park has announced that space for burial plots has been provided in both parks for the men without any obligation to their survivors, when the necessity to obtain a plot would place the family under a heavy financial burden.

According to Kirkpatrick the first time the offer was made was to the families of police officers Monette and McClung. The offer was accepted by both families, and burial space was provided for the men in the Rosewood Memorial Park.

Kirkpatrick pointed out the offer has no restrictions as to where such land would be located in either park with the location being decided by survivors, that there are no strings attached to the offer, and that the only stipulation is that the loss of life occur while the officer or fireman is performing a regular duty job.

Kirkpatrick said, "It is just a gesture of appreciation. I think we've got one of the finest calibre of any police force I've ever known, from the standpoint of personnel. These individuals are human and always helpful and courteous. Our firemen also face a highly risky job, and always carry out their duties in a most humane manner."

The families of an officer or fireman killed in the line of duty, who wish to take advantage of this offer need only to contact either the office of Rosewood Memorial Park or Princess Anne Memorial Park with their request.

Kirkpatrick also said that if space has already been provided in either of the parks for an individual who loses his life in the same manner, the survivors will be offered a service of last rites for the family at a value which would be comparable to the cost of a burial plot.

Air Controlman I.C. Hubert W. Mimick, USN, son of Ernest W. Mimick of Hamblin St., has reported for duty at the Naval Air Station, Alameda, Calif.

Looking over American Legion Week proclamation are Cmdr. Gordon Ragsdale, Virginia State Commander; Cmdr. Francis P. Shea, Commander of Post #113; Mayor Frank A. Dusch; and Jim Pilley, First District Vice Commander.

American Legion Marks 50th

The week of Feb. 7 through 15 has been proclaimed as American Legion Week by Mayor Frank A. Dusch. In making this proclamation Virginia Beach becomes the first city in the nation to proclaim American Legion Week.

Mayor Dusch has urged all citizens to take notice of the special events arranged for this week, which honors the 50th anniversary of the founding of the American Legion.

American Legion Post 113 is planning an Anniversary Ball in conjunction with this celebration. It will be held Feb. 15 from 9 p.m. until 1 a.m. at Pembroke Mall. Doc Severinsen's orchestra from Johnny Carson's Tonight Show will play for the Ball.

THE BEACH THIS WEEK

5 to Appear

Five Virginia Beach residents are awaiting further court appearance in connection with the Jan. 14 burglarizing of the Ralph Groves apartment in the 200 block of 57th Street. Officials identified those accused of burglarizing the dwelling as Karen Anne Baker, 18, Little Neck Road; Barbara A. Heneghan, 23, Kingston Drive; Johnny Lynn Johnston, 21, Leffler Lane; and a 17 year old juvenile, Johnston and the Heneghan woman are also accused of contributing to the delinquency of the 17 year old juvenile, Carol C. Heath, 18, of Pacific Avenue is also facing court appearance on charges of possessing a television set reportedly taken from the dwelling. Groves is quoted by police as saying cash and merchandise representing a total value of some $2,000 were taken during the burglary.

Charged with Possession

Two Navy men are scheduled to enter Virginia Beach Municipal Court Feb. 14 on charges of illegal possession of marijuana. Police identified the suspects as John Robert Edlich, Jr., 20, of Brooklyn, N. Y. and Dennis Edward Kropetz, 20, Mulwonaso, Wis. Judge P.B. White, during the suspects' arraignment, placed both men under bonds of $2,500 pending their court appearance. According to officials both men were arrested during an investigation last week which led to the recovery of the largest quantity of marijuana ever uncovered by police while investigating narcotic law violations in the resort city. Investigators said the arrests followed discovery of a quantity of marijuana in the 23 1/2 Street apartment of Callie Louise Alderman, 22. Although Miss Alderman was initially charged by police with possession of marijuana, she was found guilty of a reduced charge of disturbing the peace and fined $25.

Burglaries Net $1

Court appearance is pending for a Norfolk man whom police say they have charged with the burglarizing of five Virginia Beach business firms. Police officials said James D. Newman, 22, of Harvard Street stands accused of illegally entering the Kempville Beauty Shop, Stohl Realtors, and the offices of Doctors Thomas Morrison, Edward Hunter and Joseph McCoy. Investigators said the suspect was apprehended by Patrolman Joseph Malesky a short distance from the reality office after a witness reportedly saw a man fleeing the building and relayed a description of his car to police. Indications are the alleged burglaries resulted in the loss of only $1.

Faces 66 Years

Robert William Newell of Chesapeake is facing a total of 66 years in prison following conviction of crimes in Virginia Beach and Chesapeake. Newell has been sentenced to 33 years in prison following conviction of rape and burglary in Virginia Beach and 33 years in prison on conviction of rape and robbery in Chesapeake. Serving and Promoting Our City's Future

Virginia Beach, Virginia February 13, 1969

Bid Accepted For Golf Course

City Council Monday formally accepted the bid of John H. Malbon Inc. for $439,797.30, to build the city's golf course adjacent to Redwing Park. City Manager Roger Scott said the additional $150,000 needed above already approved bond funds could probably be found from other sources.

At Scott's recommendation the Council also approved an appropriation of $17,600 for rest room and bathroom facilities at the city's Littleland Park at Sandbridge. Vice Mayor Robert Cromwell questioned the need for the city to enter into this business because of the needs of the future, but Council approved it unanimously in open meeting. At the same time Council asked Scott to bring in plans for operation and maintenance of the facilities by the Recreation and Parks Dept.

In other action, Council heard Commonwealth's Attorney Andre Evans, who said the State Compensation Board had turned down his pleas for more money for his assistants following the same action by Council, and that he would now allow them to practice law on a part-time basis on their own to sustain themselves.

Upon recommendation of City Attorney Harry Marshall Council decided not to refund $17,885 in flat fees as requested by attorney Norris Halperin on behalf of several developers. Halperin maintained that the ordinance under which the money was collected had been declared unconstitutional. Marshall told Council that in precedent cases it appeared that the city had a "50-50 chance of winning in court."

Council also gave approval to an appropriation of $11,687 to bear half the cost of a railroad crossing on Five Forks Road built by developer Lee A. Gifford. When the project was begun in 1967, Council agreed to pay half of $8,157, but the costs were raised because of extra material purchased. Scott recommended the approval of the money "reluctantly," and both Councilman Larry Marshall and Vice Mayor Cromwell said they hoped the city had learned a lesson in not making a more explicit contract.

Luke Construction Co. was granted a contract for conversion of a pump house at Lakeville Estates for use in the Hampton Roads Sanitation Commission system. The bid was $28,900.

William Clives was appointed to a three-year term on the City Planning commission, as required by law, instead of the one-year term to which he had been appointed. Earl Slatum was appointed to fill the vacancy on the Advertising Board brought about by the death of A. B. Crews.

Council also passed on first reading an ordinance that would remove all industrial property from present fire code restrictions at the request of Fire Inspection Chief Milton Holland.

Another ordinance was amended because of a "gross typographical error" setting the tax rate for all rental beach equipment over 500 pieces at $1, instead of the $100 set in the printing. It was agreed that the intent was originally to set it at $1.

Readers Favor New Park

Those who answered last week's SUN SURVEY were almost unanimous in disagreeing with City Council on the subject of the proposed False Cape State Park south of Sandbridge.

City Council is on record against development of the park along the oceanfront from just below the National Game Reserve to the North Carolina Line, although the State has already bought about one-quarter of the land needed.

Council has disapproved because of the lack of additional beach property now available for commercial and residential use. But 91 per cent of those who answered said "Yes" to the question, "Should the state of Virginia be allowed to proceed with plans to develop the valuable oceanfront area of False Cape south of Sandbridge as a state park instead of allowing it to be developed by private landowners for residential and commercial use?" The other nine per cent said "No."

While the public opinion survey does not profess to represent the thinking of all the residents of Virginia Beach, it does represent a cross section of those who took time to clip the survey and return it to us.

Your attention is called to this week's SUN SURVEY question also, which appears below in the box at the lower left corner of this page.

Each week a new question will appear and the results will be published the following week. The questions will be timely, and the more answers we receive the more responsible the opinion.

SUN SURVEY

QUESTION: Should financial cuts be made in the space program appropriations as is now being strongly hinted by the Nixon Administration? Your comments would also be appreciated.

Commission Meets-Finally

The Virginia Beach Planning Commission met Tuesday for the first time in two months. There were new faces at the meeting--T. E. Barrow, head of the city's new Advance Planning Section, and William Clives, newly-elected Planning Commission member--as well as the re-instated members of the original 15-member commission.

Besides having a docket of more than 50 items, the Commission was confronted with a number of residents who were opposed to items being heard. The largest group were residents of Chesapeake Colony who objected to applications by F. Wayne McLeskey Jr. for change of zoning and use permits to construct 82 townhouses on each side of Chesapeake Trail. The applications were deferred for 30 days, even though the residents voiced the opinion that they would not be able to reach a compromise with McLeskey.

Residents of the Chesapeake Beach area were there to be heard in opposition to an application of Robert M. Brown for a change of zoning from Residence Duplex District 2 to Limited Commercial District 3 and a use permit to operate an automobile parking lot on property located on the southwest corner of Lookout Road and Pentress Avenue, on the north side of Guam Avenue in Chesapeake Shores. The application was denied.

An application of Virginia Beach Aviation Sales, Ltd. for change of zoning and a use permit for an airport and landing field and general aviation facilities was denied because of improper filing. The property is located on the south side of Holland Road in the Larkspur area.

The application was considered improperly filed since part of the property is owned by S.W. Reasor, and Reasor told the Commission he was not a party to the application filing.

An application by Sentry Dogs, Inc., for a change of zoning and a use permit to operate a dog kennel on property located in the Pungo Airfield area was opposed by 65 residents in the area. The application was denied.

Application of Union Mission Children's Home, Inc. for a use permit to construct and operate a children's home on property in the Court House area was denied. The application had been deferred in the Dec. 10 Commission hearing.

The Commission approved an application of Associated Properties, Inc. for a change of zoning and use permit to construct 176 apartment units on property located on the east side of Blindneck Road, north of Old Virginia Beach Road. This property is in the Woodland area.

Application of Nationwide Nursing Homes, Inc. for a use permit for a nursing home was approved after a split five to six vote by the Commission. The nursing home will be located on property in the area of the General Hospital of Virginia Beach. (See "Planning," p. 2)

The City Makes Its Move

Moving day is here for city employees...at last. When they leave for home Friday afternoon, many will report to their new offices in the long-awaited administration building on Monday.

The grounds around the building and the street in front are not yet finished, and some parts of the interior remain uncompleted, but essentially the Colonial showplace that is supposed to serve the centralized municipal needs for about a half-century is completed and ready for occupancy. City employees are so eager to get into the building that the fact that they are months behind schedule because of strikes, equipment and material shortages, bad weather and a multitude of other problems doesn't really seem that important.

All week those on the move from a number of locations have been packing and tagging the furniture, equipment and records to be moved. The movers supposedly will pick it all up and move it, according to the tags, to the exact spot, color-coded in the new building.

Operation of the major offices of the city government then depends on the efficiency of the contract mover and to the General Services Dept. officials who are coordinating it all. Monday afternoon at 2 p.m., an informal dedication service will be held at the new building, according to City Manager Roger Scott. A formal dedication and tours of the entire municipal complex will follow in the spring.

The new City Council chamber, ironically, will not be finished in time for the next meeting on Feb. 24, but is expected to be completed by the end of March.

Record School Budget

It's Up to Council Now

"The burden has shifted." With these words J. W. Buffington, School Board chairman, adjourned the special budget meeting of the School Board Monday and left the budget, literally, in the hands of City Manager Roger Scott, who had walked into the meeting. The record-size budget, approved by the School Board, must now be approved by City Council.

Although the proposed budget of $23,795,378 for the fiscal year beginning July 1 is $5,043,378 more than the 1968-69 budget, the local taxpayer is only expected to make up $3,041,005 of this. The rest is expected from state and federal increases. While $3 million is a sizeable increase, the population of the city is also showing a steady increase--roughly 1,000 persons a month. They will share the burden too.

One of the main reasons for the increased budget, according to School Supt. E. F. Brickell, is the increase in the number of schools and the 200 new teachers who will be needed to staff them. Teachers will also be needed at Windsor Oaks Elementary School which is now occupied by King's Grant students.

The 200 new teachers will cost $1 1/2 million. In addition about 30 administrative and supervisory appointments will be submitted to the school board.

Teachers asked for and got a $500 salary raise. Beginning teachers will start at $6,500 with a bachelor's degree leading up to a high of $10,270 after 14 years. The Virginia Beach Education Association had requested that the maximum be raised to $10,400 in 11 years. Teachers with master's degrees will reach a maximum of $10,985 in 14 years instead of the $12,610 requested by V.B.E.A.

In a statement Brickell noted, "While overall budget increases approach 27%, if we could subtract from the increase those monies made necessary by our growth, the overall increase would be some 9% not at all out of line in a time when the cost of living index rises by 5% per annum. We anticipate some 2,000 to 2,500 additional students next year, and, again in this amazingly simple fact of growth makes necessary the bulk of requested increases in the budget."

With the increase in schools and students comes another very important increase--buses. The school system will need 20 additional buses plus 20 replacement buses plus bus drivers. Pupil transportation is budgeted at $940,000.

A new item on the budget is $150,000 to purchase school sites. Until this budget the School Board has had to request funds from City Council for sites.

Another $120,000 is allocated for library books to meet the standard of six books per child as set by the Southern Association of Colleges and Secondary Schools. The minimum will be increased one book per child per year until 1973 when 10 per student will be required.

Of the total budget, which includes regular, adult and summer classes, $10,490,894 is anticipated from state funds and $2,681,000 in federal funds. Of the federal funds, $2,427,000 is expected from "impact" funds under Public Law 874, which are paid to school districts which educate children whose

Invasion Likely to Return

Residents of Thoroughgood turned out in force Monday for the City Council meeting. They filled the Council chamber, spilled into the halls, lined the stairwells and stood in the corridors below. Some couldn't even get in the building and stood outside in the windy, cold afternoon.

The several hundred residents were there with petitions and requests galore. They represented the more than 600 homes in the exclusive, restricted neighborhood. They came to protest a small shopping center at the entrance of Thoroughgood on Pleasure House Road. The Thoroughgood Corp., which developed the area, has had proper zoning for such a center since before the first home went up there in 1955. Many of the residents, however, said they had been told that the area inside the gates would be left as is or that it had been implied that the wooded area would remain as a natural buffer between the road and homes. They all admitted there was nothing written on the subject.

The developers now have tentative plans to build a small Colonial type shopping center, in keeping with the atmosphere of the area, to include a few small shops and professional offices. No store which would generate a great deal of traffic is planned, although the residents objected to the increased traffic.

Attorney Morris Fine, who represented the residents, asked the city to rezone the land for recreational purposes or for residences. He called this "radical surgery."

He was followed by a number of irate residents, each who protested the center, and whose short speech was met with a burst of applause and the sound of the Mayor's gavel in a vain attempt to hold order.

City Attorney Harry Marshall,

Dredging Permit Issued

On Jan. 17, 1968, the City of Virginia Beach was issued an Army Department permit to dredge approximately 30,000 cubic yards in the Western Branch of Lynnhaven River, thereby providing a channel from Lynnhaven Bay to Witchduck Point.

The City has now applied for a permit which would authorize dredging to extend the channel about 4,000 feet southward to the vicinity of Michaelwood. This would involve the removal of about 15,000 cubic yards of material by hydraulic method, the material being pumped into disposal areas located on the adjacent shore.

If there are objections to the proposed work, the reasons therefore should be clearly stated in writing to the District Engineer, and should reach this office not later than March 6. The address is: Norfolk District, Corps of Engineers; Fort Norfolk; 803 Front St. Norfolk, Va. 23510.

at the request of Bayside Councilman Larry Marshall, told Council that if the City Council rezoned the land without the application of the owner, this substantially reducing its value, he felt the city could be opening the door to a costly lawsuit he thought the city would lose.

Fine countered and said this had been done in Norfolk with no recourse. Council then deferred action for two weeks to study the matter and its ramifications. The residents of Thoroughgood all promised they'd be back.

Permits Fall Below Last Year

Building permits issued in Virginia Beach in January 1969 fell about a half million dollars below January 1968, but there are indications that 1969 could surpass ahead of the near record year in the coming months.

This estimate is based on the large number of already approved apartment, townhouse and single-family residences set for construction and the large number still under consideration by the City Planning Commission and City Council.

Building permits issued in January were valued at $3,560,835. The January 1968 total was $4,003,504. A total of 211 permits were issued during the month this year, while 236 were issued last January.

Single family residences amounted to $2,289,151 in January 1969, while apartments and townhouses totaled only $160,059. New commercial building and additions to existing commercial structures totaled $726,320.

Until December of 1968 it appeared that the year would set a new record for the city, but receipts fell a few hundred thousand dollars short of the earlier mark set in 1966. Official predictions all year were that the record would be topped.

No one is making such rash predictions for 1969 yet because of the change in the Administration in Washington, among other variables, but they do say the future of the construction business in Virginia Beach for 1969 looks "very bright."

It looks quiet now, but wait until Monday. That's the day the new city administration building will be inhabited by city employees. The moving takes place this weekend.

Seniors Try New Course

Recently a small band of stalwart seniors embarked on a long, hard journey. No ordinary trip was this, but a pilot program at First Colonial High School for college bound seniors interested in improving their speed and comprehension in reading. The course is voluntary and no grade or credit is given. The only pre-requisite is a desire to improve in reading. The students work twice a week during their study hall.

Using a machine called a controlled reader and correlated filmstrips, the class watches while the sentences are flashed across the movie screen. A moving shutter prevents regression and better reading habits are formed. With no chance to look back, students learn to focus their attention and develop the habit of concentrating while reading.

The machine can be set to go as slow as 30 or 40 words a minute or as fast as 800 depending on ability of group and difficulty of material.

There are 25 articles accompanied by study cards which give vocabulary and comprehension exercises. There are from seven to ten new vocabulary words and ten comprehension questions for each article. The students use a graph to chart their progress.

Interest in the program is running high, and another group will start the program on Feb. 11. The class is taught by Mrs. Martha Huddleston, the corrective reading teacher.

Schools

parents work at tax-free bases. However, for years they have been a choice target for budget cuts. It was only after a campaign was successfully waged by Sen. William B. Spong last year that ex-Pres. Lyndon Johnson finally released impact funds for this area in October.

According to Brickell, "Every member of the School Board and every member of the Council, perhaps most of the members of our community, are familiar with this fund, and are equally familiar with the constant battle that is conducted year by year in order to continue receiving these funds. Already lines have been drawn for next year's struggle, and I believe it advisable to remind all concerned that one day, sooner or later, and hopefully later than sooner, we may well have to learn to live without these funds."

Breakfast Highlights Week

The breakfast will be held at the Americana on Feb. 21 at 8 a.m. Rev. Coworth Lewis, Rector, Bruton Parrish in Williamsburg, will be the speaker.

The Agency also announced the promotion of Richard D. Harman to Media Director and the promotion of Miss Susan Giglio to Assistant Media Director.

Prior to her appointment, Mrs. Mulford was Media Director for the Agency.

Succeeding her as Media Director will be Richard K. Harman, of Virginia Beach, who has been Assistant Media Director for two years. ## Candidate for some weeks following speculation that he might be a candidate but made it final this week.

In his statement, Brydges said, "Many years ago I made a covenant with my family that I would never seek a political office. In honoring that commitment over the years, I have come to realize the luxury of, and have become hopelessly addicted to, the privacy and independence that a nonpublic life affords."

An objection to approving the application at this time was made by Patrick L. Standing, city planning director. Standing said the land could be important in the study to be made by the city planning department of the First Colonial Road area.

Deferred for 30 days because of the land use study to be made on the First Colonial Road area was an application by Murray Walizer and Richard M. Walizer for a change of zoning and a use permit in the area of General Hospital of Virginia Beach. The application was for 256 apartments and townhouses which will be rented for $150-$250 a month. There were two civic leagues from Alantone, as well as the First Colonial Civic League objecting to the application.

An application by Morgan and Sons for a change of zoning from Agricultural District to Limited Commercial District 3 on property in the Pungo Airfield area was deferred to filing a "loop-hole". The application was to prepare the way for construction of a 24,000 square foot building to be used as a wood-working shop.

Morgan has such a shop there now which he can run without the zone change. The zoning is required for construction of a building over 12,000 square feet in size. Standing said it is unfortunate that under the present restrictions a family business such as Morgan has cannot be run without zoning changes. The Commission decided the matter needed to be looked into further before any decision was made on the application.

Certified of appreciation were presented to ex-commission members who were present at the meeting. Those receiving the certificates were H.B. Eichelberger and Elmer Meeks.

Physicians To Speak

Physicians from the Medical College of Virginia, health sciences division of Virginia Commonwealth University, will lecture and present conferences this month at 10 affiliated hospitals in Tidewater, Northern and Southwestern Virginia, including the General Hospital of Virginia Beach.

The lecture-conference program by MCV faculty members is part of the College's continuing education program for Virginia practicing physicians.

On Feb. 18, Dr. Russell E. Randall Jr., professor of medicine and chairman of the division of renal disease, will speak on "Diagnosis and Management of Acute Renal Failure" at the General Hospital of Virginia Beach.

Man Found Not Guilty

Isaac Lee Harding has been found not guilty of taking part in the armed robbery of the Virginia Beach Grocery on First Colonial Road last May. A Circuit Court jury cleared 30-year-old Harding of the charge when a prosecution witness, Langhorn E. Brown, changed his story. Brown, of Chesapeake, who implicated Harding in the crime, a third suspect, Cleveland McKinley Davis, escaped from the City Jail last August while awaiting trial on the charges and is still at large. The car in which three men reportedly fled the robbery scene was wrecked on Shore Drive during a high-speed chase by police cars. Harding's arrest followed police establishing his ownership of the getaway car. During the Circuit Court proceedings, which cleared Harding, Brown said he had borrowed Harding's car prior to the robbery.

Brown Sentenced

Circuit Court Judge George W. Vahos has sentenced Langhorn Edward Brown to 25 years in prison for his part in the robbery of Virginia Beach Grocery on First Colonial Road last May 16. Brown, 28, of Waters Road, Chesapeake, received sentences of 25 years on each of three armed robbery convictions, and additional one year sentences on two petit larceny convictions. However the sentences will run concurrently thus giving Brown a total sentence of 25 years in prison.

Police Hunt 3 More

A Municipal Court hearing is scheduled for Feb. 24 for Gerald A. Cooper who has been charged with the robbery last June of the jewelry department of the Miller & Rhodes store in Pembroke Mall. Officials said 25-year-old Cooper, formerly of Plaza Lane in Virginia Beach, was apprehended in Atlanta, Ga. Three men, all reportedly armed, held a number of customers and employees at gunpoint while one of the men broke into a show case taking some $35,000 worth of jewelry. One of those "held at bay" during the robbery was police officer Sgt. K. J. Lagrotta, who was off duty and working as a store security guard. Lagrotta pursued the men out of the store and fired several shots as they fled in a waiting auto. Police are still searching for two men who took part in the robbery and a fourth who drove the getaway car.

Navy Chief Hospital Corpsman Benjamin W. Margot has been awarded the Navy Commendation Medal for service with the Third Marine Division in Vietnam.

Cmdr. F. F. Johnson, Commanding Officer, Flag Administrative Unit, Atlantic Fleet Headquarters, presented the medal to Chief Petty Officer Margot in ceremonies at the Headquarters Jan. 30.

Margot was cited for his "resourcefulness and ingenuity" while serving as Medical Chief of the First Amphibian Tractor Battalion from August, 1967 to August, 1968. According to the citation, "...he converted an unserviceable amphibian tractor into an excellent facility which provided a shelter for treatment of casualties. regarded his own safety in order to assist men wounded during enemy artillery attacks. On Feb. 21, after a hostile artillery round impacted in an ammunition dump, he unhesitatingly boarded a medical evacuation tractor and proceeded through an area containing exploding ordnance in order to administer first aid to a severely wounded Marine. While waiting for the arrival of an evacuation helicopter, Chief Petty Officer Margot steadfastly remained with his patient, administering mouth-to-mouth resuscitation on three occasions when the man ceased breathing."

The Rise in Traffic Deaths

In the first few weeks of 1969 Virginia Beach has set a new record for traffic deaths. That record is not one to be proud of, but all indications are that the terrible record was reached not through any one cause or any group of causes and in spite of major efforts to keep this from happening.

There is little similarity in the fatal crashes. Speed has been a factor in some, but not in all. Reckless driving has had a hand in many, but pure carelessness and inability to handle the dangerous weapon an automobile is have been highly responsible also. Drinking, poor roads or road conditions have played little or no part in the fatalities.

But we cannot dismiss these deaths as flukes, following a year when Virginia Beach set a new record for reduction of fatalities. Three persons died in one recent accident alone, and a fourth person in that wreck is still gravely ill. It was an auto-school-bus crash, and the occupants of the car never had a chance after an apparent mis-cue at the wheel of the car.

Our police department and highway safety officials have examined the circumstances of the fatal accidents closely and have said that even if they were right at the spot, the deaths could not have been prevented. They can only do so much in traffic law enforcement, the building of better roads and the elimination of dangerous conditions. The rest is up to all of us as drivers.

We are the only ones that can prevent this horrible record from reaching new heights.

Tuition Grants C'est la Vie

Barring any further legal attempts to prolong the death rattles of state tuition grants, this exercise in futility doomed from inception is about over. The purpose behind the grants originally was a dodge. That purpose was cleaned up a little over the years, but the aura of the segregationist still clung to them, with reason or not.

Certainly the cancelling of the grants will hurt some private schools in varying degrees, but the court abolition was not unexpected. It marks an end to an embarrassing period in Virginia history when massive resistance was in vogue. We have progressed too far beyond that now, and times have changed for the better.

We hold no malice toward those who took advantage of the availability of the grants. But let us only hope that there will not be too much bitterness among those who sought vainly to hold the grants in the new state Constitution and among those who have not learned to live in a modern world. Let us accept the fact that the grants are gone. C'est la vie.

Important Week and Month

This is an important time in Virginia Beach. February is Heart Month. This week is Brotherhood Week, as well as National Crime Prevention Week.

Obviously the significance of heart month is well-known. The purpose of the observance is continued education of the public against the dangers of heart disease, how to recognize the symptoms and what to do to prevent heart trouble. That prevention knowledge has come through research made possible by contributions of all of us over the years. Heart disease is still a major killer and the battle is not over. We are all called upon again this month to help again, and help we must.

Nothing could be more important to the future of the world than brotherhood. During Brotherhood week, sponsored by the National Council of Christians and Jews, we can do no more than to call that fact to the attention of all. Brotherhood should be a common practice observed 52 weeks of every year. Unfortunately it is not, and therefore it is still necessary to discuss the subject at length during Brotherhood week in the hope that we can rededicate ourselves to the important principles of coexistence.

National Crime Prevention Week sponsored by the Exchange Clubs is also of prime importance in a society wracked by increasing lawlessness. The slogan this year is "Be partners in crime prevention." It is up to all of us to aid our law enforcement agencies in the control of crime and to help educate the young and wayward. There is really only one way to reduce the shocking crime rate, and that is through prevention before it can happen.

The work of all the organizations which make these observances possible and the work of all the individuals who make the organizations possible are to be commended by all of us in Virginia Beach. Without those dedicated to strong principles we cannot succeed in suppression of crime, prejudice or disease.

A. B. Crews

Virginia Beach has lost a true friend with the untimely death of A. B. Crews. Never was there a man who boosted and defended this city so much and so often.

His untiring civic work, including the presidency of the Chamber of Commerce, his work on numerous Chamber projects and committees and his membership on the city Advertising Board, will be missed.

The dedication of people like A. B. Crews has been an important factor in the growth and fine reputation of Virginia Beach. His death brings a void that cannot be filled.

Supports Resolution

Editor: VIRGINIA BEACH SUN:

Sen. J. William Fulbright, Democrat of Arkansas, has introduced this resolution:

"That it is the sense of the Senate that, under any circumstances which may arise in the future pertaining to situations in which the United States is not already involved, the commitment of the Armed Forces of the United States to hostilities on foreign territory for any purpose other than to repel an attack on the U. S. or to protect U. S. citizens or property properly will result from a decision made in accordance with constitutional processes, which in addition to appropriate action, require affirmative action by Congress specially intended to give rise to such commitment."

This should mean that no war of any description should be entered into as a result of a presidential whim of the moment. I sincerely hope our Senators and Congressmen will support this resolution. The Liberals and Internationalists have involved us in one disastrous overseas war after another for more than fifty years through the pretext of keeping the American people thinking it is for the security and interest of our country.

We have armed both sides in the Middle East, alienated the Arabs; thus giving the Soviet Union control over most of the area and entrance into the Mediterranean Sea, which has been Russia's goal for many years. They have all but isolated us from the Mid-East, as there is no longer a secure supply route.

George Washington was right in stating that getting into foreign wars is a serious business and should not be left up to one man.

Why Not Protest?

Since the news about the Pueblo incident has been published and the shameful way our men were treated, I was wondering why our government has not filed a protest. I have seen no indication in any paper, as to any protest being made.

Special Report

Home of Candidates

The jockeying continues in the gubernatorial race. Most of the interest this week has not been in the top spot necessarily on either the Democratic or Republican side.

From Norfolk came another feeler from State Sen. Edward Breeden who said his name had been mentioned prominently for the job of governor. But he says he is more interested at present in achieving some sort of harmony and a consensus since there will definitely be a "hard-fought" three-way fight for the top spot in the Democratic Party.

He seemed to set his theme of possible candidacy when he pointed out that the new presiding officer of the State Senate should be committed to carrying forward the progress made during the administration of Gov. Mills E. Godwin, Jr.

Norfolk already has the lion's share of candidates and almost-candidates in the Democratic fray. State Sen. Henry Howell is seeking the gubernatorial nod as a liberal "straight ticket" Democrat against William Battle, Charlottesville's moderate and Lt. Gov. Fred G. Pollard, moderate-conservative.

Also Del. Stanley Walker of Norfolk has been mentioned on numerous occasions as a possible candidate for the No. 2 spot. He admitted he has been giving some consideration to the race but has made no announcement. A major contender for that job is expected to be State Sen. Sargent Reynolds of Richmond.

For attorney general, Norfolk is also in the running. Del. Bernard Levin was an early entrant into the fray.

It is somewhat odd that the candidates are not yet forming tickets. Most say they will run as independents and let the chips fall where they may. In the primary then it is possible, although highly unlikely, that Norfolk could grab off all three spots on the Democratic ticket. That would surely make the GOP smile even more, in this day of balanced tickets, geographically and otherwise.

Meanwhile the GOP has seen one possible entrant from Norfolk step tentatively into the field also, possibly running for lieutenant governor. This possibility came on the heels of the announcement by Virginia Beach attorney Richard Brydges that he was not interested in running. His possible candidacy had been mentioned prominently for some time and was strengthened lately after meetings of top Republicans.

There still seems to be little doubt that the Republican nod for the top spot on the ticket will go to A. Linwood Holton if he wants it, and he acts like he wants it. In this matter, at least, the GOP of Virginia is a lot more agreed than the Democrats.

The actual fireworks of the campaign have not really begun. The Democratic gubernatorial candidates are taking little jabs at each other as they travel about the state shaking hands and smiling, but the verbal attacks that are sure to follow seem to be slow in coming.

It could be that they are waiting to hear from T. Marshall Hahn at the Jefferson-Jackson Day dinner in Richmond shortly. He is supposed to let it be known then what his intentions are. The best guess now is that he will not seek the nomination because so many are already committed to so many others.

The filing date for the July primary elections falls in early April. That still leaves almost two months for political maneuvering and lining up support and possibly a ticket or two. No doubt the crowded field of candidates is not yet full. More are most assuredly on the way.

Then there will surely follow a three months to remember in Virginia as those "independents" go after each other. With little hope for a real loyalty oath for Democrats with some teeth in it ahead, there is only speculation concerning what can happen in November when the will of all the people of Virginia is finally known.

Things look bright for the GOP, but anyone willing to concede the state to the Republican party in the fall had best not underestimate his opponents.

SPOTS

By H. Joseph Lowenthal, Jr.

"I don't want to kiss him," said the three-year-old. "He smells."

"But he loves you so much," said his mother. "See how he's grinning at you with his two teeth. You don't want to make him cry, do you?"

"No, but he still smells, and I don't want to touch him," the little imp said.

"He only smells of dried milk, applesauce and carrots and peas," said her father. "And I don't blame you. I don't want to get too close to him either. He smells."

"You're just making it worse," she said. "I'm trying to get her to love her baby brother."

Kiss Your Baby Brother

"Look at that face covered with grease and chocolate cookie crumbs," he pointed out. "Let's see you give him a big smooch right on that gritty cheek."

"Come to think of it, you can kiss your brother later," she said to the relieved child. "Incidentally where's your sister?"

"She's hiding because she thought she might have to kiss him too," said the little one. "Can I come out now?" asked the big one.

"Yes," said their father. "The coast is clear. Your mother is picking him up with forceps. After he's washed a little he'll look better and smell better too."

"I wasn't messy like that when I was a baby, was I?" asked the five-year-old.

"No, of course not," said her mother. "You just liked to rub your hands in chocolate pudding and smear it on your face, arms and clothes."

The three-year-old laughed. "Don't laugh," said her father. "You were really the impossible one. You always did have a good arm on you. Whatever you couldn't smear in your hair, you threw across the room." The five-year-old laughed.

"Now you stop that," said the little one to the big one as she stood three inches away, staring angrily in her face. "She's going to hit me," said the big one to her father as she prepared to cry.

"If she does, hit her back," he said.

"Don't let her hit me," said the little one, as she prepared to cry.

"All right. That's enough," he said. "Now cut it out. Besides your mother washed your brother's face. See how clean he looks."

"He still smells," said the little one.

"How can you smell him from ten feet away?" asked their mother.

"I can," she said. "Anyway I remember what he smells like."

"I'll kiss him now. See?" the big one said sarcastically as she gave him a big sloppy kiss.

He smiled. "Why doesn't he smile at me?" whined the little one. "I love him too."

"Maybe it's because you wouldn't kiss him," said their father. She reluctantly began to kiss him tentatively. For some reason, probably totally unrelated, he began to cry.

"He doesn't love me," said the little one as she started to cry. The big one laughed. "Make her stop laughing at me."

"Stop laughing at her," said their mother as she tried to quiet the baby.

"After all," explained their father. "He's not really responsible for all he does. He's just a baby."

"He'll smell better and act better too soon," said the little one. "Aren't you glad we grew up?" The big one nodded.

As the clouds of war darkened in Asia and Europe America was more determined than ever to keep out of it.

There was a strong isolationist sentiment in the land as was evidenced by the difficulty in securing the passage of the Lend-Lease Act and the repeal of the arms embargo. Quietly, America began preparing for the ugly realities clearly visible beyond the horizon.

On Dec. 7, 1941, Japan bombed the naval and military installations at Pearl Harbor by a surprise attack. This was followed by attacks on Guam, Wake Island, the Philippines and other American bases in the Pacific, and upon British Hong Kong and Malaya.

On Monday, Dec. 8, 1941, President Roosevelt appeared before Congress and asked for a declaration of war on Japan. On Thursday, Dec. 11, 1941, Congress declared war on Germany and Italy. World War II had begun.

At Anzio, Normandy, Bastogne, St. Lo, Guadalcanal, Iwo Jima, Corregidor, Bougainville, Kwajalein, the Marshalls and other places too numerous to mention; on the land, sea and air, a United America fought the well-defined evils of Hirohito and Hitler, in a glorious and valiant manner. The American forces were convinced that they represented the greatest, most powerful and invincible country on earth.

On June 12, 1944 an explosion hit the southern part of England that was not fired from a gun or dropped from an airplane. It was a V-1 missile. The era of guided missiles had arrived.

In July, 1944, an American soldier standing in an apple field in Normandy saw a German fighter plane fly overhead and swore it had no propellers. He was correct, the jet age had arrived.

As the victorious western armies swept across Europe, the immensity of the evil they were fighting became clearly evident as such places as Buchenwald and Auschwitz. On April 25, 1945 at 4:40 p.m. patrols of the United States 273rd Infantry Regiment (69th Division, 5th Corps) met elements of the Russian 58th Guards Division on the Elbe River.

The thousand year Third Reich was coming to an early end. On May 7, 1945, Col. Gen. Alfred Jodl in a modest brick building in Reims, France, signed the unconditional surrender. The terms were to become effective at midnight 8 - 9 May, 1945. The war in Europe was over.

On Aug. 6, 1945 an American B-29 dropped an atomic bomb on Hiroshima and on Aug. 9, a second atomic bomb was dropped on Nagasaki. The atomic era had arrived. Hiroshima suffered 306,545 casualties. On Sept. 2, 1945, at 9:08 a.m. Japan surrendered.

The victory came at a terrible price. American casualties totaled over 1,120,000 of which 433,335 were killed or missing in action. America spent $317,600,000,000 for materials alone as its factories and blast furnaces supplied many of the armies of the free world.

An immediate cry rang throughout the land to bring the boys home. As American soldiers were packing their belongings in Europe, the Germans were suggesting that within five years the United States would be fighting the communists. Their superior officers brushed this talk aside as being nothing but German propaganda.

Meanwhile, in America serious race riots had occurred in Detroit and elsewhere and even minor skirmishes occurred between segregated American soldiers in Europe. These two problems were destined to test American resolves never before in the generation to come.

Roger Adams Is a Lucky Boy

By Yatta Jones

Roger Adams is a bright, fun-loving eight-and-a-half-year-old boy—much like your son, or nephew, or brother or grandson. But Roger is not as active right now as he soon will be; he underwent open-heart surgery the first of December and it will be about three more months before Roger can resume a normal activity schedule.

Still, Roger is a lucky little boy. He is lucky, first of all, to have an understanding and knowledgeable family. There are two children in the William L. Adams family: Roger and his 18-year-old brother, Russell. The Adamses have been aware of Roger's heart defects since he was four and a half months old. They seem to have a composed, matter-of-fact attitude toward the whole situation.

The home atmosphere has been good for Roger; he is eager to talk about his trip to the hospital and his heart. Every phase of his condition has been thoroughly discussed with him. He describes part of the operation, which involved putting a teflon patch over a hole the size of a quarter between the ventricles of his heart as "just like building a plug... it didn't take long."

Roger's pediatrician discovered a heart murmur when Roger had his six weeks check-up. At that time the doctor thought the hole in Roger's heart would close up, as some infant heart murmurs do. Roger's trouble, however, was much more serious.

By subsequent examinations, it was found that Roger had two defects—a hole between his heart ventricles as well as an obstruction in the outlet of the right ventricle. Even this double difficulty was a lucky break for Roger, for the two defects counter-balanced each other and prevented him from having trouble he might otherwise have encountered.

Roger was born in August of 1960. In January of 1961 a team of doctors from University Hospital in Charlottesville, Virginia began making periodic trips to Kings Daughters Hospital in Norfolk to check children in the area with known heart trouble.

Again Roger was lucky because he was able to receive special attention without having to travel a great distance. When he was 17-months-old Roger had his heart catheterized at Charlottesville. By the time he needed the same attention, when he was seven, the catheterization was done at Kings Daughters Hospital by Dr. Douglas Moore.

Many children with Roger's condition are blue—their lips and fingernails in particular. The condition causes them to become "breathless" with the least amount of activity. They have fainting spells, convulsions and they tend to sit in a squatting position. These symptoms are caused by the obstruction which Roger had. Without the operation Roger would have experienced these difficulties sooner or later because the obstruction was becoming tighter. The chances of the operation being a success were much greater if the operation were performed before those troubles started. Without the operation Roger would have been bedridden by the time he was 20 years old.

The operation was first scheduled for October, but because of a cold Roger had contracted the operation was delayed until December. The operation was performed by Dr. Norman Thomson at Norfolk General Hospital. Luck had stepped in again; had Roger needed the operation prior to 1967 he would have had to go to Charlottesville.

Two and a half weeks in the hospital, which is how long Roger was there, is a lifetime for a little boy. If you were to ask him what he did while he was there, he would reply, "I just sat there and laid there." That is not quite the whole story, though. According to Roger's parents he was treated extremely well.

Roger was in the cardio-vascular intensive care ward where he had at least two attendants all of the time. Within 24 hours after the operation he was able to sit up in bed and begin drinking the liquid diet he was on at first. As soon as he could eat solid food, and the hospital staff found out that he liked peanut butter and jelly sandwiches, they sent out to Kings Daughters hospital for peanut butter just for Roger.

Roger's luck was with him for he had little pain with the operation. Dr. Thomson said that he had seen children who suffered more pain with tonsillectomies. The worst part of the hospital stay for Roger was probably the number of injections he received. His parents estimated the number at 31. "Roger's father" praises Roger's behavior. "He was a real fine patient...he didn't dread it too bad...he'd take a shot and not even flinch."

Roger had a few words to add to this description, however. "One time I did...they got a big metal one (hypodermic needle) and went whoosh...I moved a little bit, but not too much."

The day that Roger came home from the hospital was a big one, particularly for his mother. It was the 19th of December, her birthday. "I never had too much of a birthday celebration—it's so close to Christmas—but that made up for everything," she said. When Roger first came home from the hospital he had to have a check-up every two weeks. Now he goes once a month.

Since Roger has been home from the hospital he has spent a lot of time building car models, watching T.V., and playing with his cat, Tiger. It takes five months after the operation before he can be released to a full activity schedule. This has been a little bit of a problem. According to his mother, "He thinks he's well now...it's hard to hold him back."

Two weeks ago Roger was allowed to begin riding his bicycle for ten minutes a day. He received a new bike for Christmas and it has been a strain on him to wait to ride it. The bike sat in the house until he was able to take it outside and ride.

Roger likes school and the many friends he has there. He attended Point O' View elementary school before his operation, but his family recently moved and now he goes to Pembroke Meadows. He started back to school about five weeks ago. Even though he has missed quite a bit of school he is not too far behind.

His heart condition has given Roger a certain status among his friends. Before the operation everyone wanted to see his heart; now they want to see the scar ("But don't let them," Roger says).

Like most little boys Roger thinks about what he wants to do when he grows up. And like most little boys he changes his mind quite often. At one time he wanted to be a doctor. He is not sure now. "I might do something wrong," he comments. The enormity of a doctor's responsibility is a real truth to Roger.

Roger has been a lucky little boy. He has had wonderful parents who were financially able to pay his medical expenses (so far the cost is $4500), he has had thorough and capable medical attention, from the hospital and Dr. Thomson (the Adams family think Dr. Thomson is one marvelous human being) and Roger himself has the attitude and personality to handle anything.

Studies of similar heart conditions and operations like Roger's show that he will probably be able to live a normal, active life. Others who have had open-heart surgery have proven this so far. They have had babies and played competitive football with no trouble. Many of the former patients have hearts in better condition than people who were born with normal hearts.

In talking to Roger you would think that the entire experience probably was a little bit below getting a new bicycle for Christmas and a little bit above getting a new car model, but don't let his sunny disposition fool you. It rates right where it should by anybody's standards. Recently while his mother was working around the house Roger walked up to her and thoughtfully said, "Mother, I'm going to remember all of this the rest of my life."

Foundation Would Be 1st of Kind

Funds are now being sought to build the first canine center in the United States on a site in Chesapeake.

Plans are now to break ground for the Johnny Davis Memorial on June 1. The late Johnny Davis was a dog breeder, owner, handler and judge who was founder or charter member of seven dog clubs in the Tidewater area.

The goal is $250,000 in the campaign being conducted nationally. The proposed building, expected to cost $150,000, will include special non-slip flooring, acoustics and lighting especially adapted for canine activity, spectator balcony, grooming area, foldback bleachers, meeting rooms, library and eight show rings. Local shows are presently held in the basement of the Golden Triangle, as there is no other space available.

The Foundation will not be just a show ring. It will be an information center, provide training classes, prepare literature on buying a dog, general care, the dog owner's responsibility to community and neighbors, local dog laws, etc. Other activities under consideration include tattooing clinics, rabies clinics and special free classes on dog care and training.

The site is at the interchange of Interstate 64 and Interstate 464 on a two-and-a-half acre corner.

New Play Is an 'Experience'

Wedgewood Theatre has produced more than a play in its current offering. "Summer-tree", as presented by the Toano repertory company is a total theatrical experience. It is possible to enjoy it and to feel profoundly about it without really totally understanding all the symbolism or identifying with the superficial story line.

The story itself is almost superfluous. It deals with a young, sensitive man, unable to find himself until it is too late. His death, the circumstances leading up to it, the feelings of others after his death, and how he haunts their memories comprise the thin story line woven by the young playwright, Ron Cowen. He is considered a spokesman for the protesting youth of today, and this play can be interpreted to tell the story of protest of the Vietnam war. The protest, however is not offensive.

Paul Iddings directs the play with a great deal of sensitivity also, and it comes off with all the symbolism there for the audience to feel and grasp.

The young man about whom the story is written is played admirably by Robert Hemminger, a promising young actor. His feeling for the role shows great depth and perception. Kyle Iddings, as the little boy in the play who represents the continuing life cycle, is excellent. His natural ability, coupled with an understanding so rare in one so young, make his portrayal a highlight of the play. Accolades must also go to Mackie, who gives such an intense performance to the characterization of the mother. Her many moods are letter perfect. Roby Brown is at first stiff as the father, but develops the many facets of his character nicely before the end.

Sherry Reid is delightfully young and attractive as the love of the boy's young life. And Larry L. Galister plays a number of different soldiers, each quite well.

The simple, symbolic setting and lighting add significance to the importance of the offering. The casual theatrologer, looking for simple entertainment without having to be challenged will not like this play. Everyone else will. HJL

VOT Program

Success Measured by Those Involved

By Yatta Jones

Last week we examined the background of the Vocational Office Training program at Princess Anne High School--how it is set up, how it works. This week we talked to the students and their employers to see how they evaluate the program.

One student, Jackie Melfa, is employed at a new car sales firm. Her duties there include electronic accounting and punch filing. She works about 20 hours a week. Jackie plans to go into data processing when she finishes school.

When asked which part of the program is most beneficial to her, Jackie replied, "I feel that the experience has helped very much...just doing it yourself...seeing how it is done...you don't realize how much there is to a job when you're on the other side of it."

Another student, Monica Fazio, works at a local travel agency, Travelhouse. Monica feels that the program has helped her to decide what she wants to do after she leaves Princess Anne. She says that she was not sure before, but now she knows she likes the business world.

Monica works only nine hours a week at Travelhouse, where she takes dictation. In addition to her job at Travelhouse, Monica works four or five hours a week filing and typing correspondence for a real estate firm. One benefit that Monica has gotten from her experience is the chance to work with adults. Monica says she had never worked much around adults before, but now she feels at ease.

Mrs. June White, the president-manager of Travelhouse, finds Monica a willing and capable worker. She says that Monica is doing something she already knows how to handle.

The VOT program as a whole is a good, flexible one in Mrs. White's estimation. She says it is "a very fine source for getting help." Mrs. White is certain that other employers would find it beneficial to them if they were to join it.

Judi Midgett works about 15 hours a week at Krispy Kreme Doughnut Co., where she performs general secretarial duties. Judi thinks the work experience itself is the most advantageous part of the program. "VOT has given me experience. I would have gone fresh out of high school and employers would have wanted someone who had experience."

Being able to work in a learning capacity has another advantage in Judi's opinion. She says that it has given her self-confidence--not just in her job, but in everything she does.

Judi likes her job and the people she works with, which seems to be a common response among the VOT students. She admits that she likes her work, a lot better than she ever thought she would. She likes it so well that she does not want to leave when the time comes.

Judi is the second VOT student who has worked at Krispy Kreme. The first VOT student worked there last year. They were so pleased with the results that Judi was hired to replace her. Miss Kathy Lewark, the bookkeeper at Krispy Kreme, has supervised both students. She says that the students are "...a wonderful help...the program has been a lifesaver."

I don't understand how I got along without it."

Miss Lewark feels that the girls are well-trained and very capable in performing their duties. There have been no problems at all. If there should be problems they would be taken care of immediately because of the way the program works. (See 'VOT' p. 7)

St. Valentine Had Little to Do with It

Cynical bachelors and little boys aren't the only ones who think Valentine's Day is for the birds -- even romantics thought so.

In fact, at one time nearly everyone believed that Feb. 14 was the day most birds mated. And though fact proved fancy false, the day stayed set aside--at least for lovebirds.

Though not exclusively,

Lighthearted loafers used Valentine's Day as a peaceful day to sleep. They took no chances that a common belief -- that the first person of the opposite sex you saw became your loved one for the year -- came true. No heartaches or aggravation for them.

Nor for the women, who like one 18th century lady, "lay in bed and shut my eyes all morning until he came to our house. I would not have seen another man for all the world." It would appear that these ladies made sure that Cupid didn't interfere with their year's selection.

That chance, however, became more and more risky each year, and finally women decided to substitute a safer custom to celebrate the day. In the late 1700's, sweethearts began penning and decorating cards, some so elegant and beautiful, they are virtually museum pieces today.

And since neither mail service nor envelopes existed, "captured" colonists delivered their tokens of love -- cards, candy, perfume -- in person.

The more well-to-do sent their cards by coach, though they double wrapped and sealed them with wax, so only their beloved could read the message.

Then with the invention of lithographs and woodcuts -- a boon to the inartistic competitors, but a burden to the mailman -- nearly everyone began sending valentines.

Researchers at Shulton have come up with these two amusing facts:

Cards were even tailored to men's specific professions. The undertaker, for instance, could send a card which said, "Let Chloe smile upon her lover, who will ne'er forsake her; Each day new charms she will discover, in her faithful undertaker."

Or the fruit grower could write his beloved that "Sweeter than an orange grove, is the charming maid I love, No grapes more luscious than your lips."

Lace-edged sentimental valentines also became popular.

Today, in addition to cards, flowers, candy and perfume have become common Valentine's Day gifts. According to department store surveys, items boxed in hearts, or shaped like Cupid also are popular.

Among the most common valentine candies are the tiny sugar hearts with inscriptions like "Be My Valentine" on them, and among the most popular colognes for women are those which combine the provocative with the romantic.

St. Valentine, however, who lent his name to the holiday, actually had little to do with it. Two Saint Valentines -- one a Roman priest and the other a bishop martyred in Rome about 270 -- had birthdays Feb. 14, and when the Christians tried to purify the Roman fertility festival Lupercalia, which also came in February, they changed the holiday's name to St. Valentine's day.

"Guess Who" or "Secret Admirer"?

Also form the Lupercalian celebrations came the custom of dropping valentines into a box for distribution. At one point in the Lupercalian festival, Romans drew women's names from a box, though authorities are not sure why.

Christians, however, copied the custom, though they substituted the names of saints. Today in classrooms throughout the country, children continue the tradition. Remember

But you probably don't remember a 19th century game called "Progressive Proposals", where young girls at Valentine's Day parties proposed to each boy in the room.

The boys rewarded the offers with either mittens or hands, the latter being an acceptance, the former a rejection. When the game was over the girl with the most hands won a prize, and the girl with the most mittens got "warm hands."

Let's Just Skip The Easter Parade

One of my neighbors had a very logical reaction, I guess, when she phoned Sunday and asked what I was doing, and I replied that I was making Easter dresses for the girls.

"But it isn't even Valentine's yet!"

The only trouble is that if I don't get started now, they'll never be finished by Easter. Like the pair of overalls I started for the seven-year-old when she was a baby. Her brother finally got to wear them three years later. At least I had sense enough to pick out blue instead of pink corduroy.

So what's the problem? Well, like my neighbor asked Sunday, "What in the world is going on around there?"

At that time the child that had answered the phone had first dropped the receiver on the floor. Then she had called her father to the phone instead of me. The stereo was going full blast, and the living room was full of kids screaming at the top of their lungs. It was a wet day, so our house wound up as "headquarters" for the neighborhood. What's three or four more on top of what we already have?

Before I could seriously begin work on the dresses I had to clear-off the sewing machine, which was buried under assorted clothes that needed mending plus a few that just hadn't quite made it to the dirty clothes closet. I found a skirt I had been looking for for weeks.

Then, rather than put everything back on the sewing machine, I decided to patch a few things before starting the dresses. Next my husband "found" a few items that "needed a little work" on them--like re-tailoring completely.

I did actually start one dress. But when I got to the zipper the thread kept breaking. By then I was getting disgusted, and besides, it was time to start supper. So my husband volunteered to get the machine straightened out.

While I was in the middle of mashing the potatoes, in he walks looking slightly sheepish. He had fixed the machine alright. Only in the process he had sewed the zipper not only to the back but to the front too.

Maybe I should have started the Easter dresses at Christmas--or Thanksgiving.

HERE COMES OLGA!

Saturday night at the American Legion Club dance at the Virginia Beach Rescue Squad took a while to enjoy themselves at a buffet and dance.

I for one was so glad to see these men together with their wives enjoying themselves. Surely if any people really deserve some pleasure these men do. Most of these men as a whole are seen by people of Virginia Beach only when they are rushing here or there to take someone to the hospital. Virginia Beach really owes these men more than they will ever be able to pay. The time these men spend in training and on duty, as you know is all volunteer.

The men who had the duty Saturday night came in for the buffet and left. Through the night every once in a while you would hear someone call one of the doctors.

Quite a few of these men and women I knew, but believe me trying to find out the names of the others if their wives were with them really got to be a joke. I would ask them their names and as so often happens at parties, they would give me some name like Agnew, Nixon or some known personality. Then when I would ask if their wives were with them, the answers would be, "I am not married; she is"—in fact anything to get me mixed up. One of these parties I am going to really give their names as they give them to me. I bet they will quit then because I will also give the comments as well.

While they stood around waiting for the buffet to be put on the table, I was able to just write a lot of the names as they came in: Mr. and Mrs. Talbot Dickson, Mr. and Mrs. Herman Casey, Mr. and Mrs. Butchie Clark, Slim Parker, Mr. and Mrs. Bill Phillips, Mr. and Mrs. Bud Coppedge (dispatcher for the rescue squad), Bill Holland also a dispatcher, for the squad, Ossie Wade, Mr. and Mrs. Frederick T. Twyman, Mr. and Mrs. William Blackburn, Mr. and Mrs. Marvin Owens, Mr. and Mrs. Wilmet Hines and Mr. and Mrs. Bunny Woolford.

The buffet ready, they all headed for the table and I don't blame them, for the food was most enticing. Starting from one end of the table to the other: potato salad, macaroni salad, carrot salad, tuna fish salad, crab apples and baked apples, rice, chicken Parmesan beef tips, scalloped beef, rock fish, cheese and corn souffle, ravioli, shrimp a la newburg, seafood balls and large roast of beef. For dessert rum cake, fruit jello, apple and pears. It seems that with such delicious looking food I could work up an appetite, but I don't seem to get hungry anymore.

While they were eating I picked up the rest of the names: Mr. and Mrs. Scott Taylor, Mr. and Mrs. John McChesney, Mr. and Mrs. A.M. Randolph, Mr. and Mrs. Joe Ewell, Mr. and Mrs. Stephen B. Salle, Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Anderson, Mr. and Mrs. John Dickerson, Mr. and Mrs. Bruce Murphy, Mr. and Mrs. Harvey Patterson and Mr. and Mrs. Slim Beasley. Slim was wearing the new turtle neck. Mrs. Beasley doesn't like the turtle neck, but it seems she was outvoted as to Slim wearing it by her four children. I too thought it was most becoming. In fact I wish men would really start wearing these new mod styles. They are like a lot of these women who are slow in taking to the new styles.

Al Runaldue and the band came in around 9 o'clock after dinner was finished and the music started. For a while I was afraid that no one was going to dance. They were just standing around talking. The women getting together here and there and the men standing around talking man talk. Finally when Mr. and Mrs. Herman Casey got up to dance the rest followed little by little. You know as a whole everyone hates to be the first couple on the floor. If you get up there first you might have room enough to dance but when you wait the floor gets crowded and you can't dance except on a dime.

Others seen were: Mr. and Mrs. Jerry Carpenter, Meade Stone, Jr., Miss Catherine Martin, Mr. and Mrs. Joe Hogan, Mr. and Mrs. John Frinder, Mr. and Mrs. Mac Jenkins, Mr. and Mrs. David Jones, Mr. and Mrs. Ray Meekins, Mr. and Mrs. James McDonald, Mr. and Mrs. Jake Branner, Mr. and Mrs. L. W. Whitehurst, Tommie Thompson, Joe Midgett, Mr. and Mrs. George Held, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Gallagher, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Liles, Mr. and Mrs. Taylor Johnson, Jr., Richard Tilghman, Miss Alice Creech, Mr. and Mrs. Oral Lambert, Mr. and Mrs. Bob Washburn, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Stallings, Mr. and Mrs. Glenn Causer and Mr. and Mrs. Ned Langhorne.

Next Week I will see you at the American Legion Club dance at Pembroke Mall.

Mrs. Mary Barber, the school coordinator, stops in regularly to see how Jodi is doing.

A special benefit of the program to the employer is the gratification he gets in helping the students to get started on a new phase in their lives. Miss Lewark expresses this feeling when she says, "It is real satisfying...when the girls come in they're excited over their first job."

Although the program is geared toward office training, some students find themselves working in other fields. Valerie Cross went to work for a local dentist in September. Since then he has started training her at the chair to assist him. Valerie thought at first she would not like the work at all, but now she says she "loves it." So well, in fact, that she is planning to be a dental hygienist.

Is the VOT program successful? It is very hard to measure success, but one of Mrs. Barber's closing remarks might answer this question. "Employers usually say, 'Pick me out a girl like the one I had last year!'"

Add pineapple chunks, bits of California prunes and coconut flakes to old-fashioned rice pudding or vanilla custard. Use kitchen scissors to snip prunes into bite-size pieces.

New Hairstyles Are Natural

The release of the new spring hairstyles during National Beauty Salon Week by the Official Hair Fashion Committee of the National Hairdressers Association, will bring a sigh of relief to the women of Virginia Beach.

The new look for spring is a natural unrestrained look, which is the answer to most women's wishes.

The hair is styled in soft undulating waves and curls contoured to the shape of the head and facial structure. There is a minimum of height with most of the movement relegated to the sides of the hair.

As women know, the side portion of our hairstyle is the most difficult part to keep neat during the week, but with proper shaping and a professional permanent wave, the new spring hairstyles are simply brushed into the natural hair growth pattern.

Color TV Tells All

"The use of color gives an x-ray picture of the soul," according to Dr. Max Leuschner of the Institute of Psycho-Diagnostic Medicine.

If you heighten the red tones, you exhibit self-confidence and physical vitality, he said. If you mute them, you're probably self-effacing. Intensifying the blue indicates tranquillity and impassivity. Turning up the yellow shows an optimistic personality. Preferring violet indicated neuroticism.

In other words, when adjusting the color TV set leads to family squabbles, there's no point in blaming color blindness or color insensitivity. It's a clash of personalities.

Homemakers Named

Three Virginia Beach girls have been named winners in the 1969 Betty Crocker Search for the American Homemaker of Tomorrow, an annual national competition with $110,000 in scholarship awards.

Local winners are Nancy Nelson Gray, Cox High School; Beverly Holbert, First Colonial High School, and Debra L. Troup, Princess Anne High School.

Each will receive a special Betty Crocker silver charm, and their papers will be entered with those of other school winners in the state competition for the title, State Homemaker of Tomorrow. The winner of this honor will be granted a $1,500 scholarship from General Mills, Inc., sponsor of the annual program. Her school will be awarded a complete set of Encyclopedia Britannica by Encyclopedia Britannica, Inc. The state runners-up will be granted $500 scholarships.

In April, the first-place winners from the 50 states and the District of Columbia, each accompanied by a school advisor, will be guests on an expense-paid tour of Washington, D.C., and Colonial Williamsburg, Va. The trip will culminate with the naming of the Betty Crocker All-American Homemaker of Tomorrow. Her scholarship will be raised to $5,000, with three runners-up being granted $4,000, $3,000 and $2,000 scholarships, respectively.

'Mom' Ministers to Inmates

By Leslie High

A soft spoken, unassuming lady has become a legend in her time through her humanitarian efforts to bring a little cheer into the lives of those who are confined to the City Jail of Virginia Beach.

Mrs. Mina Garrels, affectionately referred to as "Mom" by nearly everyone around the jail, each Sunday visits those in confinement. Her visits are in accordance with regulations permitting religious groups to call upon the inmates of the jail as she is affiliated with the Glad Tidings Church.

As she makes her rounds of the various cellblocks she is greeted with "Hello Mom, how are you?" and similar words of warm welcome. Each of the inmates openly tells her how he has been, and reports if anyone has been released or ill since her last visit or if anyone has just been placed in confinement and has requested that she visit him. She makes certain that she does!

A native of Holland, "Mom" places her age at 84 although she appears to be many years younger. She says she has been making regular visits to the City Jail for the past two decades, and those working at the jail said her Sunday visits have been taking place for as long as they can remember.

When asked why she continues her weekly visits, "Mom" smilingly replied "because I love these people. I don't care what they have done, I love all of them." Then with a very concerned, straightforward tone of voice adds, "There are no bad boys here. Perhaps they just did not have good upbringing," "Mom" apparently has an influence over those in confinement and they don't attempt to conceal it. As she chatted with one man Sunday, his cellmates pointed out he had had with the underprivileged and the misfortunate; she has been featured in "The Pentecostal Evangel", official magazine of the Assemblies of God; and she receives letters from persons she visited during their confinement even after they are released.

Grow Plants Under Lights

(Editor's note: Here is another in the series on home horticulture by Wesley P. Jenkins, Extension horticulturist at Virginia Tech.)

Now is the time to assemble a plant-growing setup with fluorescent lights in your basement. A relatively small unit will allow you to raise all the flower and vegetable plants you need, unless you have an especially large garden.

You may purchase a rack with three or four moveable shelves, which is attractive enough to be installed in a family room or enclosed porch. Or, you may hang one or more fixtures over a bench or table in the basement, or other suitable location.

The most common unit is a four-foot reflector with two 40-watt tubes. The four-foot length is more efficient than those which are two feet long because less light is given off near the ends of the tube.

Good light balance will be secured by using a daylight type and a soft white or natural tube in each fixture. Gro-Lux tubes give excellent light for plant growth and are preferred if you wish to secure these special tubes. They give off a pink glow which causes plant leaves to appear darker and pink flowers to look red. The fluorescent tubes should be located about six inches above the top of your plants.

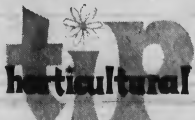

The basement is an ideal place for a fluorescent plant-growing setup. Water is usually available from a nearby outlet. The temperature may be more easily maintained at the cool level desired by plants than in the parts of the house where we live. The best temperature for most plants is 70 degrees Fahrenheit during the day and 60 degrees during the night.

A timeclock to turn the lights on and off will add to the cost of your installation, but is worth the expense. Your plants need about 16 to 18 hours of light each day. This may be controlled manually, but the job is much easier with a switch operated by a timeclock. Your plants will not grow as satisfactorily if the lights are on for 24 hours.

One very important advantage of having a plant-growing setup is that you can produce some of the new varieties which may not be available from your local garden center. These will allow you to select new high quality, disease-resistant varieties, which will more than repay you for your expense and effort.

Do not start your plants too early. Most flowers and vegetable seedlings will develop to an appropriate size in about six weeks. Rapidly growing species like cucumber, melons, pumpkin and squash will be large enough in about three weeks from planting.

Determine the time of planting by the average date of the last spring frost in your area and the hardiness of the flowers or vegetables you are planting. Seedlings of hardy plants may be set out about two weeks before the average last frost date. Half-hardy varieties may be set out at about the time of the last frost. Tender species should be set out about two weeks after the average last frost date.

There's no such thing as eating only one of these little anise tidbits. North Africans eat them with boiling hot mint tea.

Weight-Watchers Stay Home

North Africa is no place for the weight-watcher; for here it is considered good manners for the host to extend the most lavish hospitality and for the guests to make every effort to eat what is heaped on his plate.

Gastronomically, North Africa includes Morocco, Algeria, Tunisia and Libya. The cuisine may also be divided according to that of the larger cities, some of which have picked up a French accent within the last century, and the food eaten by nomads of the Sahara.

The famous dish of this part of the world is "couscous," an elaborate steamed semolina dish which can be made in many different ways and which requires a variety of meats, vegetables and spices.

Mutton is the preferred meat in these Mohammedan lands. Lamb kebabs are very popular and the cook who wishes to excel broils them over aromatic woods. North African food is lusciously spiced with "as much red pepper as can be borne," and with cumin, coriander, mint, anise, saffron, cinnamon and others. Onion and garlic are used generously.

It is a small wonder that North Africans love spices, for spice-trading Phoenicians settled in Tunisia about 800 B. C. and founded what was to become Carthage. Fifteen hundred years later the Moslems invaded, bringing not only their spices, but citrus fruits, almonds, sugar cane, rice and varieties of figs and dates.

Some North African dishes are excellently flavored as for instance the Spiced Fish Fillets and the Anise Tidbits made according to authentic recipes tested by home economists of the American Spice Trade Association.

KRISKLETTES
(Moroccan Anise Tidbits)

3 c. sifted all-purpose flour
1 c. sugar
3 tsp. baking powder
1/2 tsp. salt
2 tbl. anise seed, crushed
3 tbl. salad oil

Sift flour with sugar, baking powder and salt. Stir in anise seed. Add approximately 3/4 cup water, a little at a time, mixing until all flour in bowl is moist (dough should be slightly rubbery). Add oil and work into dough. Shape dough into pencil thin rolls by rolling dough with the palms of your hands on a lightly floured board. Cut each roll into 1/2-inch pieces. Place on greased cookie sheets and bake in a preheated moderate oven (350 F.) 15 to 20 minutes. Cool and store in a dry place. Serve with minted tea if desired. Yield: Approximately 1 1/2 pounds.

HOOT MKLE
(Fried Spiced Fish Fillets)

1/4 c. salad oil
1/4 c. lemon juice
1/4 c. parsley flakes

1 tbl. paprika
1 tbl. ground cumin
2 tsp. instant garlic powder
1 tsp. ground coriander
1 tsp. salt
1/8 tsp. ground black pepper
2 pkgs. (1 lb. each) frozen flounder fillets, defrosted
Flour
Oil for frying

Combine oil, lemon juice, parsley flakes, paprika, cumin, garlic powder, coriander, salt and black pepper in a medium bowl; mix well. Add fish fillets, coating each fillet well on both sides. Dredge with flour. Fry in 1-inch deep hot fat, about 8 to 10 minutes, turning to brown both sides. Drain on paper toweling. Garnish with lemon slices and ripe olives, if desired. Yield: 6 to 8 portions.

New Answers Help Universal Problem

humid so quickly) and perhaps a new mattress.

Foods that fill you up, but don't nourish you properly, are one cause of many people feeling tired. But from breakfast foods to treats as a bedtime snack, a variety of new foods -- if you look for them -- can help you avoid nutritionally caused fatigue.

Vacations that knock you out more than they relax you are another common cause of fatigue.

It's even less costly, and surprisingly effective, to follow a strange-sounding piece of advice offered by authorities: breath enough! Oddly, many people don't. They slouch, crowding the lungs, they fail to get enough oxygen, then they wonder why they are so tired!

Controlling your weight, sleep habits and even your room color may be effective fatigue fighters.

The importance of foods in avoiding fatigue were illustrated by Dr. I. M. Rabinowitch of Montreal General Hospital. He found that sugars appear in the blood stream in as little as two minutes after they are eaten. Because a rise in the blood sugar level is a condition widely associated with freedom from fatigue, a mid-afternoon sweet is for many people a good idea.

So are vitamin loaded cereals, many of which are at least as tasty as other kinds. Some kinds of spaghetti and macaroni have extra protein, yet cost nothing extra. Want to lose calories without losing most of the nutrients in milk? Try skim milk or powdered milk. The key word, in proper nutrition, is "try."

Vacations. You can enjoy a relaxing and interesting one anywhere in the world -- or right near home. The important thing to remember is that vacations can be as restful as they are zestful.

Right at home, right now, you can resolve to take these additional fatigue-fighting measures:

"Buy a bottle of vitamins -- any 'name' brand is good -- and take one every day.

"Take off at least half the weight you know you should. The more you weigh, the more energy you use just to move around.

"If you find it hard to get to sleep, consider heavier cotton sheets (they don't get warm and

*If you can't sleep, remember that relaxing completely with your eyes closed is said to provide about 80% as much rest as you'd get if you were actually sleeping.

*At Johns Hopkins University, experiments indicate that rooms painted blue and green tend to relax the mind and reduce muscular tension. Yellow, orange and red, on the other hand, tend to stimulate.

*Remember that not only coffee and (to a lesser extent) tea contain caffeine, but also cola drinks -- not the best choice for bedtime.

*If you must get rid of fatigue in a hurry, one of the quickest and surest ways is easy: take a cold shower. Go to your doctor at least once a year; not only may he spot a problem causing fatigue, but he may alternatively tell you you're fine. This will help you relax.

Overcooking Is Problem With Fish

Most homemakers overcook fish and seafood.

So say the results of research conducted by Booth Fisheries, the world's largest producer and processor of frozen fish.

"Seventy percent of women who dine out order fish or seafood," say company spokesmen. "But they often produce unpalatable results when they prepare fish at home. This discourages them from serving it to their families as a regular meal."

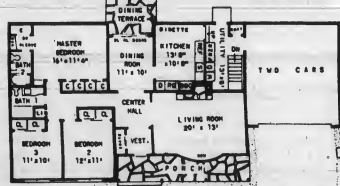

Properly cooked fish is succulent, tender and flaky. The secret is to "begin" early in the cooking period to test for doneness. Remove the fish from heat as soon as the flesh flakes easily when touched with a fork. This may be anytime from six to twenty-six minutes after cooking begins.

Most package instructions tend to encourage overcooking, warn authorities. The only way to be sure your family will eat fish at the peak of perfection is to test and test again.

Melt candy caramels with a small amount of evaporated milk. Stir in chopped California prunes and coconut. Spoon while slightly warm over slices of vanilla ice cream.

Standing to Be Decided Fri.

The Eastern District basketball race is about over, and the big surprise is that there were few major surprises during the season, which began the first week in December.

Maury has already clinched the title for the second year in a row, and remains unbeaten in district play. And the Commodore's only loss in 16 games came in a non-conference tilt with Booker T. Washington, of Norfolk, whom they beat earlier in the season.

The strengthening Bookers came on strongly toward the end of season and have now walked away with probable possession of second place in the district. The Maury-Booker T. game in the eastern district tournament, which begins next weekend (Feb. 25) should be a memorable class, but the Bookers are already favored to be the spoilers, just as they were for Maury last year.

Maury and Booker T. were pre-season favorites in the district and their one-two finish was expected. Just who would be No. 1 was the only question, and Maury had the edge in the prognosticating.

Princess Anne was supposed to come along well by the end of the season and be a close contender. The No. 3 spot was reserved for the Cavaliers, but if they can whip the Bookers, Friday night they can tie their opponents for second place. This is considered highly unlikely, but the Cavaliers will be in there trying.

The Cox Falcons, not considered to be in any type of contention before the season began swept 12 straight games before meeting with three defeats at the hands of Maury, Booker T. and Princess Anne. They meet Kellam Friday night in their last district game, and should they recover sufficiently from three consecutive losses to beat a weak Kellam five, could tie Princess Anne for third place in the district if PA loses. Cox is expected to come back strongly and win handsily.

First Colonial goes against Lake Taylor, which has played hot and cold basketball all season. The outcome of that game will decide the next place in the district. First Colonial can take fourth place with a win, but would tie for that position with Lake Taylor with a loss.

The young Kempsville team can capture the next rung of the ladder with a win over Granby Friday night or cndrop behind the Comets in the standings with a loss. Norview can also get into the act with an identical district record to the winner of that game by beating Bayside Saturday night. That Marins have lost all their games this season, some by a slim margin and a couple even in overtime.

Kellam managed to win one district tilt, and along with Bayside will bring up the rear in the standings. If all goes as expected there will be nine teams vying for the top eight spots in district tourney, and that will be settled Friday night. The loser of the Kempsville-Granby game will be eliminated, along with Kellam and Bayside in action last weekend Kempsville barely made it over Bayside in overtime 59-51; Cox scared Maury, but the Commodores won it after the lead saw several times 78-69; First Colonial topped Granby 70 to 61; and Lake Taylor ran away from Kellam 92-62 Friday night.

Then Tuesday night Lake Taylor ripped into Bayside 93-63; First Colonial downed Lake Taylor 79-63 and Norview left Kellam far behind 84-38.

Last night the highly effective Union Kempsville team played John F. Kennedy of Suffolk and plays its final game against Mary N. Smith at Union Kempsville 1:30 p.m. Friday.

Saturday night Cox plays a non-conference game at Great Bridge and next Tuesday Norfolk Catholic comes to Bayside and Kellam goes to Indian River for two other non-district clashes.

The only Virginia Beach player to average more than 20 points per game this season is Keith Sudduth of Cox, but he was just not able to pull it off alone for the Falcons, although he scored 17 points in both the game against Booker T. and the one against Maury.

Psychology May Become Elective

By Alice Widman
First Colonial H. S.

A course in psychology is being considered as an elective at First Colonial High School, to be available to juniors and seniors.

The concept is a particularly good one since it opens new vistas of understanding human behavior to students at an age when this is a vital need. To be able to gain some further insight into the "whys" and "hows" of one's own actions is an opportunity long needed on the high school level, and even on the junior high level.

Consider the long range effects of a broad program including psychology (subdued to an appropriate level of understanding) taught each year from seventh grade upwards. The student, along with learning academic subjects, physical skills, and vocational skills, would be learning to understand himself, and how to cope with his emotions and feelings and difficult situations. This could (ideally) lead to a vast reduction in student dropouts, student rebellions, student apathy and aimless drifting.

The study of the mind, and consequent human behavior, will be approached from the physiological standpoint at First Colonial, which means that the human physiology, its make-up and interrelationships will be studied before progressing to how they function in and affect human behavior.

Some random students' comments concerning the possible psychology course were "Maybe we could even tell if we wanted to go into it for a career?" "All high schools should have a wide range of electives to acquaint the student with the possibilities;" "If you know why people do things, you can help them."

Dome Features Daytona 500

The Virginia Beach Civic Center will be part of an international closed circuit television network presenting the 11th annual Daytona 500 stock car race Sunday, Feb. 23.

Sam Scott, director of the Dome, said the large screen closed circuit telecast will be the only way to see the start-to-finish live coverage of the 500-mile event, which is expected to last about three and a half hours. There will be no live home television coverage.

The speed classic, being televised for the third consecutive year, will be seen on theater and arena screens in the United States and Canada with a delayed showing being beamed to the British Isles, Europe, Asia and Japan.

Top foreign drivers are being attracted to the starting field along with the big names in American automobile racing.

"While the Daytona 500 is the world's fastest 500-mile automobile race," Scott added, "it also teaches a significant safety lesson. Not only must the drivers be true experts, but the races at Daytona International Speedway are the proving grounds for many of the products and accessories which contribute to the constant improvement of automobile safety and comfort."

This year's race is expected to be the fastest ever run on the 2 1/2 mile track. Cale Yarborough of Timmonsville, S. C., holds the stock car qualifying mark at 189,222 miles an hour while Richard Petty of Randleman, N. C., holds the record average speed for the Daytona 500 after winning the 1964 running 154,334 mph. Both records are expected to fall.

TelePrompter Corporation, which is producing the telecast in conjunction with Daytona International Speedway, is installing special equipment and completing arrangements for the Dome showing, which will begin at noon. Doors open at 10:30 a.m.

Scott said tickets, priced at $8 are now on sale at the Civic Center.

Demonstration Library Opens

The formal opening of the Demonstration Library at First Colonial High School was held Feb. 10. At a program in the auditorium preceding a tour of the library Charles Caldwell, assistant principal, welcomed the assembled guests. He recognized Miss Mary Stuart Mason, state supervisor; Miss Sandra Umbarger, assistant state supervisor; Mrs. Lydia Faulkner, assistant state supervisor; Mrs. Margaret Fraser, Virginia Beach library supervisor; and Miss Annette Campbell, head librarian. Miss Campbell then introduced her two assistant librarians, Mrs. Jane Benham and Mrs. Martha Owens and gave a brief talk about the demonstration library.

Following Miss Campbell's talk Caldwell then introduced Norman Fields, assistant principal of First Colonial, E. E. Brickell, superintendent of Virginia Beach City Schools, and other elected officials of the city.

The guests then toured the library in order to view the various types of media available for student use. Refreshments were served in the school cafeteria.

Attack Squadron 42 Wins Cup

Attack Squadron Forty-Two won the NAS Oceana Captain's Cup for athletic achievement in 1968. The Captain's Cup is awarded to the squadron or department at NAS Oceana which has compiled the highest combined point total in sports.

On Jan. 22 in ceremonies at NAS Oceana, Capt. Schroeder, USN, Commanding Officer, NAS Oceana, presented the cup to Cdr. Cramblet, Commanding Officer, Attack Squadron Forty-Two. While squadron personnel watched proudly, Cdr. Cramblet accepted the award, commending those who participated and encouraging them to maintain their present lead in the competition for the 1969 Captain's Cup.

Each year the Captain's Cup is passed to the new winning unit. In addition, the unit receives a permanent award of a plaque.

Points are awarded for first, second and third place in both individual and team sports. There are teams fielded in boxing, bowling, basketball, football, golf, badminton, volleyball, table tennis, tennis, handball and softball. The points are multiplied by a manpower factor to give small departments and squadrons an equal chance.

Ticket sales for Scout-O-Rama were around 35,000. The tickets were sold for 25¢ a piece. The scout units will keep 80% of the sales to be used in buying equipment, scholarships, summer camps and subsidizing programs. Top ticket sales for any one unit went to Scout Troop 372, who sold over 3,000 tickets.

This event was planned in conjunction with Boy Scout Week, which began Feb. 7 and continues through today. During the week scouts have made speeches at various civic clubs.

Students See Spacemobile

By Debbie Bowman
Kempsville H. S.

The students and teachers of Kempsville High School received a closer and more personal look into the age of space Feb. 4. At this time the Space-mobile, and educational unit of the National Aeronautics and Space Administration, was demonstrated at Kempsville.

This traveling unit is operated by experienced science educators who have traveled throughout the United States, speaking to school and general public audiences.

The lecturers demonstrated basic scientific principles by using visual aids and experiments. They explained the principles of space and the current and future projects of NASA by using authentic scale models of rockets and spacecraft.

The lecturer traced the early development of rocketry and, by utilizing electrical and mechanical equipment, he discussed the areas of propulsion and launch vehicles. He also explained electrical requirements on spacecraft and many of the problems encountered in space flight--both manned and unmanned.

Test Is Successful

A simulated emergency test of the Virginia Beach community emergency plan was conducted recently to determine the readiness of emergency communication facilities in the event of a disaster damaging or incapacitating normal communication facilities.

The test was conducted by members of the Virginia Beach Amateur Radio Club composed of the Amateur Radio Emergency Corps (AREC), under the leadership of Sherm Hawley who is Emergency Coordinator of the American Radio Relay League, and the Radio Amateur Civil Emergency Service (RACES), under the leadership of William Holland, Civil Defense Radio Officer. These are the organizations which would play a major role, through cooperation with the local Civil Defense and Red Cross, in bringing aid into the city in the event of disasters.

During Sunday's test the city was placed under a simulated emergency brought on by severe storm damage. Mobile radio units were placed in various sections of the city such as Sandbridge, the Chesapeake Beach region, the Virginia Beach Civic Center, Pembroke Mall, Princess Anne Plaza and Kempsville which operated as disaster relief centers. Reports of conditions at these points were relayed by radio to the main operational headquarters which is located in the city's new Emergency Operations Center on South Plaza Trail. This headquarters would be responsible in case of a disaster for the dispatching of medical units, fire fighting units, food and supplies that may be needed, police, national guard and/or Red Cross units if necessary, or the proper equipment which might be required to take residents to established shelters if evacuation from their homes should be required.

The Virginia Beach units were placed in contact with similar emergency coordinating centers throughout Tidewater, the United States, and points as distant as the West Indies. Simulated emergency condition messages were transmitted from Virginia Beach to these distant points reporting on the status of operations in the resort city, and were successfully received here for relay to other points, through the National Traffic System.

Various phases of the operation were observed at different times and locations by Graham White, Virginia Beach Civil Defense Coordinator, and Jeff Varney, Red Cross Emergency Coordinator for Virginia and North Carolina to evaluate the effectiveness of the resort city's emergency communications and operation procedures.

Sgt. Norman C. Morse demonstrates the use of a flare used to summon assistance in case of emergencies to fourth grade students of Linkhorn Park Elementary School during the students tour of the 2nd Police Precinct.

Fourth Graders Meet Police

School children from Linkhorn School are participating in a pilot program this week being sponsored jointly by the Exchange Club of the City and the Virginia Beach Police Dept. About 150 fourth-graders were to be taken by school bus Tuesday, Wednesday and today to the Second Police Precinct in Virginia Beach for a tour of the entire facility and for a demonstration of police tactics and equipment. The pilot program is part of the observance of Crime Prevention Week in Virginia Beach, and Exchange Club officials say that if the program proves to be beneficial it will be expanded greatly to include more children next year.

The general chairman of the activities of the club during this week is the vice-president, Edmund M. Moore. He was appointed to coordinate the week's activities by Maurice B. Jackson, club president.

The theme for this year's campaign, "Be Partners in Crime Prevention," is an urgent plea for citizen participation in the struggle to curb crime and violence by actively cooperating with police, assuming a larger share of the responsibility for crime prevention, and helping to rebuild America's traditional respect for law and order.

FBI Director J. Edgar Hoover has endorsed wholeheartedly the 22nd annual observance of the week sponsored by Exchange Clubs throughout the nation. Mr. Hoover says, "This year's slogan...

is indeed a timely one for we, as citizens, can no longer 'bury our heads in the sand' and let someone else solve the problem. The time has come when each individual must do whatever he can, regardless of how small, to fight the crime plague which threatens to destroy our country. Let us again take individual pride in our towns, cities and states and let us all do our part to erase the terrible image of a crime-ridden Nation that we have gained around the world."

The Exchange Club's projects committee chairman and former president, J. Richard Gormly, said that the program had been well-received by the principal of Linkhorn School, Grant Smith, as well as by School Supt. E. E. Brickell, and police officials including Second Precinct commander Capt. Bucky Moore. Gormly said without their help the program would not have been successful.

Chairman Moore said fourth-graders were chosen because they are at a most impressionable age.

Students to Visit Surry

Some 62 science students and teachers, representing seven Virginia Beach high schools, will visit the Surry Nuclear Information Center Feb. 14, as guests of the Virginia Electric and Power Company, Clenton Shanks, Virginia Beach Manager, announced today.

The students, representing public, private and parochial schools in the two-state area, will see modern generating stations in operation or learn about the peaceful use of nuclear energy. This is the thirteenth consecutive year that Vepco has participated in the program. Open to the students will be six of the company's principal generating stations—Bremo, Chesterfield, Possum Point, Gaston, and the Surry Nuclear Information Center. Company officials and engineers will conduct the tours and explain production procedures.

A panel discussion will be held after the tour to answer questions about the operations, and the students will be luncheon guests.

Old Comedy Wins Praise Again

The Little Theatre of Virginia Beach, standing firm in its conviction that community theatre can produce an old play that is not often seen and make people like it, has won again.

The current production of George Bernard Shaw's "Arms and the Man", which plays again this Saturday night and the following Friday and Saturday night, is delightful. The biting Shavian wit is handled nicely by a well-rounded cast, each member with much to offer.

The early Shaw satire on the military and on social climbing families was later made into the better known opera, "The Chocolate Soldier", but without the music it is even funnier. The plot revolves around a professional soldier who, in escaping from the enemy, takes refuge in the bedroom of a young girl who shields him, then falls in love with him, in spite of the fact that he destroys all of her illusions of the dashing military man and in spite of the fact that he carries chocolate cream in his cartridge case instead of bullets. He obviously becomes her "chocolate cream soldier", although she is engaged to a natty, temporary soldier who is more braggart than soldier. Her father is the epitome of the ineffective military commander.

Add to this a bawdy mother who tries desperately for social acceptance and a saucy maid and intelligent valet who are not at all the typical servants, and one has an hilarious bit of froth with a lot to say. Lee Lively plays the role of Shaw himself who narrates the settings. He looks and sounds for the world like the old ras-cal.

Linda Phillips plays the young girl somewhat superficially, but overall presents a believable portrayal of a young girl torn between her upbringing and her love.

Glenn Graham, as the chocolate cream soldier, is hilarious. He plods through the actions with heavy foot and beautiful comedy timing. Vi Ragan, as the mother who tries diligently to hold her true self in check under the guise of a lady, is wonderfully overbearing and consistent.

David MacFee bumbles nicely through the role of her husband the military commander. The young girl's intended, the pompous major, is played to perfection by Ian Goodwin, who uses every trick in the book to gain the comic approach.

Mike Hamblin is a bit weak as the servant, but the role itself of a very perceptive schemer, makes it easy for him to carry it off. Terry Moore, as the maid is perhaps a bit too petulant and not convincing enough, but she still wins her social position and her mistresses' intended.

Frank Anzalone handles a bit part of a Russian officer nicely. New director Gwen Kiser needs to watch some stage picturizations, but otherwise has put together a well-paced show.

The play is set in Bulgaria and deals with Serbs and Russians as well, but it could be anywhere at any time and be as much fun. The Little Theatre of Virginia Beach has another fine offering for everyone and it deserves to be seen. HJL

Whitehurst Will Attend Meeting

Harold S. Whitehurst, Director of Health and Physical Education for the Virginia Beach School System and Director of Recreation for the city of Virginia Beach will attend a meeting of the American Association of Health, Physical Education, and Recreation in Memphis Tenn. from Feb. 19-23.

The driver of this car, Thomas E. Higgins, escaped with minor injuries, but his car was demolished when, according to police, the auto went out of control and collided with a school bus last Friday on Newtown Road near the Williams Elementary School. Mrs. Emma Jean Simpson of Deerfield Lane, driver of the bus, escaped injury but was hospitalized for observation. There were no students on the bus at the time of the accident.

Week Sets Fatality Record

The first seven days of this month will go down in the Virginia Beach record books as the one week in the city's history to record the largest number of traffic fatalities.

Seven persons lost their lives in four different accidents in widely separated sections of the city, and there was no apparent similarity between the accidents.

One man was killed Feb. 1 in a two car head-on collision in the Acredale area of Kempsville; two high school girls and a soldier were fatally injured in an auto school bus collision Monday a week ago on Holland Road; a six-year-old boy was fatally injured Thursday when run over by an oil truck in the Gardenwood section; and a man and woman, both from Oriental, N. C., were fatally injured Friday in a two car head on collision at Kempsville Road and Centerville Turnpike.

A 15-year-old boy, David N. Howe, who received severe head injuries in the Holland Road accident underwent several hours of surgery following the accident and has remained in critical condition under intensive medical care since the accident.

These accidents raised the city's traffic death toll for the year to nine, which compared to one traffic fatality in the city on the same date of last year. The weekly toll surpasses the previous weekly record established between Aug. 8-15, 1967 when five persons perished in accidents. This month could also equal, or surpass, the previous traffic record for any month in the city's history which stands at eight fatalities during the month of August 1963.

The VIRGINIA BEACH SUN asked Capt. G. K. Bryan, director of the police department traffic division, what may be contributing to the sudden upsurge in traffic deaths and what might be done to curtail traffic deaths. Bryan said, "I don't know how we could have prevented any of them, even if we (police traffic officers) had been there on patrol duty". Bryan added that "after looking at things involved in the accidents, weather, road conditions, highway markings, time of day or night, I don't know what we can do." Regarding the question of how law enforcement may enter into the picture, Bryan pointed out the men of his department are doing a good job of this and continually seeking methods to improve safety on the thoroughfares of the resort city.

Reeves Johnson, City Traffic Safety Chief, echoed the sentiments of Capt. Bryan when he said, "I don't believe any of these fatalities are the result of any one particular thing. I think it's just one of those things that happened." In answer to the question of what might have been done to prevent the rash of fatalities Johnson replied "I don't see what could have been done to prevent any of them."

The answer to what is causing the increasing number of traffic fatalities apparently will not be found through any increase in accidents in the resort city. During January of last year, according to official city records, 324 accidents were recorded, with 43 of these involving personal injury and resulting in one fatality. These accidents took place during a month marked by heavy snow falls in the city and thoroughfares becoming extremely hazardous for driving.

During January of this year, driving conditions were not impaired by snowfall, and although a smaller number of accidents were recorded than a year ago, a total of 281 accidents resulted in two fatalities and 44 accidents resulted in personal injury.

Police Talk to Meeting

Virginia Beach Police Dept. Det. Sgt. Douglas McCloud addressed a dinner meeting of the Tidewater States chapter of the Roller Skating Rink Operators of America Monday night at the Shore Drive Inn.

Walter E. Carter of the Plaza Roller Rink in Virginia Beach is chairman of the Tidewater States chapter, which includes operators from Virginia, Maryland, Delaware, West Virginia and the District of Columbia. McCloud, attached to the Juvenile Bureau, discussed juvenile problems as they might be related to roller rinks and answered questions of the operators concerning their rights and responsibilities in handling discipline of juveniles in their individual rinks.

He also pointed out some of the more prevalent problems faced by Virginia Beach at the present time, especially narcotics and dangerous drugs, glue-sniffing and drinking of intoxicating beverages, and instructed the group, through the use of training aids how to recognize the appearance and odor of marijuana.

McCloud pointed out that his experience with the Virginia Beach rink had been a good one and that this division was pleased to have such an excellent recreational facility for young people in the city.

School Board Busy With Appointments

Appointments took precedence at Tuesday's School Board meeting.

Not only were there a number of changes, but two appointments were to recently created jobs. J. Warren Littleton, principal of Princess Anne High School, will become director of plant planning and development on March 1, and Willard Pendleton, principal of Kingston Elementary School, will become director of food services on July 1.

School Supt. E. E. Brickell explained that Littleton's job will involve coordinating planning committees for new schools, acquiring school sites and deciding "when, where and what kind of schools to build." Richard G. Drake, assistant principal at P.A., was approved by the School Board to become principal.

Pendleton, who has had some restaurant service experience, will assume the new job made necessary by the growing number of school cafeterias and many monthly reports. Brickell said Pendleton would be a "coordinating agent" among the 43 dietitians, would handle administrative matters and help select new equipment.

Other appointments approved included Walter N. Carroll, Cox High principal, to director of secondary education. James C. Mounie, now director of secondary education, has been granted a leave of absence to pursue doctoral studies.

H. S. Abernathy will become assistant superintendent for business affairs. Alfred R. Butler IV, now an administrative intern at P.A., will be assistant principal for instruction. James Wiley French, administrative assistant at Cox, will become principal. Martin J. Mulder, Jr., will be assistant principal for administration there.

Michael Themides, now assistant principal at Mury High School in Norfolk, will take the same position at Bayside High School. Ralph Sykes will be assistant principal for instruction at Bayside.

William D. Gilliam will be principal of the new Bayside Junior High School. Two assistant principals for the school were also named: Gurney Ray Smith and Joseph Hassell.

At the new Kempsville Junior High School Charles A. Perkinson will be principal with John Roberson and Kenneth Lumpkin as assistants.

A. L. Scarborough will be principal of Virginia Beach Junior High with Ralph Hendrix and John Robbins as assistants. An assistant principal for Plaza Junior High, Thomas E. Gregory, was also approved.

J. V. Boykin, principal of Union Kempsville, will become building administrator of the new Virginia Beach Center for Effective Learning which will begin next fall in the Union Kempsville building.

James C. Mounie, director of secondary education, announced that all Virginia Beach High Schools have been accredited by the Southern Association of Colleges and Schools. This was the first accreditation for Kempsville High School. Mounie said that he expected all the junior high schools opening next fall to be approved in their first year.

Robert Stenzhorn, director of federal programs, reported a total of $525,823.37 approved for Virginia Beach schools under the National Defense Education Act. The federal government supplies half the funds and the city matches them. This year's total is $262,000, the largest amount in any year so far. This is compared to $6,000 granted in 1960. Projects recently approved include science, English, mathematics, history and geography.

A bid of $83,270 from Weigand Construction Corporation was accepted for the construction of four classrooms and two seminar rooms for speech and reading at Trantwood Elementary School.

Bids for reconstruction of Kings Grant Elementary School will be opened at 3 p.m. Feb. 26.

Zoning Dispute Continues

The controversy over a small shopping center just inside the gates of the Thoroughgood subdivision on Pleasure House Road appears to be anything but over. And Monday's City Council meeting could again prove to be the battleground.

Residents of Thoroughgood have promised to turn out in force... again... at that time in protest of the future construction of the center by the Thoroughgood Corp. and in favor of Council rezoning the land to prohibit the center. On Feb. 10, more than 500 residents of the area jammed Council chambers and a number of them were quite vocal in their protest and requests amid much applause and attempts to keep order.

Since the matter was deferred, and since there have been a number of developments since that time, Council chambers are expected to be jammed again Monday.

Last Monday principals of the Thoroughgood Corp. appeared before an informal meeting of City Council and presented a schematic plan for the several Colonial-type building complex planned, which they call at this time "Ideas on paper". The present plans, as drawn by Carlton T. Goodwin, call for 15 separate buildings, similar to one that exists there now, all with semi-hidden parking, to be used for specialty shops and professional shops.

Richard Collier, secretary-treasurer of the corporation, told Council that the complex would be an asset to the exclusive neighborhood, not a detriment.

Clarence J. Elder, chief sales agent for the company, said that none of his personnel has ever intentionally misled residents of the area into believing the area would remain as it is at present.

"We have always assured them that whatever was done would be architecture in keeping with the neighborhood."

It was also pointed out to Council that as the preliminary plans were being developed that the "civic league in the community had been so informed. Since that time the president of the league, Marine Gen. Austin R. Brunell (Ret.), said he has never seen the plans."

After Monday's meeting the residents, some 250 of them, met and adopted a resolution reaffirming their position and calling attention again to their 1,000-name petition presented to Council two weeks ago.

It was the opinion of City Attorney Harry Marshall that the city could become involved in a major suit and be responsible for financial damages if Council rezoned the land now that has been zoned for such a center since 1955. While the League's attorney Morris Fine, disagreed with this premise, Marshall has indicated that his research since that time has only strengthened his feeling in the matter.

City Councilmen who have been questioned are reluctant to comment until hearing a report Monday by the City Attorney whom they asked to study the case further. There is speculation, however, that Council (See 'Zoning,' p. 2)

New City Center Opens

The city began a new era Monday morning as its central base of operations opened in the new administration building at Princess Anne. About 125 city employees who had been spread out in offices all over the sprawling city were the initial occupants.

A short dedication ceremony was held Monday afternoon for the oft-delayed, $1.3 million colonial structure that is supposed to serve municipal needs for a half century.

An open house and formal dedication of the new administration building as well as other city buildings completed in the past year or so, will be held on a City Hall Day scheduled sometime in May. City Manager Roger M. Scott said he envisions an open house and guided tours through the buildings in the municipal complex at that time, and possibly use of the boardwalk trains to move visitors from place to place.

The guest of honor Monday afternoon at the informal dedication ceremonies was former City Manager W. Russell Hatchett, who struck two familiar themes in his brief remarks.

He again called for statewide legislation to meet the needs of fast-growing areas like Virginia Beach, and renewed his call for paramutual racing and betting in the city.

Hatchett said that most state laws are designed to meet normal situations but that they did not meet the needs of the abnormal growth of Virginia Beach. About 400 families, or 1,000 persons, move to Virginia Beach each month.

The former City Manager suggested to the assembled city employees that they should support candidates for state offices who will commit themselves to legislation that will be beneficial to the fast-growing city. He added that new sources of revenue must be found if the city is to continue to grow and prosper.

As he has many times in the past, Hatchett suggested horse racing as an almost unlimited source of revenue which, he said, could keep the city tax rate low. A tax hike, as high as 50 per cent, is expected this year in the city, on the heels of the 60 per cent increase last year.

Hatchett was City Manager when the idea for the new administration was conceived and the building was begun. He retired last July 1, about the same time the building was originally supposed to be finished. But strikes, material shortages, bad weather, changes in plans and other problems delayed the completion of the building until last week. The contractor still faces penalties for late completion, but action in the matter has not yet been resolved.

Hatchett called the new building unequalled in the state. It now houses offices of city employees who came from eight different locations in the city. Still more are scheduled to move in later. The City Council chamber, still not completed, will be used for the first time for the regular meeting on March 24, pending the finish of the ornate room.

Scott said that there is much room for expansion in the building and that the unused third floor, will make the building adequate to city needs well into the future.

the 21st century. He calls the new administration building a place that all Virginia Beach residents can be extremely proud of.

The move to the new building, which began last week and ended Sunday night, was called smooth. Movers, along with the General Services division of the city, handled the entire job, and by 7 p.m. Sunday evening the cleaning crews were putting the final touches on the building.

The Mayor's office and the City Manager's office are both now in the new administration building at City Hall. Other major offices located there include the Departments of Public Works, Law, Finance, Planning and Personnel; the Bureau of Purchase and Refuse Collection; the General Services Division; and the Industrial Development Authority.

It had been Hatchett's idea to have Princess Anne of England on hand for the dedication of the Princess Anne structure, but the invitation was officially turned down since the Princess is still continuing her school studies. Hatchett filled in well Monday.

Out of the old Dept. of Public Works building in Virginia Beach Borough and into the new Administration building at Princess Anne went this equipment. This was the scene last Friday, Monday morning the DPW was open for business in the new building.

Space Race Supported By Readers

Virginia Beach residents apparently want to stay in the space race. In answer to last week's SUN SURVEY question, "Should financial cuts be made in the space program appropriations as is now being strongly hinted by the Nixon Administration?", 96 per cent of those who answered said "No", and only 4 per cent said "Yes".

Even of those who said "Yes", most commented that the United States must maintain superiority in the space race, but that they thought less money could be spent on this. One reader said, "Let's get to the moon, then stop worrying about it."

Several who answered "No", also commented that cuts in the future were all right but that getting a man to the moon before 1970 was still a major objective.

While the public opinion survey does not profess to represent the thinking of all residents of Virginia Beach, it does represent a cross section of those who took time to clip the survey and return it to us. Your attention is called to this week's SUN SURVEY question also, which appears below in the box at the lower left corner of this page.

Each week a new question will appear and the results will be published the following week. The questions will be timely, and the more answers we receive, the more responsible the opinion.

Candidates Multiply

The field of candidates for the House of Delegates from Virginia Beach subject to the July Democratic primary has now swelled to four with the entrance of attorney Richard D. Guy.

Guy, 37, had been mentioned as a possible candidate for some time, but until early this week he maintained silence on his position. He made his announcement of candidacy Monday as an independent. He therefore is the second independent candidate already announced. Another attorney, Bruce Murphy, announced last week in the same manner.

The two independents now face a ticket composed of incumbent B. R. Middleton and Rhac Adams, both aligned with the forces of V.A. Etheridge, City Treasurer. All the political activity began early in January when incumbent Kenneth Whitehurst, Jr. announced that he would not seek re-election. The re-election of Whitehurst and Middleton on a single ticket has been expected, although the two were elected from opposite factions two years ago.

Guy said in his announcement, "In this election I am announcing and will run independent of any faction or other candidate. It is my intention to place my candidacy in the hands of all Democrats in Virginia Beach and to ask their support and assistance."

He pointed out that he feels this will make it easier for him to dedicate himself to the cause of responsive government "in a way that machine-picked candidates cannot do."

Guy said the city of Virginia Beach must assume a new position of leadership, and called for state assistance to the fast-growing area and its needs. He also called for an expansion of industrial and resort development, as well as protection for farms and the growing construction industry.

Guy is another newcomer to active politics, as are Murphy and Adams although he had been active behind the scenes in the past. Most recently he headed the Virginia Beach campaign for local option liquor-by-the-drink, which won handily.

He is a member of the Virginia Beach law firm of Owens, Guy, Rhodes and Betz. Guy is a graduate of American University and the Washington College of Law there. He was instrumental in the formation of the Lynnhaven Democratic Club and served as its first president. Guy, who is married and has three children, has been active in a number of civic and professional organizations in Virginia Beach.

The filing date for the primary comes in April, but informed sources say they do not expect the field to get any larger than the four already announced candidates.

Guy told the VIRGINIA BEACH SUN that he has not contacted a number of recognized political leaders in the city so far but that he will do so now that he has announced.

"I did not want to be identified with any faction, and I have made my course clear. Now, like any good candidate, I'll solicit any support I can get."

Hunter Phelan Picked

The man who was the guiding force in the planning and construction of the General Hospital of Virginia Beach on First Colonial Road has been named by the Virginia Beach Jaycees as the city's "First Citizen of 1968."

Hunter C. Phelan, longtime resident of the area, was named Wednesday as the 19th annual winner of the coveted award. Last year's winner was Mrs. Lucille Clark.

Phelan will be honored at a banquet at the Black Angus Restaurant on Friday, Feb. 28, at 7:30 p.m. First District Congressman Thomas N. Downing will be the principal speaker for the event.

Tickets will be available at the door and from Jaycees, according to Mike Katsias, this year's First Citizen committee chairman.

Phelan

Phelan has the distinction of winning the First Citizen award for the second time, but the first time was as Norfolk's recipient in 1953, while he was a resident of the city of Virginia Beach.

While Phelan is best known as president of the General Hospital of Virginia Beach and as the man who worked so diligently toward the building of the new hospital here, he has been quite active in other civic and charitable activities for many years.

Among his contributions are his work with the United Communities Fund, locally and nationally, his work with the Navy YWCA, and his work with recreational planning in Norfolk and Virginia Beach.

Bleachers 'Open Door' Policy Requested Attracts Burglars By Scott

By Les Lehigh

Civic Center director Sam Scott and members of the Civic Center board appeared before City Council's informal meeting Monday at the Third Police Precinct and requested that the city appropriate a total of $23,188 to purchase bleachers to be used for outdoor entertainment and sporting events.

The bleachers, which seat about 6,000 people, were erected at the Virginia Beach Junior High School stadium last fall for a concert by the Supremes, which Scott said was highly successful, both monetarily and otherwise.

The rental fee on the bleachers was $7,904, which could be applied to the purchase price, according to Scott. He said the bleachers would give the city a wedge never had before in bringing name entertainers to the city in a large seating capacity facility. He said many will not come unless a 10,000 seating facility can be guaranteed.

Other uses for the bleachers would include the Virginia Beach Music Festival, scheduled this year June 16-19. Charles Forbes told Council that he has already signed 26 bands for the festival, which will be the largest one ever, and that two more bands will be added. He added that more than 3,000

Burglars apparently were able to enter a residence in the 500 block of South Atlantic Avenue last Friday night as the result of negligence on the part of one of the buildings leases.

Police officials said 41 adults and three juveniles were arrested during an investigation of a "wild party" being held in the dwelling. The juvenile girls were aged 15, 16, and 17. The 16-year-old girl initially gave her age as 18, however investigation proved her to be 16. She was identified as a runaway from Richmond and has been returned to the custody of her parents.

Investigators said three of the adults in the building at the time were attached to the Oceana Naval Air Station and have been charged with the operation of a disorderly house. These men were identified by police as Rudolph Chavez, 21, Kenneth R. Robinette, 21, and Dennis Wingo, 22. The others, including the juveniles, were charged with frequenting a disorderly house.

Records show a complaint was made with police that the dwelling was burglarized during the time those in the house at the time of the raid were absent from the structure while being booked on charges growing out of the raid, and that police officers had left the building unsecured.

This point was discussed with Lt. Henry Capps, director of the police Juvenile Division, whose officers were in charge of the raid. Lt. Capps told the VIRGINIA BEACH SUN "Kenneth Robinette, who was one of the building leases, stayed behind with investigating officers who continued inspection of the building after the remainder of the group had been taken from the building for processing." At the time of leaving the building police officers asked Robinette to secure the building and urged him to do so. Robinette refused to lock the front door saying it wasn't necessary and that the building would be okay."

According to police officials, further investigation of the burglarizing of the building indicated the building could not be secured, since the front door could not be properly locked. Lt. Capps added that in his opinion, "The officers fulfilled every obligation required of them in regards to safeguarding the premises and the property in the building."

Four suspects were apprehended a short time after the burglary, and most of the items taken from the building were recovered.

The City's New Home

The City of Virginia Beach finally has a municipal home of its own. The very nature of the city will forever require some governmental functions to be spread out in all sections but, at least, one new building now houses the major departments and divisions under one roof.

The new administration building at Princess Anne was built for the present and for many years to come. Fortunately there is unused space in it now, but with the rapid growth of the city, it will not be unused long.

It definitely is a showplace, not another of the sterile concrete and glass nondescript governmental buildings so common everywhere else. It is a place that Virginia Beach residents can be proud of, and it will stand in the years to come as a monument to those who saw it through a sea of controversy.

There are those who would prefer to forget the extra months it took to finish the building and the extra costs that somehow cropped up. There are even those who will argue over chandeliers hung in the elevators.

But it is a beautiful place, faithful to the colonial concept, and should help instill true civic pride. But its major function, to house a more efficient and still growing city government, is still of prime importance. And for the first time in the short history of this city, a conference can mean a down the hall walk and not a drive completely across the city.

Federal Harassment

Sen. Sam J. Ervin, (D.N.C.) has introduced an interesting bill in this new session of Congress. It is one which appears on the surface to have a great deal of merit and could possibly very well be used on lower levels of government.

The bill passed the Senate last year, but died in the House. Hopefully this year it will make it through. It would prohibit questions about race, religion, sexual attitude and similar personal matters which should have little to do with employment in the first place.

The bill would also stop harassment of government employees and would ban an invasion of their privacy, as well as forbid use of any arm-twisting tactics by political, supervisory or agency personnel.

Much publicity has been given the fact that Virginia's Junior Senator, William B. Spong, Jr., is one of the co-sponsors of the bill. It has been mentioned several times in Norfolk newspapers. It should also be pointed out, however, that Virginia's Senior Senator, Harry F. Byrd, Jr., is also a co-sponsor of the bill. And it should also be pointed out that there is excellent cooperation enjoyed between Virginia's Senators and the North Carolina sponsor in this matter.

The bill itself could have far-reaching implications that could go a long way toward cleaning up much federal political pressures. And to Sens. Ervin and Byrd, as well as Spong and the other co-sponsors, goes our vote of confidence.

Sertoma's Freedom Week

This is Freedom Week, sponsored by Sertoma Clubs all over the United States. The Virginia Beach Sertoma Club has always been extremely active in helping to promote Freedom Week, and this year is no exception.

Besides presenting framed copies of the Declaration of Independence to Virginia Beach libraries for display, members have worked closely with the librarians to set up Freedom Week exhibits for all to see.

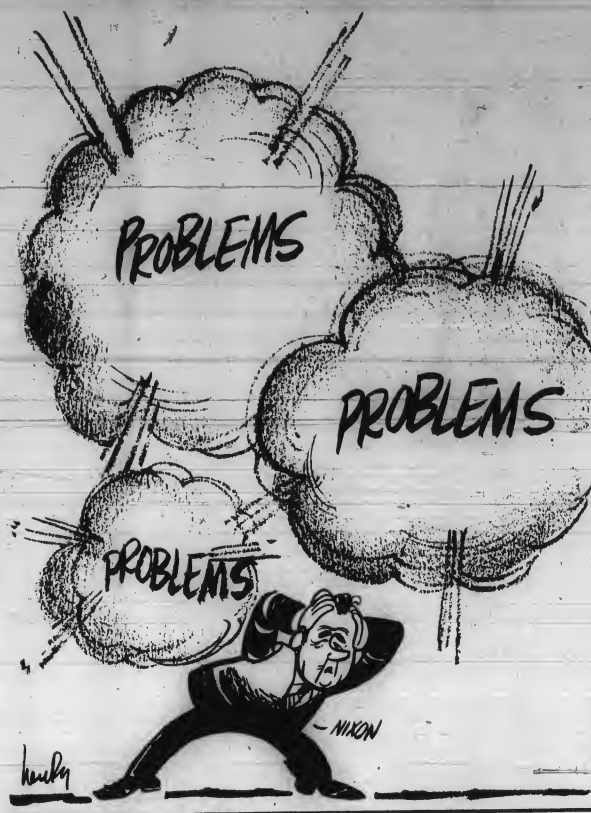

Freedom Week is set aside each year as a time of reaffirmation of the freedoms Americans enjoy but so often take for granted. At this time in history perhaps it is more important than ever before for us to remember our basic freedoms.

These rights make it possible for us to live without fear in the greatest country of the world. And lest the protesters forget it, these same freedoms make it possible for them to protest and demonstrate in a peaceful manner without fear of reprisal. But maybe if they examined the freedoms more closely and understood their true meaning, the protests, peaceful and otherwise, would not be necessary. Maybe they could see past the smoke from burning draft cards to the freedoms through which they are allowed to live and prosper. Patriotism cannot be forgotten, even in the face of laws and principles that need changing.

Our country was founded by those who wanted freedom, religious and otherwise. The basic tenets of our Bill of Rights guarantees it. It is a pity that those rights must be abused. The Sertoma Clubs are to be commended for again calling our attention to this during Freedom Week.

'DID I REALLY WANT THIS JOB?'

Dangerous Dip

Editor, THE VIRGINIA BEACH SUN:

I read your editorial in last week's paper concerning the rise in traffic deaths. You stated that one of the ways to keep traffic deaths down was to eliminate dangerous road conditions. I agree with you, and I would like to draw attention to one extremely dangerous condition that exists, not six blocks from the ocean front on Laskin Road.

I am referring to the outside, west bound lane, almost directly in front of the marinas located there. If anyone should go the speed limit over that section of the road he may very likely find himself thrown—either into another car or the water.

There are other projects which take precedence over this, I am sure, but I thought I would mention it just in case no one else has noticed.

Mrs. M. Gunch.

Wear Your Makeup, Fellas

Now it's the great debate, 1969 style. Norfolk State Sen. Henry E. Howell, Jr. tossed out the challenge of TV debates by the Democratic candidates for Governor recently. It can never really be known for certain, but there is some speculation that he thought his opponents, Messrs. Battle and Pollard, and maybe Hahn, might ignore the challenge the way a fellow by the name of Nixon did in the presidential campaign of late.

But Battle jumped right in and said he would be glad to debate, and Pollard followed. Next a TV station in Roanoke offered its facilities for filming the debates and said they would make copies available to any other stations across the state that wanted them. Now it appears that Howell may find himself in a debate after all with at least two formidable opponents. Actually, whatever Howell's intentions were in requesting such a great debate, the reasons for holding one or more are sound. No other way can so many Virginians see and hear all the candidates make a prepared statement, then respond under pressure to the slings and arrows of their opponents in an off the cuff manner. None of the three are considered accomplished speakers, and this may come as a bit of a shock to television viewers. Should Hahn also be in the race, at least he is a better speaker.

Speaking of Dr. T. Marshall Hahn, the hour of decision is upon us. As Democrats gather for politicking and dinner in Richmond at the Jefferson-Jackson Day conclave Saturday, Hahn has promised to let his intentions be known at that time. There are just as many who believe he will enter the race as do not think he will. That feeling could be based on his apparent indecision to this time. Should he come in, he is a latecomer, and may face odds hard to overcome. It would appear that a large number of politically influential people are already committed. And while Hahn could prove to be a formidable opponent based on his ability and his own personal merit, he would be just another non-charisma candidate in the fray.

And his entrance would almost guarantee a run-off primary election, since it is doubtful any one candidate could get a clear majority of the votes in a four-way race. It is already an accepted fact that it will be difficult enough in a three-way race.

While the candidates have already agreed to support actively the winner of the primary in the November general election, the effect of a divisive campaign, especially split four ways, there is little doubt of the effect on GOP chances in the fall. They obviously would be increased greatly by a big enough fight.

But then A. Linwood Holton, expected Republican standard-bearer is playing it rather coy at present. While the rank and file of the GOP is definitely looking to Holton as their ray of hope, he apparently is not ready to say anything yet. In fact, upon questioning, he just won't make any comment. That ought to keep the GOP in line. If they say anything nasty about him, he could really mess things up by not running.

Meanwhile back on the Democratic side, Norfolk State Sen. Edward Breeden's impressive trial balloon suggesting that the candidate for Lt. Governor should be a consensus candidate and, of course, that he would be available, has been met with an apparent overwhelming surge of apathy.

No consensus candidate has emerged since then and the world has not beaten a path to Breeden's door. It looks now like everyone is still playing it rather cagey waiting for the top spot candidates to let their views be known generally. Then maybe the No. 2 and No. 3 on the slate can jump on a given bandwagon.

The campaign of 1969 reflects a tremendous change in Virginia politics. From the great debates to wide open faction splits, frontier politics have returned to Virginia for the first time in many years.

SPOTS

By H. Joseph Lowenthal, Jr.

"Do you feel any better?" she asked. "Did the bicarbonate help?"

"Not much," he answered to both questions. "I'll swear to you right now, I'll never do that again, no matter who suggests it or who it will please."

"Well, it wasn't altogether the girls' fault that you have a bad case of indigestion," she said. "The service in that restaurant and the cold food helped somewhat."

"I know," he said. "Incidentally how do you feel?"

"I feel fine, now," she said. "I took a tranquilizer as soon as we got home. And besides I walked my meal down, going back and forth to the bathroom with the girls every 15 minutes."

Let's All Go Out to Eat

"You know it certainly was nice of my parents to take us out to dinner, but I wish they had let us leave the five and three-year-old monsters at home like I wanted to," he said. "They had a good argument," she said. "They rarely get to see the children."

"I bet they say and heard them enough today," he said. "I saw my Mother sneak a tranquilizer and my Father sneak a bicarbonate when we got home too. But it could have been worse. Remember they wanted us to take the baby too."

"Heaven forbid," she said, shuddering at the thought. "I'm glad you stood firm on that one!"

"I have to admit though, That is the first time I've ever spent the entire afternoon in a restaurant just trying to get served," he said. "I think two and a half hours from menu to dessert is just too long, even in a restaurant that is supposed to be as fancy as that one."

"It's an old restaurant," she said. "And I think our waiter helped open the place."

"At first when our five-year-old kept saying she was hungry and kept yelling she wanted her food, I tried to quiet her," he said. "Later I encouraged it, no matter how people looked at us."

"I don't think the waiter liked it at all the way the girls applauded when he finally did bring the food," she said. "I'd have applauded too if I had had any strength left from waiting so long. But then when I cut into that steak that looked so beautiful on the outside and found a chunk of ice on the inside, I got a little upset."

"Well, after they took everybody's meal back and you made quite a stink to the waiter, the cook, the owner and a few others, it was a delicious meal," she said. "But I have to agree. At first, everything was ice cold, except the salad. That was hot."

"Yes, I guess it was delicious," he said. "I just don't remember, I was too busy trying to keep the two tired girls from throwing onion rings at each other by that time. They were so tired and irritable from such a long wait."

"Well, we learned a lesson," she said. "We'll just wait a couple of years before we take them out to eat again."

"What do you mean?" he yelled. "As far as I'm concerned the next time they go out to eat their husbands will take them. Hand me the bicarbonate again, please."

The American serviceman of World War II returned to his homeland a mature and serious young man. In the military service of World War II he realized, as never before, that the key to his future success was a professional, technical or a liberal arts education.

The country had become highly technical and he realized that if he were to successfully compete in the industrialized society of the future, he needed an education. The government paid for much of this training through the G. I. Bill of Rights. In unprecedented numbers, he returned to high school and college. The population became educated and, as a consequence, democracy was strengthened.

Television began to be used widely, and was destined to have a profound effect on the nation. The itinerant worker could sit in his shack and not merely read or hear how the other half lived, but he could see this influence on the screen of his television set.

The pressure to buy the wonderful new products being advertised on television increased until installment buying gave the average household, appliances, television sets, furniture, furnishings and cars in unprecedented numbers, and an installment debt equal to a year's wages. Television informed the public, as never before, of the events, problems, and progress of our vast nation and the world. Throughout America the habit was quickly adopted of watching the early and late evening news.

The Negro began to express firm dissatisfaction with sitting on the back of a bus; or not being permitted to sit at a lunch counter; or go to the school of his choice; or get the job of his choice; or stay at the motel of his choice; in short, he insisted non-violently, and sometimes violently, on getting his rights as a full and equal citizen; and America began to listen.

Following Roosevelt's New Deal, President Truman promised the Fair Deal; Eisenhower promised a Great Crusade and one of his Supreme Court appointees wrote the majority opinion in Brown vs. the Board of Education, which struck down the separate but equal doctrine in public schools; President Kennedy spoke of the New Frontier, which was not physical but sociological; and President Johnson spoke of the Great Society which he intended to signify a just and equitable society. Civil rights legislation was enacted which promised far reaching results in the field of race relations, and equal opportunities for all.

Meanwhile, imperialism in a clever and sophisticated version, presented itself in the form of Communism. Around the world, international communism was seeking to expand its territories and influence. In Europe it was contained through the Marshall Plan and the Truman doctrine. In Asia a sleeping giant was flexing its muscles and forced America to fight in Korea and Vietnam.

The issues were far more subtle and the evil less clearly defined than in the second World War. As a consequence, America became divided more than at any time since the civil war. It assassinated a President, a presidential aspirant, and a civil rights leader.

The sole bulwark against the unrestricted spread of international communism became the United States of America. Nation after nation fell under the domination of communism. And yet with no help from America, the only nation which freed itself from communism since the second World War was Indonesia. Intelligent and sincere men argued that America could not, and should not, police the world. Others, equally intelligent

Club Marks Freedom Week

Framed copies of the Declaration of Independence were presented to the public libraries of Virginia Beach on Feb. 17, by Dr. Oscar Self, president of the Sertoma Club of Virginia Beach. The city libraries are celebrating Sertoma's Freedom Week program Feb. 23-March 1st.

Mrs. Margaret Beda, library director of the city of Virginia Beach, accepted the framed Declarations on behalf of the city. They will be placed in the three existing library branches at 302-22nd Street, 3612 S. Plaza Trail and 936 Independence Blvd. A copy will also hang in the new Kempsville Branch at 832 Kempville Rd. scheduled for completion in May 1969.

Mrs. Beda announced that all three library branches will feature Freedom Week displays during the week. Both Mrs. Beda and Dr. Self urged children and adults alike to visit their nearest Virginia Beach Branch Library to see and read about our priceless heritage of Freedom and to acquaint themselves with the wide range of services their libraries have to offer. Special bookmarks commemorating Sertoma's Freedom Week Program will be available to all who borrow books from the libraries during Freedom Week.

annually to re-emphasize to people of this country the freedom we enjoy. A. J. Campbell, chairman of the Virginia Beach Sertoma Club Freedom Week committee, said that since libraries are themselves "bas-tions of freedom" he felt it was appropriate to focus attention on them during Freedom Week and possibly help bring more attention at the same time to the Virginia Beach libraries.

'Oliver!' with a New Twist

Except that the cast talks with a British accent and the setting is in and around London, one could swear that "Oliver!" was another of the Hollywood spectacular musicals. It really depends on what the moviegoer is looking for, however.

If one is seeking the blood and guts and old prejudices of "Oliver Twist," it isn't there. The titles tell us "Oliver!" is "freely adapted" from the book, and it really is like the Dickens. If one is looking for a superlative movie well-done, this is it.

The final scenes do get a bit gory, and although this movie is rated for general audiences the younger ones might have a nightmare or two about them.

The film story follows the original plot fairly well but takes many liberties. Young Oliver, born in a workhouse, escapes from his early life and travels to London where he becomes involved with Fagin, who runs a sort of school for young pickpockets. When he is almost adopted, purely coincidentally, by his own true family, he is kidnapped by the thieves, witnesses a murder and a hanging, before all ends well.

Young Mark Lester, nine, plays Oliver nicely, but his role is lost in the spectacular scenery and in the far better acting of others around him. It's not really his fault. It's written that way, or so it would seem. Ron Moody, as a Fagin hardly recognizable from the original, does a magnificent job as the conniving old thief. His performance is heartwarming and beautifully executed.

Oliver Reed gives a fittingly sinister characterization to the role of Bill Sikes, professional burglar and eventually murderer.

His girlfriend, Nancy, is played by Shani Wallis. Regardless of Nancy's social status and questionable morals, Miss Wallis gives a convincingly innocent quality to the role. Her superior music hall singing-voice is delightful.

Another outstanding performance is given by 15-year old Jack Wild, who is Fagin's top pickpocket pupil, The Artful Dodger. This youngster is a skillful actor, singer and dancer.

The music, which includes such known tunes as "Where is Love," "As long as He Needs Me," "I'd Do Anything" and "Consider Yourself", is spirited in the manner of the music halls of London, and one can find himself humming and whistling the tunes a few days later.

The movie version has taken the stage version almost intact, broadened it and improved upon it. "Oliver!" is a BIG musical and an extremely good one worth seeing. The reserved seat Virginia premiere continues at the Princess Theatre in Virginia Beach. HJL and sincere, argued that failure to do so would cause nation after nation to fall as dominoes into the lap of communism.

As Richard M. Nixon prepared to assume the office of President in 1969, without promising a New Deal or a Fair Deal, or a Great Crusade, or a New Frontier, or a Great Society, or some similar objective, the issues were numerous and serious; the containment of international communism; race relations; inflation; America's world-wide commitments; the lessening in value of the dollar; poverty; housing; tight money; atomic proliferation; the Middle East tensions; high taxation; public morality; medical care; labor relations; pollution; the student rebellion; African unrest.

Amid all this confusion three brave Americans on Christmas Eve, 1968, circled within 60 miles of the moon and reminded the world that "In the Beginning God created the Heaven and the earth." Quite probably, this was the message America and the world needed.

VBDC to Present Study

A major economic data study of the city will be presented by the Virginia Beach Development Council at a meeting scheduled for May 29. Gov. Mills E. Godwin Jr. will be the featured speaker at the May meeting.

Groundwork for the study was laid out at a meeting on Feb. 6 by the VBDC. The study is an update of a 1965 Vepco-VBDC economic report on the city.

Chief coordinator for the study is W. C. Rigby, Vepco community development department manager; E. R. Cockrell, VBDC president, is chairman.

Host for the May meeting is Clenton Shanks, and Robert DeFord is chairman of the presentation program.

Several other committee chairmen were named. They are: Russell Ruck, manpower;

Charles Gardner, community facilities; Capt. S. T. Sadler, physical assets; David Norman, government; Frank Kellam, industrial sites; Robert Turner, market resources; and Lawrence Sanello, publicity.

One thousand copies of a four-page economic data summary was delivered to the council on Jan. 29.

The City Council had requested an economic study in September, 1968. This study is a relative analysis between Virginia Beach and other cities with similar economic situations, such as Fort Lauderdale, Fla. It will be presented later on as phase two of the May 29 report.

Neither a time nor a place has been set for the May meeting.

Before men could fly the first airplane, they had to do more than want to fly, they had to learn the laws of flight to set them free from the earth.

Similarly, when men pray and seem to receive no answer, can it be that they have something first to learn about prayer... and about the benevolent laws of God?

Cape Henry Presents Projector

"It really does have my name on it," exclaimed Betty (Mrs. Robert) Wahab as the Cape Henry Woman's Club presented a movie projector to the Virginia Beach Chapter of the American Cancer Society in her name last week.

Mrs. Wahab, a former member of the club, is dressings chairman of the Cancer Society and has served as its secretary, president and vice president. In 1959 she was Cape Henry Woman's Club "Woman of the Year."

In accepting the projector for the Cancer Society, Mrs. Wahab said that she is "only a representative of the many, many people who do the work." She said it is dedicated to all the volunteers in the American Cancer Society.

Larry Sancilio, president of the Cancer Society, said that this year's goal is $28,000. Of this amount 45 percent goes to the local chapter for transportation, education, dressings and the loan closet. The rest is sent to the American Cancer Society for grants and fellowships.

Sancilio said that an estimated 1,078 persons have been cured of cancer in Virginia Beach. Within the last year 626 have been under medical care, and 218 died. A total of 408 new cases are expected within a year of which 138 will be saved. Looking ahead, he said that 35,000 persons in Virginia Beach will have cancer, of which 21,000 will die. "If we can do anything to combat this thing that's what we will do."

Mrs. John Doyle, vice president of the Friends of Music, told the club members that "There's no reason why Virginia Beach can't be a cultural center." She added that a "community that offers many activities attracts business." She said that the concerts provide a family activity that offers something besides "psychedelic dance halls" for teens.

Cavaliers Have Gala Premiere

It was a night for awards as the Cavalier Junior Woman's Club sponsored a premiere of "Oliver!" Saturday night.

It was a gala affair complete with flowing fountains of punch to ladies from the Adam Thoroughgood House present in their period costumes. Cake and punch were served to all (and there was a crowd) after the movie.

Mrs. Robert M. McCall, president of the Cavalier Junior Woman's Club, presented the awards. The first was to Taylor Mills, director of public relations for the Motion Picture Association of America for encouraging better motion pictures.

Sidney Zins, publicity representative for Columbia Pictures, accepted an award for the production of "Oliver!" as a family movie. James Wannall, manager of the Princess Theatre received an Exhibitors Award for excellence in movies shown at his theatre.

A check for $340 was presented by the club to School Supt.

E.E. Brickell for the purchase of an audiometer to test hearing of students.

Another check was given to Mrs. Richard H. Templeton, Tidewater District Junior Director of the Virginia Federation of Women's Club, to go toward the purchase of a Clinac Linear Accelerator for the University of Virginia Medical School. All junior and senior women's clubs in the state are contributing toward buying this machine which fights cancer. There are only 30 in the United States.

I Hope the Church Won't Mind

Kings Grant or Windsor Oaks School as it is now technically known since the old building burned down before Christmas, sponsored a special afternoon showing of "Oliver!" to help raise funds for the school's library, since many books were heavily damaged by smoke and fire.

One of my neighbors kindly invited the seven-year-old along to keep her seven-year-old company. That night she said she didn't have a bit of trouble with them—they wouldn't sit with her—too old for such things. However, I discovered later that they had sat beside their teacher and her grandson. I bet the teacher loved that!

Someone mentioned later that "Parents Magazine" did not recommend "Oliver!" for young children. But as my neighbor commented later, "They see scarier programs on television on Saturday morning."

When she got home, the seven-year-old said that she had gone to sleep and her teacher had waked her up. I saw the movie Saturday night and I don't see how anybody could have gone to sleep!—especially when surrounded by an audience of about 700 kids.

She also said that she had cried when Oliver begged for another bowl of soup. I told her it was cruel—then had to explain what cruel is. I don't think she believed me.

Next she said she was scared when she saw the villain, Bill Sykes, hanging from a rope. After I saw the movie she asked me if I had seen the body too.

By that time I was a little worried about what kind of impression the movie had made on her. She then announced that she wanted to see it again and that she wanted to take her sister and brother along.

As a final straw she showed up after church Sunday with her offering still in her pocket. She wanted to save enough money to take the others to the movie.

Hairdressers Hold Charity Ball

The Norfolk Hairdressers' Association held their annual Charity Ball Saturday at Lake Wright. Highlights of the Ball included a new hairstyles show and "National Beauty Salon Week" Queen.

This was the first year the new spring hair trends were shown to the general public... only licensed hairdressers have been allowed to see the styles in the past. The "new look" is reminiscent of the late 30's or early 40's. Several blondes, platinum and near-platinum, were featured. The main style is short, with soft curls peeking out of waves. There is a minimum amount of height to the styling—there is more of a horizontal line to the overall effect. More emphasis is being placed on the set rather than the comb-out. The nape-line of the hair is tapered with a great deal of movement.

Several of the styles, particularly the evening styles, were done in contrasting hair colors. This was accomplished with the use of hairpieces of various types.

There were three "Artistry" entries in the hairstyles show. This category is a complete look, rather than just the hair. The hair stylist creates a fun mood by using his imagination.

Beverly Jane Ward, sponsored by Lahair's Beauty Salon was chosen as "National Beauty Salon Week" Queen.

HERE COMES OLGA!

Friday night was the formal opening of the White Sands Country Club which was originally the Bow Creek Country Club.

Congressman Tom Downing and Linda Phillips, Miss Virginia Beach, cut the ribbon, Friday night being Valentine's night the ribbon carried out the valentine color of red. Ribbon cut, the club was official opened.

When I walked into the club the workmen were just finishing some of the work. You might say they just made it in time. The formal opening was very well attended. I don't believe I ever saw so many people in one club. I am sure that Ed Doty manager of the club who was formerly with The Cavalier, couldn't have been happier over the opening.

Champagne was flowing as if it were going out of style. The minute you walked in you were served champagne, and the minute the last swallow was gone from that glass there was someone handing you another one. For those who did not like champagne there was a bar where you could get your preference as to drink, but you had to belong to the club and of course your bottle was kept behind the bar.

The club is quite beautiful, and they have some wonderful entertainers already engaged for the club: Ink spots, Frank Sinatra, Jr. and his band and many more.

Will Decker and his quartet played for the opening. I had never heard of them before but I don't think I will forget them because they were really good.

I could never in this world be able to get the names of all the people there. I took a position near the hors d'oeuvre table and took down a few names as they passed by. A few of those attending were: Mayor Dusch and his wife, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Dowling, Mr. and Mrs. Jerome M. Perlman, Mr. and Mrs. N. P. Amato, Mr. and Mrs. Abraham Kishner, Mr. and Mrs. Mike Cleveland, Mr. and Mrs. Herman Monaco, Mr. and Mrs. Alan Gass, J. G. Parrish, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Silverman, Mr. and Mrs. Herman Trent, Mr. and Mrs. R. S. Buck, Mr. and Mrs. Ronald P. Heckam, Mr. and Mrs. J. James Davis, Mr. and Mrs. Joe Lowenthal, Mr. and Mrs. Reeves Johnson, Cmdr. and Mrs. Sol Kaplan and Mr. and Mrs. Donald Evans.

For dinner you had a choice of roast beef, seafood or ham with all the trimmings and to finish it off there were all kinds of Danish pastry for dessert.

Saturday night The American Legion Club Post 113 held their 50th Anniversary Ball at Pembroke Mall.

Doc Severinsen's Orchestra from Johnny Carson's tonight show played for the ball. This band is a terrific show band and invariably people would get up to dance but finally would end up around the band stand watching the band.

The band was right in the center of the hall and tables were placed from one end of the hall to the other. Approximately 100 tables were set up. I am sorry to say they were all not filled.

The buffet table was set up right near Lindy's delicatessen. I am sure it was placed there due to the fact that Lindy catered and it was much easier to see that the table at all times was filled with food.

Mrs. Jane Kubell was wearing a very attractive dress of silver with a mini skirt. But believe me she had the figure for a mini dress. The sleeves were long and fell from the elbow in butterfly style; her shoes were silver. Her hair was black and cut very short and the silver against her olive complexion and black hair made her quite outstanding.

Some of those attending were: Miss Nancy Elles, Harry Boyle, Mr. and Mrs. R. V. Powell, Mr. and Mrs. Andy Roberts, Mr. and Mrs. James Hall, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Jacobs, Mr. and Mrs. Joe Lightman, Mr. and Mrs. Art Leto, Mr. and Mrs. Nate Kubel, Mr. and Mrs. John Keller, Mr. and Mrs. George Nevelle, Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Stefano, Lt. and Mrs. Tom Adcock, Mr. and Mrs. Howard Pittman, Mr. and Mrs. Edward Nixon, Mr. and Mrs. B. R. Middleton, Mr. and Mrs. Pete Marx, Mr. and Mrs. Pete Anola, and Mr. and Mrs. Howard Pittman.

The young ladies that ushered you to the tables were dressed in long white dresses, white gloves and a corsage of red carnations. The young men who also ushered were dressed in light blue military cut away jackets, dark slacks, white shirt and black tie with a red carnation boutonniere.

Once everyone was settled and at their tables the young folks really got in the party and started dancing. Jim Pilley, the chairman of the ball, got into the swing of things by dancing with his daughter, and believe me he really could dance. Maybe he isn't a teen ager but he kept up with her nevertheless.

Tickets were sold for chances on a Javelin. Midnight was the bewitching hour to find out who would win this beautiful car, guess who won? B. R. Middleton, I often wonder how people look out on these things.

Next week I will see you at the Princess Anne Country Club and Colonial Arms Apartments Club House for parties.

Mr. and Mrs. Nate Kubell talk with Ken Harmon of Doc Severinsen's band at the American Legion dance at Pembroke Mall Saturday night.

Serve Cherry Coffee Cake for Holiday

Whether or not George Washington liked to eat cherries is a point of controversy. However, the cherry has come to represent Washington and distinguish the holiday named for him.

You can bring this holiday to the breakfast table by serving bacon and Cherry Crumble Coffeecake to a hungry family.

Bacon starts the day off right.

The crisp delicious slices have the brown sugar cure and hardwood smoked flavor that give the bacon old-fashioned goodness. This bacon with its sweet smoke taste will make hungry youngsters come back for more. Its flavor goes so well with the coffeecake that it's wise to have a big platter on the table and plenty on hand.

Cherry Crumble Coffeecake is a streusel-topped quickbread that takes less than 10 minutes to assemble and 30 minutes to bake.

- 1/2 stick (1/4 cup) butter or margarine, melted
- 1/2 c. flour
- 1/2 c. packed brown sugar
- 1/4 tsp. cinnamon

Orange juice in a water goblet adds an elegant touch to breakfast. So why not make holidays special? Serving bacon and coffeecake for breakfast will brighten the day and put the whole family into good spirits.

CHERRY CRUMBLE COFFEE CAKE

Yield: 9 inch square cake
1/4 c. shortening
3/4 c. granulated sugar

2 tsp. baking powder
1/2 tsp. salt

'All American' Is More Than Gimmick

The All American Selections of flowers and vegetables for your garden are now getting the big play in seed catalogs. You may be asking whether this is just another sales gimmick, or do they deserve special attention?

To get directly to the point, the All American Selections are superior varieties. You should look for them when you buy seeds from a garden center or catalog.

The reason the All American Selections are outstanding is because of the careful testing they have received before they are named and released to the public. Trial gardens are located in all parts of the United States to evaluate these new varieties. The tests are conducted at many state experiment stations. You can see the flower trial gardens this summer at Virginia Tech at Blacksburg.

The procedure is actually an elaborate nationwide testing program. New selections from many plant breeders are sent to all of the test gardens. Each variety has a different code number. They are compared for several years and careful observations recorded of their growth habit, yield and quality. Then, the really outstanding ones are chosen and given the honor of being All American Selections.

It is easy to understand why these varieties may be the best ones for your garden. They have been tested under many different climatic and soil conditions. Therefore, they have demonstrated unusual dependability. They should grow well for you even during seasons when the weather is somewhat unfavorable. In addition to being dependable, the All American Selections of vegetables will be attractive, have high quality and produce high yields. The flowers will produce an abundance of beautiful, long lasting blooms.

When selecting the flowers and vegetables for your garden, you should consider disease resistance. Many of the new introductions can be grown with much less spraying than some of the older susceptible varieties. In particular, look for resistant asters, rust resistant cucumbers, mildew and leaf spot resistant muskmelons and blight and wilt resistant tomatoes. You will find such varieties are much easier to grow.

In general, the hybrid varieties are more vigorous and productive than other types. However, do not assume that this means they are also resistant to disease. They may be in some cases, but not in others. Check the description. The seed producer will proudly announce any hybrid or disease resistant characteristics of the variety. Try some of the new improved sorts this summer. You will be glad you did.

Transplanting shrubs and trees is often considered such a simple task that nothing more is required than a strong back. However, this is not the case.

A knowledge of the plant and its root system is especially helpful. A knowledge of the soil type is useful, also, especially where drainage might be a problem. Any special peculiarities of the plant should also be kept in mind, also.

When transplanting, the hole should be dug at least a foot wider and at least six inches deeper than the root ball. You should then loosen the soil in the bottom of the hole, begin backfilling with topsoil and peat mixed, place the plant in and fill. After placing the plant in the hole and filling about halfway, you should loosen the burlap covering on the ball, and lay it back. Then complete the filling process.

When moving the plant or placing it in the hole, care should be taken never to drop it. If this were to happen, the ball would burst, thus breaking the roots. Breaking the roots would reduce the chances of survival greatly.

After transplanting, trees and shrubs should be pruned back to compensate for the loss of roots during the transplanting operation, or sprayed with an anti-desiccant spray to reduce water loss.

Shop wisely by using your newspaper. Check food ads and see what's on "special". Plan around the specials, using favorite recipes, your imagination and courage to try new foods.

Trees Are Lasting Memories

Feb. 22 has been proclaimed as Arbor Day in Virginia Beach by Mayor Frank Dusch as he urged all residents, owners and occupiers of property to plant a tree during the month of February.

The Council of Garden Clubs is also urging each citizen to participate in the observance of Arbor Day. According to Mrs. John C. Brewington, Arbor Day chairman for the Council and president of May Farm Garden Club of Kingston, Arbor Day can be a day of family togetherness. "This togetherness can be accomplished by creating a lasting memory while having the joy of knowing you have made a contribution to the beautification and conservation of one of our most precious natural resources," she said.

itself during the hot summer months with a minimum of watering.

To instill in your children a love and respect for nature will help them become better citizens and our nation more productive. Allow your children to assist you in planting a tree on Arbor Day. Watch the joy and pride on their faces as they show their friends their living, growing treasure. A year or 20 years from now they will still be enjoying this tree and remembering the happy family that planted it.

Arbor Day is tree planting day and is observed in Virginia Beach on Feb. 22. Planting now will give your tree a chance to establish a good root system which will enable it to feed

Auxiliary Honors Volunteers

Women of the Ladies Auxiliary of the Seateck Volunteer Fire Department staged a special dinner last Saturday night to honor the men of the department for their outstanding service they have rendered during the past year in protecting the lives and property of the residents of their section of the city of Virginia Beach.

The women raised the funds for the affair through the sale of boxes of candy throughout their community, and through donations given them by various churches, community organizations, and private individuals who wished to join in thanking the Volunteers for their services.

As lasting mementoes of the occasion each of the officers of the department were presented with individual gifts, donated by the Ladies Auxiliary, and each lady attending the dinner presented her husband with a gift as a remembrance of the celebration.

This special dinner was held at Hawkins Inn on Newtown Road, with Mrs. Beatrice Hawkins personally supervising the evening meals' preparation and service.

Chief Aaron Parsons made the department's annual presentation of the "Fireman of the Year Award", which was presented to Capt. Silas Hyman. This marked the second award received by Hyman this year honoring him for his devotion to fire fighting duties in protecting the citizens of Virginia Beach. Hyman earlier received a runner up award during the presentation of the "Fireman of the Year Award" for the entire city of Virginia Beach.

E. B. Bayne, chief of the Beach Borough Fire Dept. and Richard Pentress, chief of the Oceana NAS Fire Dept., and their wives, attended the dinner as special guests of the Ladies Auxiliary.

Those who compose the Ladies Auxiliary board of officers are Mrs. Myrtle Johnson, president; Mrs. Inez Hyman, vice president; Mrs. Virginia Burton, secretary; Mrs. Calitha Owens, assistant secretary; Mrs. Earline Wilson, treasurer; and Mrs. Rosa Hoggan, chaplain.

New PTA Installs Officers

Bill H. Elmore was elected President of the newly formed Point O View Elementary School PTA. Mrs. Paul Cousins, extension chairman of the Virginia Beach Council of PTAs, and Mrs. Martin Mulderig, president of the Virginia Beach Council of PTAs installed the officers in a candlelight ceremony. Other officers are: Mrs. Melville V. Kohn, first vice-president; Mrs. William G. Duggan, second vice-president; Mrs. Harry Traylor, corresponding secretary; Paul Morris, recording secretary, and Mrs. James R. Kuchera, treasurer. The Bylaws were then read for approval by Mrs. Traylor.

Mac Rawls, principal of the school, addressed the large attendance and thanked them for their desire and support in forming the PTA. Rawls introduced the guest speaker, Bruce McGuire, director of elementary education, who has served with the Virginia Beach School system for the past 14 years.

McGuire discussed the interest of serving on the PTA, not only in one immediate school but in all schools and educational systems. He described the schools of 1700 and what was taught then and what materials were used in comparison to now to enable us to realize how we have advanced, and that the content and methods of teaching are constantly changing. He said he hopes that every child will develop a positive self-image... that individual differences do exist in children and no child will be a failure if properly taught so that one can move forward with dignity and pride.

Refreshments were served by the hospitality chairman, Mrs. Vic White and committee. Room attendance prizes were won by Mrs. Sylvia Houser, second grade and Mrs. Sandra Stephenson, fourth grade.

Virginia Beach Auxiliary Police officers will go on special assignment this Sunday, Col. D.T. Fantone, Auxiliary C.O., says the men will be on duty at the First & Merchants Bank in Princess Anne Plaza as security during the collection of donations in the city in the annual "Heart Sunday" fund drive.

Men of the Rescue Squads of Virginia Beach are busily engaged in making preparations for the forthcoming seminar of District Two of the Virginia State Rescue Squad Association. The seminar is scheduled to take place March 15 and 16 at the Princess Anne Plaza Fire Station in Windsor Woods.

Sgt. Kenneth J. LaGrotta, officer in charge of training for the recently expanding police K-9 Corps, says the squads are progressing at a satisfactory pace. Men and dogs are rapidly adjusting to each other, and the responsibilities the unit will face in the near future.

Milton Holland, Chief Fire Inspector for the city, says the relocation of the Fire Prevention Bureau headquarters has been delayed due to minor problems. Holland indicates the office should be moved in the near future from its present location in the Beach Borough Fire Department headquarters building to a building on Court-house Road at Princess Anne Courthouse which was formerly occupied by the City Attorney. We understand "stardom in the show biz world" was short lived for Sgt. Douglas McCloud of the city's police Juvenile Division. Sgt. McCloud was called upon by a local television station to make a presentation on the subject of child molesters. When Sgt. McCloud returned to his office he discovered the door had been decorated with three stars, the traditional "show biz" sign of stardom. His glory was short lived however when another member of the department mentioned something about "equal billing", and the stars were regrettably removed.

Navy Band Performs at Kellam

By Rod Amis

Kellam High School became the second school in the area to be honored in hearing a performance by the Command Cruiser Destroyer Flotilla 8, Band # 175. This band, consisting of 15 accomplished musicians under the direction of Chief James R. Miller, has recently toured the Eastern Seaboard.

In interviews with members of the band, the director and the major vocalist, we learned that the band has just returned from a tour of Elizabeth City high schools. Their last performance was at Lake Taylor Junior High School.

The band held two performances at Kellam—one in the morning and one before lunch. Among the numbers performed were "Tiny Bubbles," "Carnival of Venice," "Brasilia," "Watermelon Man," "The Shadow of Your Smile" and "Goin' Out of My Head." Performing is the basic function of the men in the band. They have served on such distinguished vessels as the USS Boston, USS Galveston and the USS Little Rock. Their most recent tour was aboard the USS Norfolk.

The band was officially formed in 1935 when the Naval School of Music, located at Little Creek, was established. Orchestration then became an official rating for sailors. Requirements for the rating are that the applicants be accomplished musicians who have played their instruments through high school, that they pass auditions for placement and that they take the basic music course at the Naval School, as well as a refresher course every four years. The average size of such bands is anywhere from 13 to 22 men.

The director, James R. Miller, is a native of Hollywood, Calif., and has been in the Navy 13 years. He has a chief's rating. Chief Miller, who is well-liked by all members of the band, has taken the one year advanced course of music theory and history. He serves as official arranger for all their music.

Chief Miller explained that Friday's show is very similar to their night club show and commented that he considered the Kellam audience "one of the best...this audience has a certain sophistication that we didn't find in the North Carolina area."

Chief Miller entered the Navy as a musician. Upon finishing his service he plans to be musical director and manager for Dan Giovannelli, lead vocalist of the group. Chief Miller has great hope for Giovannelli, which is a feeling shared by most of the bandmen.

Giovannelli is a native of South Philadelphia, who takes pride in the fact that he lived four blocks from Joey Bishop. He did not volunteer for work in the band as the other men did. Instead, he more or less got a "lucky break."

He originally served on a small destroyer, where he worked as a ship's serviceman in the laundry. An admiral transferred him to a ship on which the band served. While he was singing one night he was asked to join the band. It has paid off. With Chief Miller's help he plans to get a professional contract when he gets out of the Navy in November.

The "silver-throated" young man says he enjoys "Boots" Randolph, and his favorite vocalist is Tony Bennett. The thing he seems to enjoy most is the fact that he is single.

Chief Miller was of special interest to the students of Kellam High School because he plans to marry Linda Deane, a '66 Kellam graduate.

Career Night Draws Crowd

More than 1,000 Virginia Beach high school students participated in the Career Night sponsored by the Cavalier Junior Woman's Club at Princess Anne High School last Wednesday night.

Students could investigate a variety of careers ranging from Accounting, Advertising and Agriculture through to Veterinary and VEPCO. Students could talk to representatives of three careers in which they were interested. Sixty representatives were present.

Students in grades eight through 12 were invited to participate. Representatives included business corporations, trade schools, and vocational skills which, for the most part, do not require college degrees.

Guidance counselors in the high schools worked with the Cavaliers in planning the night and to notifying the students.

Name of Bank Changes

Seaboard Citizens National Bank, along with ten member banks of United Virginia Bankshares Incorporated, a registered bank holding company, has changed its name and adopted a new emblem. The new name of Seaboard Bank is United Virginia Bank/Seaboard National.

J. Hoge Tyler, III, Chairman of the Board of United Virginia Bank/Seaboard National, unveiled the new emblem at a short ceremony held at the bank's York Street Office. A simultaneous unveiling took place throughout the state, following a broadcast conference call from Richmond of remarks by J. Harvie Wilkinson, Jr., president of United Virginia Bankshares Incorporated, and Gov. Mills E. Godwin, Jr.

In early December Seaboard Bank announced it had elected to take this step because of the increasing mobility of the state's population and in order to take advantage of overlapping communications and promotional media.

New names of the other member banks of United Virginia Bankshares Inc. are: United Virginia Bank/State Planters, Richmond, formerly State Planters Bank of Commerce and Trusts; United Virginia Bank/Citizens & Marine, Newport News, formerly Citizens and Marine Bank; United Virginia Bank of Williamsburg, Williamsburg, formerly Peninsula Bank and Trust Company; United Virginia Bank/First National, Lynchburg, formerly First National Trust and Savings Bank; United Virginia Bank/Rockbridge, Lexington, formerly Rockbridge Bank and Trust Company; United Virginia Bank/Spotswood, Harrisonburg, formerly Spotswood Bank and Trust Company; United Virginia Bank of Fairfax, Vienna, formerly The Vienna Trust Company; United Virginia Bank/First and Citizens National, Alexandria, formerly First and Citizens National Bank; and United Virginia Bank/National Valley, Staunton, formerly The National Valley Bank.

Beach Earns Tournament Berths

It's official now! Virginia Beach high school basketball teams placed squarely in the middle of the Eastern District standing. Cox is No. 3; Princess Anne is No. 4; and First Colonial is No. 5.

The regular season district play ended last Friday night with Maury in undisputed possession of the No. 1 spot, undefeated in district play. The Commodores' only loss was to Booker T. in a non-conference tilt. Booker T. of Norfolk placed second. But Cox and Princess Anne were tied, each with seven district wins to three defeats.

A drawing for the No. 3 spot gave the nod to Cox, with its 14-3 overall record, over Princess Anne, with its 13-5 overall record. First Colonial had already captured fifth place. Then three teams, Lake Taylor, Granby and Norview, were tied for the bottom three slots in the Eastern District tournament which begins Tuesday, Feb. 25, at the Norfolk Arena. Another drawing resolved this blockade. Lake Taylor drew sixth; Granby, seventh; and Norview, eighth. All three teams had identical district records of four wins and six defeats.

Kempville barely missed a tournament berth with a final district game loss to Granby last Friday night. The loser of the game was eliminated from the eight-place tourney. Thus all five of Norfolk's high schools will be represented in the district tournament, compared to only three of Virginia Beach's six. Winless Bayside and one-district-game winner Kellam were also eliminated.

The pairings for the tourney in the first round will pit Cox against Lake Taylor and Booker T. against Granby on Feb. 25. The next evening Princess Anne and Maury against Norview. The two semi-final games will be played Friday, Feb. 28, and the consolation and district championship games will be played the following evening.

March 1. The Eastern Regional playoffs are scheduled the following weekend, March 7 and 8, and the State tournament is scheduled March 14 and 15.

In last weekend's action Cox played two games, winning both, but one just barely. All school records were broken in Friday's game with Kellam as the Falcons scored 100 points to Kellam's 51. The following night Keith Sudduth, who incidentally will be back next year, dropped in a two-pointer with two seconds left after missing a foul shot to break a tie. The Falcons nipped Great Bridge 55-53. Sudduth scored 33 against Kellam and 16 against Great Bridge. Thus the Cox team bounced back after consecutive losses to Princess Anne, Maury and Booker T.

In other Friday night action Booker T. easily passed Princess Anne, 74-49; First Colonial turned on the big guns and routed Lake Taylor, 91-62; Norview whipped Bayside, 70-56; and Granby took Kempville 68-53.

Union Kempville bounced back also from a surprise defeat last week at the hands of J. F. Kennedy of Suffolk, 57-52, to win handily over Mary N. Smith last weekend 77-50. The Tigers ended their final season with a 9-7 record. The school becomes a special education center next fall.

While the games did not matter in district standings, as surging Norfolk Catholic team rolled over Bayside Tuesday night, 88 to 50, Indian River, which never managed to win a game all season in southeastern district play or outside the district, hosted Kellam and the Knights kept Indian River's record unblemished, winning it 61 to 55.

Tonight Cradock plays host to Kempville and tomorrow night (Friday) the final games of the 1968-1969 basketball regular season will be played. Bayside will try to break its losing streak at Granby but is not expected to do so. Cox is also expected to keep Indian River's record intact Friday night.

The only Virginia Beach cager who managed to average more than 20 points per game during the regular season was Cox's Keith Sudduth, to whom the Falcons are again looking for the 1969-1970 season. His average for 17 games was 21.8 points.

Dark horse Cox was the only real surprise of the season. Maury was expected to win the district title with Booker T. running a close second. Princess Anne and First Colonial were then expected to fill the next two positions. And they might have too, but Cox got in there and won 12 straight games before suffering a loss to take over the No. 3 spot and leave the Patriots and Cavalier to follow them.

Keyettes Sponsor Pageant

Princess Anne H.S.

On Feb. 22 the Princess Anne Keyettes are sponsoring the Miss Princess Anne Pageant. Sixteen girls will vie for this title. They are Linda Harris, Diane Fox, Betty Roberts, Frances Chobot, Vicki Flanagan, Susan Cavender, Cathi Donnelly, Diane Marshall, Maxine Speight, Angi Furlow, Marcia White, Beth Bratten, Nancy Spence, Kay Kelley, Joanne O'Rourke and Gina Garcia. The identities of the judges is being kept a secret until the big night.

The National Honor Society sponsored a Valentine Dance Feb. 15. The dance was dubbed "Salud d'Amour," which means a salute to love. The ticket printer got a bit carried away and printed "Salve d'Amour" on the tickets. Translation: Clean love.

Actually, we were clean for one week. Or, at least, we were supposed to be. The senior and juniors decided to hold a "Pride in Your School" week.

Science students from Virginia Beach high schools wait to board one of the buses taking them to the Surry Nuclear Information Center. They made the trip on Feb. 14 as guests of the Virginia Electric and Power Company.

Seniors Supposed to Clean Everything Up and the Juniors were going to be polite all week.

Well, the project was called off (probably due to lack of dirt?), but the sneaky seniors didn't tell the juniors. These poor kids are still running around being polite and kind.

Hansburger To Autograph Footballs

Chris Hansburger of the Washington Redskins of the National Football League will autograph footballs for Little League Members and Heart Fund contributors on Heart Sunday, Feb. 23.

Hansburger, a member of the national board of directors of the American Heart Association, will be at the Peoples Bank of Virginia Beach on Laskin Road next to the Thunderbird Bowling Lanes from 1:30 to 3 p.m. Sunday.

The church, which has been meeting at Kingston School, has started a $150,000 education building and sanctuary on Little Neck Road. It should be completed in 150 days. L. J. Hoy is the contractor.

Banker Speaks To Class

F.M. Halsey, vice president of First Colonial Bank, gave a lecture on Feb. 13, to one of the General Business classes at First Colonial High School. This class, composed primarily of 9th and 10th grade students, is a course designed to raise the level of economic understanding of all students.

Halsey's lecture included information on four types of banks, the many services offered by the bank, the procedure of obtaining a loan at the bank, and the role of the bank in our community. Halsey also discussed ways in which the Federal Reserve system controls the supply of money. As a final note, he gave the students information on opportunities in the field of banking for both young men and women.

An interesting aspect of this class has been the obtaining of information on budgeting, supply and demand, our free enterprise system, credit, banking, and investing -- not only by reading and studying the textbook -- but also by talking to parents, neighbors and business persons in the community. Other speakers during the year have been C. A. Marlin, manager of Tidewater Better Business Bureau, and R. W. Peck, executive vice president of Retail Merchants Association.

The instructor of this class is Mrs. Carole J. Anthony.

Race Gains Momentum

The Battle-for-Governor forces in Virginia Beach plan to move ahead with their active campaign beginning by the middle of March. V.A. (Jack) Etheridge, City Treasurer, who was named last weekend as announced gubernatorial candidate William C. Battle's vice chairman of his statewide campaign, said campaign units in all city localities down to the precinct level are being developed at present and that work has been progressing for some time.

Battle announced Saturday that state Sen. William V. Rawlings of Capron will serve as state chairman of Battle's campaign for governor.

Battle, a former ambassador to Australia, also announced that in addition to Etheridge, Dr. Herbert C. Jones Jr. of Charlottesville, would serve as a second vice chairman.

Frederick A. Babson, chairman of the Fairfax County Board of Supervisors, and C.F. "Flip" Hicks, a Gloucester lawyer, will serve as statewide coordinators.

Rawlings will be responsible for overall direction of the Battle campaign. Etheridge, a former state senator, has been treasurer of Virginia Beach for 13 years and since 1966 has been considered the leader of a segment of the Democratic Party in the city. He will be in charge of campaign operations, primarily precinct organization.

Battle's state campaign headquarters in Richmond opens Saturday, Feb. 22, and a reception will be held there just prior to the annual Jefferson-

Jackson Day dinner, always a politically important function of Virginia Democrats. On that same day Virginia Polytechnic Institute President

Etheridge

Dr. T. Marshall Hahn is expected to make his intentions known concerning a gubernatorial try. There is speculation that he intends to make the race but some informed sources say they hope he will not and will wait until 1972.

Hahn reportedly asked the VPI Board of Visitors to accept his resignation, but it was passed over at the last meeting pending Saturday's announcement one way or the other by Hahn.

Other announced candidates already firmly in the race are Lt. Gov. Fred G. Pollard, Jr. of Richmond and State Sen. Henry E. Howell, Jr. of Norfolk. Both are expected to be present in Richmond Saturday and hold receptions of their own prior to the banquet at the John Marshall Hotel.

Rudee Inlet Pipes To Be Underwater

City Manager Roger M. Scott's request that the Erosion Commission place underwater sand discharge pipes located behind Rudee Inlet has been answered. Erosion Commission Chairman E.H. Church has announced that the commission is laying lines along the bottom of Lake Rudee and Owl Creek.

This step is being taken in order to prevent the blocking of water traffic in the inlet.

Another request by Scott, to remove the 12-inch lines from the boardwalk, is being opposed by the commission. The pipes would have to be laid on the beach, and past experience with this arrangement has proven unsatisfactory. Sections of the pipe, which comes in 40-foot lengths costing $100 each, have been buried during storms and never recovered.

According to Joseph McDonald, engineering consultant for the commission, the sand discharge pipe should be fastened to the boardwalk bulkhead, but this method would cost more. Sand removal has been authorized by the commission for the mouths of four coves but has been filled by leaking sand discharge lines.

Church reported that $12,577 had been paid to Langley, McDonald and Overman for eight months work. Church also reported that $12,500 had been paid to the commission by the state, which is the quarterly payment of the commission's annual appropriation from the General Assembly.

NARCE Sets Feb. Meeting

Mrs. Mary Ellen Carter, author of the book, "Edgar Cayce on Prophecy," was guest speaker at the recent meeting of the National Association of Retired Civil Employees, Virginia Beach Chapter #974.

The next NARCE meeting will be held Feb. 27, 2 p.m., in the old city council chambers on 19th Street.

All retired Civil Service employees are invited to attend.

Volunteers Install Officers

New officers of the Chesapeake Beach Volunteer Fire & Rescue Department were installed during a special dinner meeting last Friday night.

Those who will guide the departments operation for the coming year consist of F.E. Quist, chief; A.L. Zavitski, deputy chief; Albert Benke, assistant chief; T.W. Marois, captain; William Benker, captain; and Donald Barr, rescue squad captain. The slate of administrative officers for the coming year consists of Clarence L. Eubank, president; Morrison Walker, vice president; C.S. Tibbitts, secretary; William E. Watson, treasurer; and A.F. Montrose, floor representative.

Featured speaker for the evening was Ivan Mapp, Virginia Beach Commissioner of Revenue and chairman of the city's Fire Council, who spoke on the necessity of his office recently setting up a computer system of recording payments on income, real estate, business and sales taxes by residents of the resort city. Mapp pointed out the computer system has become necessary because of the increase in the city's population and the vast sums of money paid on the various taxes. As examples, Mapp cited some $4.5 million dollars in State income taxes withheld from salaries in the city last year, the payment of some $70,000 in business license taxes and payment of some $800,000 in taxes by public service corporations.

The evening was marked by the presentation of a number of special awards. William E. Watson was presented a trophy honoring him as "Fireman of the Year"; Mrs. Maude Pavey, president of the Ladies Auxiliary, was presented a plaque thanking the women of the Auxiliary for their many services during the past decade; and Mrs. Bertha Benke accepted a plaque for her husband, Asst. Chief Albert Benke, who was unable to attend due to illness, awarded him as the outstanding departmental officer of the year.

Dr. C.A. Holland, Dr. William T. Johnson and James Parker

were each presented special Honorary Member badges for the services they have rendered to the department.

Special guests for the evening, include E.B. Bayne, Beach Borough Fire Dept. chief; George Lyon, Ocean Park Fire Dept. chief; Calvin Davis, Little Creek Amphibious Base Fire Dept. chief; M.T. Holland, Chief Inspector of the city's Fire Prevention Bureau; G.R. White, Jr., city Civil Defense Coordinator; Carroll G. Clough, city Purchasing Agent, and Richard J. Webson, city Urban Affairs Coordinator, and W.J. Lewis, retired chief of the Norfolk City Fire Dept. who is also an honorary member of the Chesapeake Beach Volunteers.

Friday and Saturday night will mark the two final performances of the George Bernard Shaw comedy, "Arms and the Man" at the Courtyard Playhouse. Pictured are Glenn Graham and Linda Phillips in a scene from the Virginia Beach Little Theatre's costume show of the season.

Gov. Accepts Check

Gov. Mills E. Godwin, Jr., recently accepted a $400,000 check which will go toward acquisition of land for the new False Cape State Park in Virginia Beach.

The check represents the matching 50 per cent federal Land and Water Conservation Fund share of the total $800,000 purchase price of this first land acquisition for the new park.

The check was handed to the Governor by Roy Wood, Regional Director of the Southeast Region of the Bureau of Outdoor Recreation.

Funds received by Virginia from the Land and Water Conservation Fund, with state funds appropriated for the Virginia Outdoors Plan, are administered by the Commission of Outdoor Recreation. The acquisition, management and protection of the state parks is under the Division of State Parks. Commissioner of Parks, Ben Bolen, hopes to proceed with other acquisitions as rapidly as additional funds are available.

False Cape is one of the seven new state parks for which funds have been approved by the Commission of Outdoor Recreation since the Commission was created in 1966.

The land being purchased in this first acquisition is the William S. and Martha B. Barbour property.

False Cape State Park is situated South of Virginia Beach and adjoins the Back Bay National Wildlife Refuge. It will preserve one of the last remaining stretches of natural beach on the eastern coast. The State park will serve the heavily populated Hampton Roads Area and attract visitors from the entire eastern seaboard.

Virginia Beach City Council is on record against the building of the park because of the taking of the valuable land for park development instead of commercial and residential development.

Dr. Mayo Appointed

Dr. Fitzhugh Mayo of Virginia Beach has received an appointment to the five member Clinical Investigation Committee of the American Academy of General Practice.

Dr. Mayo of S. Woodside Lane will serve one year on the committee designed to establish a program to assist family doctors in pursuing independent research in clinical procedures.

Another important phase of the committee will be the setting up of standards in the field of clinical research which will be satisfactory to the Food and Drug Administration.

could be moved easily for sporting events at schools, as needed, and that a number of organizations are willing to use the stadium if a 10,000 capacity can be guaranteed. Council decided to look for enough money to act favorably on the request.

City Manager Roger Scott also informed City Council that School Supt. E. E. Brickell was taking steps to bring non-instructional personnel salaries in line with other salary scales as adopted by the city as recommended by the Yarger report.

Some of the school salaries had been higher than those of other city offices, and as new personnel are hired, they are being paid according to the new scale, although the School Board does not come under the Yarger report ordinance.

Council is expected to accept the bid of Higginson-Buchanan, Inc. of Chesapeake at its Monday meeting for the clearing of the Industrial Development Authority's new industrial property at Little Creek. The low bid was for $19,747.

In the closed portion of Council's meeting last Monday, the chairman of the Industrial Development Committee, Richard Kline, urged City Council to consider offering incentives to lure new industry to the city. He did not offer any specific recommendations, but other cities have sometimes offered tax breaks and other help to new industry as an incentive to locate there.

Language Conference Meets Here

The Virginia State Department of Education will sponsor its Eighth Annual Conference for Foreign Language Teachers at The Cavalier in Virginia Beach. The conference will begin on Friday, Feb. 28, at 7:30 p.m. and will conclude at 3:00 p.m. on Saturday, March 1.

The theme of the Eighth Conference will be motivation—the problem of creating an interest in students for foreign language, how to inspire students to better achievement in foreign language, and how to encourage students to take more than the usual two years of a foreign language.

Dr. Alfred N. Smith, Department of Linguistics, Memphis State University, Memphis, Tenn., will be the keynote speaker for the Friday evening session.

On Saturday the agenda will include reports on "Summer Programs Abroad" and "New Programs at Home." In addition, there will be discussion groups on such topics as "How to Create and Sustain Interest in Foreign Language Study," and "The Language Underachiever: Elementary Through High School."

THA Sponsors Training Course

A special training course, sponsored by the Tidewater Heart Association, was held Feb. 12 at General Hospital of Virginia Beach.

The course was on cardiopulmonary resuscitation. It was attended by 50 nursing and ambulance personnel.

Dr. W. A. Dickinson, president of the Tidewater Heart Association, has stated that this training course is part of an organized series of courses will stay out of the matter and suggest that it is something to be straightened out by the residents and the Thoroughgood Corp. This, if it happens, is not expected to satisfy the residents of Thoroughgood, and Monday's City Council meeting could be, at best, a noisy one.

"I don't need to save. I've got a good job and good credit."

So you say you've got a nice fat paycheck coming in every month?

BALONEY.

The people at F&M will tell it like it is.

Just try to borrow money to retire on. Or just try and charge something if you suddenly lose that good job.

Listen. You need to decide right now to start saving regularly. And since that's not so easy, you need to choose a savings plan that's right for you. And the best place to start is at F&M.

Because we offer you more ways to save money than anybody else in Virginia.

Regular Savings

First of all, we have a regular passbook savings account. It's been around for a good while. And for a good reason. It's the most convenient way for most people to save regularly.

Save-O-Matic

Now if you just can't bear to hand over your money, you need our Save-O-Matic plan. All you do is tell us how much you want to save. And we'll take care of it. Simply by deducting the money from your F&M checking account.

Special Purpose Clubs

Eventually, you're going to need some money for something special. But if you use the money from your regular account, you'll be using your emergency funds. So F&M has designed special club accounts for special savings goals: Vacation Accounts. Boat Accounts. Education Accounts. Christmas Club Accounts. Just to name a few.

5% Plan #1 "Deferred Income"

This is our own brand new 10 Year Deferred Income Certificate. It actually lets you put off paying taxes on the interest you earn for 10 years. And the 5% interest is guaranteed.

Just invest as little as $500 or as much as $100,000. Then don't touch the interest or principal for a decade. You won't have to pay any tax on the interest during that time, if you use the cash method of accounting.

If you're thinking of retiring in about 10 years (or anticipating peak earnings over the next 10 years), this is the 5% plan for you. Because this certificate will then mature when you're in a much lower tax bracket.

It gives you a full 5% interest, guaranteed 10 years and compounded monthly. Giving over the 10 years an effective annual rate of 6.47%.

5% Plan #2 "5 Year Investment"

Regardless of how the economy or interest rates fluctuate, regardless of anything. The F&M 5-year Investment Certificate keeps on giving you 5% annual interest.

We guarantee it.

Interest is compounded monthly. And when held to maturity, this certificate will give an effective annual rate of 5.66%. For instance, if you invested $10,000, in 5 years you'd get back $12,833.61. Of course, if you'd like to withdraw all or part of your funds before maturity, you may do so with 90 days' written notice. With no loss of interest under existing regulations.

5% Plan #3 "Flexible Maturity"

If you want a guaranteed 5% return, but you don't want to tie up your money for very long, F&M's 5% Flexible Maturity Certificate is for you.

Maturities range from 90 days to 5 years. Automatic renewal available. Plus you can withdraw your money at any time, with 90 days' written notice. With no loss of interest under existing regulations. Interest can be paid to you quarterly, semi-annually or annually. And with amounts over $3,000, we'll even pay you monthly.

Interest can be credited to your F&M checking or savings account. Or you can have the interest check sent to you by mail. Of course this certificate—like all F&M savings plans—is insured up to $15,000 by the F.D.I.C.

By the way, you really ought to have a regular savings account along with your 5% certificates. The reason is simple. If you run into a jam and need funds fast, the easiest way to get them is with your regular savings account.

Straight Talk

Now if this sounds like a lot of plans to choose from, it's because we have a lot of plans to choose from. One of them is best for you.

Just come by any F&M office the first chance you get. Walk up to anybody and say you want to start saving money.

We'll be glad to talk with you. And discuss exactly what you need to save for. Whether it's for security. Retirement. Investment. Vacations. Education. Or maybe all of them. Then you'll decide—with our help—what plan is best for you.

But don't be afraid to ask questions. (After all, it's your money.) And expect straight answers.

'Tight Budget' to Save Taxpayer

Residents of Thoroughgood prepare to leave Council chambers after winning a round in their zoning fight.

Controversy Marshaled

The Marshalls and the marshals figured into the Thoroughgood entrance controversy Monday. And with developments since that time, it appears that the matter is far from settled.

City Councilman Larry Marshall, himself a Thoroughgood resident, asked for a report on the matter Monday from City Attorney Harry Marshall.

The City Attorney said that nothing had come to light since the controversy began two weeks before that made him change his opinion. He said that he still felt that if City Council changed the zoning at the entrance to the development from commercial to residential, the city would be leaving itself open to a court fight on the matter.

Earlier this month residents of Thoroughgood appeared before Council with supporting petitions in an attempt to stop the Thoroughgood Corp. from developing the entrance on Pleasure House Road commercially. Many said they had been led to believe the entrance would never be developed.

The following week principals of the Thoroughgood Corp., who had been at the regular Council meeting also, presented preliminary plans for its series of small Colonial structures proposed there to house specialty shops and professional offices.

The residents then planned to come again in force to Monday's Council meeting, but were told that fire marshals would enforce fire regulations and that only those seated and one row of standees would be allowed in. Several Thoroughgood residents arrived more than an hour before the meeting began, and they eventually made up most of the audience.

Upon the recommendation of City Planning Director Patrick Standing, Councilman Marshall asked for and received a favorable vote referring the matter to the April meeting of the City Planning Commission. Standing said that legally the residents could ask for the rezoning and Council could refer it to the commission.

Marshall said he had hoped to ask that no building permits be issued until after the April hearing and possibly before a hearing before City Council as late as May, but was informed this was not legal.

The next day it was disclosed the Thoroughgood Corp. had applied for a routine building permit last Friday for a 1 1/2-story Colonial design building for a bookstore and interior decorating service. The application is now under regular processing by the Inspections Division, and if all requirements are met it is expected the permit will be issued.

The developers need no use permit for this building since the land has been zoned commercial since 1955, but for professional offices a use permit will be necessary, with approval by City Council and the city planning commission. The future of the entire matter is now entirely up in the air and several City Councilmen have said privately they feel they have been caught in the middle of an unfortunate matter that is rightfully between the developer and the residents. A court case may still be the eventual outcome, but it is felt at present that the residents cannot bring a case.

Racing Favored By Readers

The answers to last week's SUN SURVEY came in great abundance, sometimes with as many as three and four to an envelope, all from different people. The results were emphatically affirmative, (Virginia Beach legislators please take note.)

The question was, "Should elected officials of Virginia Beach proceed with dispatch with efforts to bring a paramutual racetrack to Virginia Beach in order to broaden the tax revenue base?"

All of those who answered, except two, said, "Yes." Several added exclamation points to their answer and several underscored "with dispatch." One writer said, "Why stop with one? Make one for horses and one for dogs."

While the public opinion survey does not profess to represent the thinking of all residents of Virginia Beach, it does represent a cross section of those who took time to clip the survey and return it to us.

Your attention is called to this week's SUN SURVEY question also, which appears below in the box at the lower left corner of this page.

Each week a new question will appear and the results will be published the following week. The questions will be timely, and the more answers we receive the more responsible the opinion.

Crowd from Larkspur May Oppose Airport

Another large contingent of residents, this one from Larkspur, is expected to jam the City Council chambers on March 10, to protest the building of a general aviation airport nearby off Holland Road.

The Larkspur Civic League plans to lead the opposition against the airport planned by C. H. Byler of Byler Realty and Virginia Aviation Sales Ltd. Byler applied for zoning changes and a use permit to build the airstrip and airport facilities. The property would have to be zoned industrial, and the civic league fears a "smokestack" industrial area nearby.

In another part of the application Byler sought to have 185 acres zoned for apartments, townhouses, a motel and other commercial facilities. In a letter from E. E. Brickell, school superintendent, it was learned that a new school would have to be built in the area to accommodate the new residents of the apartments and townhouses.

In a hearing before the City Planning Commission, Byler's airport request was turned down on a technicality when W. W. Reasor, who owns part of the land, said he was not a party to the application. Now Byler says Reasor has agreed to sell to him and that he will ask the City Council to defer action on the matter.

He added that he had not been aware there would be so much opposition to the plan, and that he had not yet been informed concerning FAA approval of the area for an airport yet.

Neither Patrick Standing, planning director of City Manager Roger Scott, who lives in Larkspur Forest, say they object to the site, but questions concerning the air space infringement around Norfolk Regional and Oceana NAS are also still to be answered.

Two federal agencies have expressed conflicting views on another proposal to utilize the Oceana Naval Air Station as

City Manager Roger Scott broke with tradition Tuesday night in a speech before the Tidewater Association of Homebuilders (TAHB). He publicly disclosed the amount of the Virginia Beach operating budget for fiscal 1969-70 before it has been formally presented to City Council.

Scott told the homebuilders the budget "will total approximately $45 million." But sources at City Hall have been a little more specific, setting the figure at about $44.5. They say that will probably be pared down from the present form of about $44.7 million.

Although City Council as a whole has not heard the official budget figure so far, individual Councilmen have talked about the budget with Scott. The City Manager's finished budget is expected to be presented to Council in March for April approval. The budget goes into effect on July 1.

At Tuesday night's meeting, Scott did not elaborate on the budget figure, but the $44.5 million would place it about $8.6 million over last year's city operating budget. The only City Councilman in the audience, Bayside Councilman Larry Marshall, noted his surprise at hearing the budget figure released so soon, but said it didn't bother him that it was. He added that it seemed to be a realistic figure.

To arrive at the final figure, some cuts are expected in the school budget, now proposed at $23.7. The approximately $250,000 to $300,000 that may be cut is not expected to affect the salary proposals recommended by the school board. The starting salary is still expected to be $6,500. Sources at City Hall say that other cuts can be made.

No one will say for sure, but it is felt that if the proposed cuts can be made in all areas Scott can do as he had hoped... get by with a "tight budget" in his first year as City Manager with no real estate tax increase. Earlier some city officials had been expecting as much as another 50 per cent increase following closely on the heels of last year's overall 60 per cent increase.

No public meeting has been made of where the extra revenue is coming from for the extra $8.6 million in the budget, but the new real estate reassessment last year is thought to be responsible for a large part of it. Also the utility tax is expected to be hiked from 15 to 20 per cent.

Scott told the homebuilders he appreciated what they had done for the city, and that he was well aware "they had pumped more than $63 million into the local economy last year alone." He said their industry had one of the largest payrolls in the city also. But he added that new homes and new people demand new services. He told his audience they would be asked to make an even greater contribution in the future.

Scott said, "We're probably going to ask more of you, but I think you're willing to do your share."

The city is currently meeting with representatives of the homebuilding industry to discuss what can be done about the need of so many new schools because of the large homebuilding projects in Virginia Beach.

TAHB president Howard Weisburg assured Scott that the homebuilders "will participate to any extent that is fair and equitable," although he did not say what they would do specifically.

There is currently talk that the property owners will be asked eventually to donate school sites when building large developments, as is now being done in other fastgrowth areas of Virginia.

Scott said it was his job to

Evans Appeals Ruling

Virginia Beach Commonwealth's Attorney Andre Evans Tuesday filed notice of appeal and assignment of error in the case of Richard Holland, accused by Evans of violating state conflict of interest statutes.

The case began more than a year ago when Evans sought to recover more than $200,000 from Holland, then head of the now defunct Police and Trial Board, money reportedly paid his firm for emergency police equipment and other safety devices since 1963.

Holland's attorneys countered by saying that Evans as Commonwealth's Attorney did not have the right to file the suit in the first place, and that it was up to the State Comptroller. The Circuit Court of Virginia Beach agreed and the case was dismissed recently.

But the matter, along with a number of other cases in Norfolk and Virginia Beach of possible conflict of interest actions, touched off a full-scale investigation of the 100-year-old conflict law. A blue-ribbon commission came up with a modification of the law, but never made its contents public. It was thought that it would be discussed in the special session of the legislature which opened yesterday, but last week it was disclosed that only constitutional revisions would be discussed and that the new conflict law would have to wait until the regular 1970 session.

This prompted Evans' action Tuesday. He said he gave notice he intends to appeal and will show how the decision of the Virginia Beach court was incorrect.

"Of course I think the entire matter should be clarified," said Evans.

ified," said Evans. "I pointed that out to the commission when I was there in September."

Because the matter will not come up in the special session, Evans said, "This gives me further reason to believe I should appeal the Holland case in order that the highest court in the state should clarify the question as to who has the authority to begin the action."

Evans said the Virginia Attorney General said he (Evans) did, but the Virginia Beach Court said it was up to the State Comptroller, who has made no move to bring suit against Holland or anyone else. "It had been expected that the matter would either be dropped following the court opinion or that all conflict of interest matters would be held in abeyance until after the Virginia General Assembly took some sort of eventual action."

The new action by Evans added another chapter to the long, involved case which seems destined now to continue in the courts for some time to come.

keep the levels high and the taxes low. He called Virginia Beach a "baby among cities," but said that the fantastic growth in the past ten years has presented a number of problems.

But he added, "We at city hall are taking a new approach to this. We are not calling them problems. We are calling them challenges." He said, "We are trying to develop guidelines and programs so that we know where we're going, how we'll get there, and how we'll pay for the trip."

He told the homebuilders that the city is updating its regulatory ordinances, "developing a five-year capital improvements budget, improving Rudee Inlet, and upgrading education through one of the largest 'school building programs in the history of the state.'"

Scott added that the worst failure in recent history was in not broadening and strengthening the tax base by attracting industry. He said this is now being done.

Before Scott spoke, the growth of the homebuilding industry in Virginia Beach was graphically pointed out, as Weisburg presented certificates to real estate salesmen of the Terry Corp. and Larasan Realty Corp. who had sold more than $1 million of real estate during 1968.

Maragaret Dressler, Bob Blumming, Jack Flowers, Bill Blumming and Louise Wilkins of the Terry Corp. all sold more than $1 million in 1968. Frank Melchoire, Earnest Payne and Jessie Pugh of Larasan all sold more than $2 million in real estate during 1968. The eight persons presented the awards sold more than a total of $13 million.

City Manager Scott as he addressed the TAHB.

Candidates Attend Hearing

Just two days before the opening of the special session of the Virginia General Assembly in Richmond, Virginia Beach's representatives held another public hearing on proposed constitutional revisions.

The first hearing, about a month ago, was held only a few days after the contents of the constitutional commission's document had been made known. At that time, although several persons spoke, it was requested that another hearing be held closer to the time of the session that would draw the new state constitution.

Delegates Kenneth Whitehurst Jr. and B. R. Middleton, as well as State Sen. Edward T. Caton III attended both meetings to hear the views of anyone who wished to speak.

One of the candidates for the House of Delegates, Richard Guy led off. He suggested that a revision should be added to the constitution that would allow the voters of the city to change a city charter upon referendum instead of all charter changes having to wait until they can be enacted by the General Assembly. In this way, Guy said, Virginia Beach could possibly approve a charter change in the future which would call for staggered Council terms instead of electing the entire 11-man Council at one time, as is to be done in 1970.

Rae Adams, another candidate for the democratic nomination to the House of Delegates, recommended fast growth legislation that would call for a census every five years instead of ten, so that state funds could be distributed on a more meaningful basis. He contended that Virginia Beach had lost a considerable amount of money in state funds because distribution of ABC funds, among others, was based on the 1960 census figures, when Virginia Beach's population has increased by about 100,000 since that time.

Middleton, also a candidate for re-election this year, asked for but received little opinion of those assembled concerning legislation that would guarantee a city the size of Virginia Beach its own delegates and senator, instead of possibly being lumped into a district in the next reapportionment. Caton is already in a district with two other senators.

The fourth democratic candidate, Bruce Murphy, did not attend.

Owen Pickett recommended that public utilities operating solely in a political subdivision should be under the control (See 'Hearing,' p. 2)

Council Reaffirms Stand

Virginia Beach City Council officially adopted a resolution Monday reaffirming an earlier stand against development of a state park in the False Cape area southward on the oceanfront below the Back Bay National Wildlife Refuge to the North Carolina line.

Council last year voiced its opposition to plans for the park, even when it thought the park was only planned for a much smaller area. However, since that time, the State has moved ahead rapidly to acquire property in the area and with plans for the development of the park. Future development now depends upon appropriations by the 1970 Virginia General Assembly.

First of a Series

Public Schools Are a Full-Time Headache

By Carolyn McAllen

As everyone is well aware, Virginia Beach is a rapidly growing city.

But its rapid growth is also responsible for a number of municipal headaches — one of the largest of which is the school system. A larger population means more children. And more children mean more schools. More schools mean more teachers and more school buses. And so it goes on with one thing leading to another.

The added expenses must be paid for, and they are not cheap. The responsibility falls back on the taxpayer. It is highly likely that this year's record school budget will necessitate another property tax increase, the second in two years. Another bond issue for school construction will be needed in the near future, following the nearly $14 1/2 million bond issue in January 1967.

The people of Virginia Beach have a choice: quality education for their children or educational stagnation in crowded ill-equipped schools on split shifts.

The School Administration's proposed budget for 1969-70 is $23,795,378 as compared to $18,750,255 through June 30 of this year. While overall budget increases approach 27%, if monies made necessary by the growth of the city (2,000 to 2,500 more students expected in September, plus 200 more teachers), the overall increase would be about nine per cent. The cost of living index now rises about five per cent per year.

Most taxpayers do not realize the extent to which our public schools are utilized. That is the purpose of this and several other articles, including a look into the future of the school system.

As would be expected, public schools are used more in the daytime than at any other seven days a week and 12 months of the year that is. Schools are open, generally, from 8 a.m. for elementary schools to 4 p.m. for secondary schools. But the schools' activities do not end with the last bus load of students.

Art enrichment classes are held after school hours at eight elementary schools on a rotating basis. High school students are busy with extra-curricular activities ranging from athletics to clubs, school newspapers' annuals and play rehearsals.

The Parks and Recreation Department, whose director, Harold Whitehurst is also director of health and physical education for the schools, operates a varied program of supervised after school activities at 21 schools. The total was 22 until Kings Grant Elementary School burned down before Christmas. And 46 tennis courts are located on school property.

Churches hold services (they pay a rental fee) at a number of schools on Sunday. The number varies as new congregations are formed and others move into their own sanctuaries.

Almost all the schools are operating near capacity or beyond. School Supt. E. E. Brickell commented recently that Kings Grant Elementary would have to be rebuilt by September because there is no other place to put the student body. They are presently attending Windsor Oaks Elementary which will be needed by children in that area next fall. The Windsor Oaks students are currently scattered in three schools which also will not have room for them next fall.

Three new junior high schools, Plaza, Bayside and Kempville, will open in September to help ease the load on the high schools. Virginia Beach now has seven high schools. There will be one less next fall when Union Kempville becomes the center for effective learning. Of the seven, five have been built since 1960 and five have had additions. All have portable classrooms too. Surprisingly enough, Princess Anne High School, which was built in 1954, has never had a permanent addition.

There are currently 42 public schools in operation. Twenty-four of them were not in existence in 1960 and one other was built during that year. Presently seven secondary and 13 elementary schools have a higher enrollment than the capacity set by the state for the schools. Of those operating below capacity, several are schools which opened in September in new and rapidly growing subdivisions.

The school plants do not sit empty in the summertime. There were 13 pre-school kindergarten classes in eight elementary schools last summer with 267 children enrolled. There were 57 remedial reading classes in 10 schools with 964 students, 50 remedial math classes in 10 schools with 870 students, and 17 remedial English classes in nine schools with 273 students.

A number of students participated in the summer enrichment programs too. There were four art enrichment classes in four schools with 75 students and three science enrichment classes with 38 students in three schools. In addition there were 507 students enrolled in band classes at nine schools.

For the first time libraries at 18 schools were open four hours a day for eight weeks with a total of 3,189 students registered for the library program. The average daily participation was 421.

Secondary summer school programs were held in two high schools for eight weeks with a total of 1,829 students participating in 45 courses.

One city councilman has suggested a 12-month school system. We almost have it now. Next week: night time use of schools.

Col. W. W. Davis, Virginia Beach Police Chief, last Friday presented Mrs. Thelma Monette a memento of her husband's service with the department. Officer Robert R. Monette was killed last December during a police diving team training exercise in Lake Wesley. A similar plaque has also been presented the family of officer Roger Lee McClung who died during the same exercise. Both badge numbers have been retired.

Impact Funds Face Scrutiny

The possibility of Virginia Beach losing some $2.5 million in federal impact funds could hinge on the findings of a study of how the funds are being put to use.

The federal Office of Education has engaged the Battelle Memorial Institute of Columbus, Ohio to investigate how local school districts are benefiting from the payment of federal impact funds. Such funds are paid to local governments, whose areas contain a large number of children of parents employed by the federal government, to offset loss of revenue through the exemption of these districts from taxes within these districts.

The study will not only center around how these districts are benefiting from such payments, but also include the extent of distribution of funds on the local level; how the funds are being used locally; and if the program might be expanded to classify those persons living in low rent housing the same as those being covered under the "federal installation" clause of the federal impact aid program.

As a result of the location of many military installations throughout Virginia, especially in the Hampton Roads region and the Washington, D.C. suburbs, more than $27 million in federal impact funds is paid into the state. This sum represents more than any amount paid to any other state excepting California. More than $11 million of the total impact funds paid into the state is channeled into school systems in Tidewater. More than $2 1/2 million was paid to Virginia Beach last year.

Downing To Speak At Dinner

First District Congressman Thomas N. Downing will be the guest speaker Friday night at the Virginia Beach Jaycees annual First Citizen banquet at the Black Angus Restaurant.

The First Citizen award will be presented to the president of the General Hospital of Virginia Beach, Hunter C. Phelan, for his long service to the city of Virginia Beach in charitable work. He was one of those who spearheaded the drive for the present new hospital on First Colonial Road.

The banquet will begin at 7:30 p. m., with a social hour to precede it, and tickets will be available at the door or from members of the Virginia Beach Jaycees.

State Park

Just what effect Council's resolution will have on the plans is not yet known, but state officials have said they are surprised at the opposition by the City Council.

City Manager Roger Scott told Council that if the state is so concerned about establishing a seashore park, "they should have helped the city on the purchase of the Sandbridge property." The city purchased the Little Island Park property for $544,000 and applied for state and federal funds to help defray the costs, but was turned down. All members of City Council agreed with Scott's remarks.

Council is opposed to the park generally because of the loss of tax revenue by developing the property as a park instead of normal commercial and residential development.

In other action Monday, Council appropriated $29,188 for the purchase of bleachers to be used at Virginia Beach Junior High School stadium for outdoor civic center entertainment, the Music Festival and other activities, and which can be moved where needed for sporting events.

Assistant City Manager for Finance Giles Dodd, said the appropriation would come from the General Fund.

Council also finally approved the rezoning of the last areas of 21st and 22nd Streets west of Cypress Ave. Several parcels were changed so that service stations could be built near the end of the Virginia Beach - Norfolk Expressway. The rest of the two streets were zoned for commercial and hotel and motel developments some time ago.

A public hearing was set for April before the City planning Commission on the establishment of historic-cultural districts in the Princess Anne area.

An ordinance was also approved that would prohibit the unlawful discharge of firearms in certain areas. The ordinance was drawn to prevent this on the Western Branch of the Lynnhaven River.

In the informal session prior to the regular Council meeting City Sgt. John Marr complained to Council that his jail parking area had been taken away; that he had been made to move a fence for a sidewalk, but that the sidewalk had not been built; that a mudhole had been made of the jail area; and then a gas pump had been located 12 feet from the jail.

Marr was also upset because his name and title had not been placed on a new map showing city officers as had been done for others. He added that a state inspector had also complained

Jaycees' Sweet Project Gels

If you're in the mood for apple jelly the Virginia Beach Jaycees can provide you with some. They've got 1800 jars of it.

It's for a very worthy cause which Jaycees throughout the state are supporting—mentally retarded children. The jelly sells for $1 a jar, and all proceeds will go toward buying a 45-acre campsite for the Virginia Association of Retarded Children to establish a summer camp.

The jelly will be sold in shopping centers on Saturday, March 1. Then Jaycees will make a door to door drive on March 2.

"We feel this is a beginning," said Ron Neely, chairman. He added that several youth groups have offered their help, but volunteers are still being sought. To volunteer or for additional information, contact Neely at 340-7409.

about the gas pump so close to the jail and about the no reserved parking for jail personnel.

—It was pointed out to Marr that the gas pump was covered and that the feeling was that no hazard existed. Bad weather was given as the reason for the no sidewalk being built and for the mud while finished landscaping was being planned. He was also told that with all the new parking areas capacity had been greatly increased and that a reserved spot for him and possibly for some of his personnel as close as possible could be handled easily.

No answer was given concerning the omission of Marr's name and title from the map.

Mayor Frank A. Dusch read Council a letter he had received from Edward D. Lupton who raised Police Sgt. Kenneth A. Belangia for his actions following an automobile accident which killed Lupton's mother Mrs. Grace Lupton on Centerville Turnpike on Feb. 7.

The letter read, "His genuine concern and understanding helped immeasurably to ease the burden which was ours."

Mickey Hayes, president of the Jaycees, looks at one of the jars of Jelly the Jaycees are selling as a fund raising project.

Woman Charged

A Norfolk woman has been charged in connection with last Friday's attempted armed robbery of Willie Glass at the Wayside Motel during which the would be robber was shot to death.

Virginia Beach police say they have charged Frances E. Wheeler, 29, of Gallie Ave., Norfolk, with aiding and conspiring with Pvt. Ronnie Lee Mercer in commission of the attempted armed robbery.

Mercer, 21, a native of Norfolk and a Vietnam veteran stationed at Ft. Bragg, N.C., killed as he reportedly attempted to rob Glass at gunpoint as the 34 year old Richmond sales engineer entered his auto.

According to police, Mercer, disguised with a stocking pulled over his head, ran towards Glass with a pistol calling for Glass to stop. Glass pulled a pistol from his coat pocket and fired four shots which hit Mercer in the chin, side and back. Mercer then yelled for someone to "call the police", but receiving no response ran to his motel room and telephoned police.

Police officials said Glass, who checked into the motel Thursday evening, was carrying about $1,000 in cash at the time of the incident. The money reportedly represented company funds as well as Glass's personal funds.

Authorities said that although Glass was questioned by police, he was not charged in connection with the shooting and was permitted to continue on his planned journey.

The Wheeler woman, whose occupation was listed by police as an auto mechanic, was arrested Tuesday afternoon at her Norfolk home. She is scheduled to appear in Virginia Beach Municipal Court tomorrow for appointment of legal counsel.

Airport

a commercial regional airport to bring passenger and freight service to Virginia Beach.

Rep. Thomas N. Downing has indicated the proposal has drawn the support of the Federal Aviation Administration but that military officials are opposed to civilian use of the Oceana facility.

Navy officials have shown their reluctance to the proposal based on the large amount of military air traffic handled by the Oceana base every day.

Downing's report of the conflicting viewpoints was contained in a response to a request by State Sen. Edward T. (Ned) Caton, III, to sound out the proposal. Downing has only acted as an intermediary for Caton in the matter.

While Caton was reluctant to discuss any future concrete step he may take in obtaining a commercial airport within the city, he has indicated to the VIRGINIA BEACH SUN he fully intends to continue "spearheading" the drive for the city to obtain its own airport.

Caton also faces another 28 items on its zoning docket on March 10, which will include the future land study plan in the Rudee Inlet - Croatan area, several gas stations near the end of the Virginia Beach - Norfolk Expressway, an application by Green Run Corp. for 247 townhouses at Holland Road and Lynnhaven Road, and applications for a nursing home and a children's home.

Several other controversial items appear to insure a long meeting.

LeClerc Acquitted

John N. Parker, Virginia Beach lawyer who went to Vietnam to defend a close friend charged with negligence dereliction of duty, has helped to win an acquittal for the Army officer, Maj. Dale LeClerc.

LeClerc requested Parker as defense counsel at his court-martial. The charges against LeClerc developed from a helicopter crash that took place at An Khe on Sept. 27, 1968, killing three of its 28 passengers. LeClerc was commander of the aircraft.

Parker flew to Vietnam on Feb. 6 to defend LeClerc in the court-martial, which was held in Phuoc Vinh. Army lawyer, Capt. Elmer Cates of California, Mo. also represented LeClerc.

Police Modernization Goes On

Col. W. W. Davis continues to move forward with the implementation of revisions of the Virginia Beach Police Department which he outlined when he assumed the office of Chief of Police on Jan. 1.

The latest changes involve personnel and, according to Col. Davis, "follow the trend of more progressive police departments throughout the nation today".

BBB Has Annual Meeting

The Tidewater Better Business Bureau held their annual meeting Monday, with the first Board of Directors meeting immediately following.

Elected to the Board to represent Virginia Beach were Edward R. Amburn of the Virginia National Bank and Joseph B. Wood of Price's, Inc. They were elected for a three-year term.

Other officers elected were: Lee E. Chambers of Aldridge and Chambers, president; H.T. Denyes of the Bank of Virginia, first vice president; William H. ### Fire Prevention Classes Planned

The Adult Education Department of the Virginia Beach Schools in cooperation with the Virginia State Department of Education will sponsor a series of fire training classes for the city beginning on March 3 and continuing through March. The classes will be held for a total of 30 hours.

The class will cover such subjects as rescue, ladders, forcible entry, salvage, gas masks, small tools and protective equipment, pumps, motor vehicles and electrical fires, effective fire streams and foam, and hose evolutions. Chief E. B. Bayne is chairman of the committee for the fire training program and Fred Quist is secretary.

BADGES & BANTER

By Les Lehigh

A number of Virginia Beach police officers will enter the next class in the Tidewater Police Academy at Old Dominion College in Norfolk. Those who will begin the eight week course next Monday at officers Edward V. Spellman, Johnnie F. Helton, Terry L. Crigger, David E. Twigg, Wayne D. Aydlette, George K. Vick, and Muri L. Taylor.

A special school in latest fire fighting techniques will get underway next Monday at the Virginia Beach Borough fire station. The course will be conducted by state approved instructors and is being offered to men of all fire departments in the resort city. At last reports 117 men had signed up for the course.

The list of new men who have recently joined the Virginia Beach police department includes Muri Lee Taylor, who has been assigned to the 3rd Police Precinct. Taylor had served previously with the Beach Shore Patrol Detachment working out of the S.P. station at the precinct and has just been released from the Navy following a tour of Vietnam duty.

Three more men will begin a course of training with the Virginia Beach police K-9 Corps next week. They are S. D. Stone, 1st Precinct; S. F. Bennett, 2nd Precinct; and J. H. Custer, 3rd Precinct.

CPO David J. Grieg is being reassigned to a new duty station at Honolulu. Chief Grieg has worked with the Beach Shore Patrol Detachment for the past two years and was assigned to the S.P. Headquarters located in the 2nd Police Precinct.

Elks Offer

Scholarships

The Elks are seeking applicants for their $1,500 and $2,500 scholarships which are awarded annually.

The scholarships are originally granted for one year but may be renewed as much as four years. Although the scholarships are primarily for high school seniors, college students may also apply.

The deadline for applying is Feb. 28. All school guidance counselors have details on the scholarships. Those students interested may also contact Brig. Gen. (ret) D. C. Claymans, scholarship chairman.

College Ground-Breaking Set

Princess Anne Business College will hold a ground-breaking ceremony on Feb. 28 for its new $180,000 school building.

The new building, which is scheduled for completion in time for summer classes, will be located at 2924 N. Lynnhaven Rd. directly behind the Pine Tree Inn.

Mrs. Ruth P. Saunders, college president, will be assisted in the ground-breaking ceremony by Robert B. Cromwell, vice mayor of Virginia Beach. Others in attendance will be: Mrs. Anne Murtha, director of Princess Anne Business College; James Baylor, contractor for the new building; and representatives of First and Merchants Bank.

Princess Anne Business College is a division of Norfolk College. In May 1966 Princess Anne Business College was officially incorporated. Within a short period of time it became apparent that the first rented building would not begin to accommodate the growing student body.

The property on Lynnhaven Road was purchased and plans prepared for a school twice as large as the present one, at an estimated cost of over $180,000. Baylor has scheduled June 28 as opening date for the new building.

Listen. If you are not saving money, maybe we should have a talk.

If you want to see your money grow every 30 days, you should know about F&M's 5-year investment certificate. It's guaranteed to pay 5% annual interest compounded monthly for five years. Regardless.

If you get in a bind over taxes every year, why not save for them in an F&M special purpose Tax Club Account.

It takes just 10 bucks to open an interest-earning F&M savings account. Keep adding that much every week, and in a year, you'll have over $540.

If you're adding to your family, you know that babies cost money. You'd better start adding regularly to an F&M Savings Account.

If you can't seem to save regularly, try the F&M Save-O-Matic plan. It does your saving for you automatically.

If you're planning to retire in about 10 years, we have a 5% plan that lets you put off paying taxes on the interest until you're in a lower tax bracket, if you use the cash method of accounting. It's called the F&M 10 year Deferred Income Certificate.

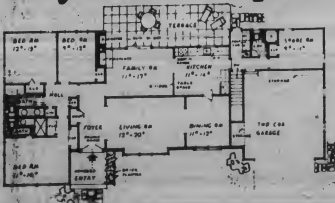

If you're worried that a 5-year certificate will tie up your money too long, ask about F&M's Flexible Maturity Savings Certificate. It can mature as soon as 90 days. And any time after that up to 5 years.

The people at F&M will tell it like it is.

Impasse State Park

We agree with City Manager Roger Scott that if the state is so interested in the welfare of the beachfront in Virginia Beach that it should have participated in the purchase of the property the city bought at Sandbridge as had been indicated.

But we cannot totally agree with the resolution passed by City Council Monday against the building of a state park in the False Cape area south of the Back Bay Wildlife Refuge to the North Carolina Line. It almost sounds like a vendetta.

One of the major objections voiced earlier was that citizens of this area would not have access to the beach as at Seashore State Park. The state has assured everyone that Virginia Beach area residents will indeed have access and will be welcome.

This objection overcome, the major one is one of scope, or so it would seem. We really do have to see so much valuable land come off the tax rolls when commercial and residential development would certainly bring more than a state park. But at the same time we hate to see so much land gobbled up and taken away from the millions of tourists who will come to Virginia Beach in the years to come looking for their place in the sun, as has already happened in too many developed areas.

We object to the taking of so much land, but cannot in good faith disagree with the park concept. This matter could certainly grow into a big bugaboo, especially since the state is apparently going ahead at full speed regardless of the city's objections. There must be a meeting of the minds on this matter soon before there is a wide open split that will cause ill feeling for years to come.

Now is the time for state and city officials to sit down and discuss the matter instead of popping off resolutions or communicating through news media.

The Future of Impact Funds

Actually we welcome the Congressional investigation into the entire matter of impact funds for localities that serve the educational needs of so many federally-connected students.

Unless there is some gross misinformation gleaned from the persons directly involved, the federal aid to places like Virginia Beach will be found not only advisable but also downright necessary if high-educational standards are to be met.

Thus the much maligned funds could at last prove their worth, especially in places where there are so many students of non-taxpaying families to educate. Virginia Beach welcomes its military with open arms, and so does its economy, but the military children can be a drain on the tax funds. Surely Uncle Sam's representatives in Washington can see this.

It's a Very Special Session

And so the long-awaited special General Assembly session that will consider the first major revisions to the Virginia Constitution in 41 years is in session. Hopefully in 30 or so days a document worthy of a growing and progressive state will be ready.

Generally it is conceded to be a good piece of work as it is, which speaks highly for the commission which drew it. But it must be remembered that as it stands now it is merely a commission consensus work, and 140 members of the legislature, representing all political factions and all types of people from all types of societies must ferret out the best it contains and enlarge upon it.

Already enough has been said about annual sessions, which must come from this special session if the state is to continue to progress. And the debt limit must be examined closely to fit the needs of the state in the next half century or so. But it is also time for enactment of a document which will aid the fast-growing areas like Virginia Beach to grow and prosper.

Much is being said about combining political subdivisions and about metropolitan governments. Perhaps this has merit, but the new Constitution must make it clear that this is to be done as a benefit, not as a punishment, such as the outdated annexation laws which almost crippled Princess Anne County before merger.

It is also up to us, the home-folks that our representatives represent, to let them know our feelings on any and all matters under consideration. We can all best be served by this new constitution only if all of us have a hand in its development.

For Racetracks

Editor, VIRGINIA BEACH SUN:

Your SUN SURVEY question concerning a paramutal race-track in Virginia Beach is surely an interesting one. You have my YES answer, but I have few illusions in the matter. It is doubtful if our city Council rose up unanimously, joined by our elected Constitutional officers and representatives to the Virginia General Assembly and a host of private citizens that a race track in Virginia, much less in Virginia Beach, would be near. Look how long it took to get the token liquor-by-the-drink we finally got recently.

The problem is going to come from the business who will fight gambling on a moral basis, just as they did liquor for the same reason. Although they possibly are the same ones who will scream at the prospect of higher taxes, they cannot understand the need for a sure-fire way to bring in money—a racetrack.

And don't forget how much money the Maryland and West Virginia folks are going to pour into lobbying against racetracks in Virginia Beach. That could have a bad effect on our legislature.

But racing is a fine sport—the sport of kings, in fact—and we should have our own track in the resort city of Virginia Beach. Let us hope I'll be proven wrong, and the track opens as soon after the next session of the legislature as possible, but don't hold your breath.

Turn-On

Editor, VIRGINIA BEACH SUN:

I had always assumed that most adults are old enough and mature enough to decide for themselves whether or not a television show is offensive. Apparently I was wrong, since local censors decided for the Tidewater viewers that "Turn-On" was unsuitable for our tv screens.

Although it was shown everywhere else in the United States, our local audiences had no choice in the matter. Our minds were made up for us.

Don't get me wrong. I am just as much against unsuitable programs and anybody, but I think the television network should abide by the rulings of its own censors in the home office, but leave it to the local people.

If they want to get so particular about local audiences, why don't they censor some of the filthy movies that are shown in the theatres around here. I'm afraid to let my teenagers go anymore.

I think some sort of national censorship should be set up for television, movies and even magazines. But I stress the "national" level not just a few local people who take things into their own hands.

Mrs. Hattie Ambrose

Special Report

The Next Thirty Days

The special session of the Virginia General Assembly that will draw a new constitution for the state of Virginia is in session. It began yesterday and is expected to weather some heavy storms for about 30 days before the legislators head for home.

The special commission that drew the new document has been discharged. Now it is up to the 140 members of the two houses of the legislature to finish the job and to provide a workable constitution for the latter part of the 20th century.

The debt limit, annual sessions and metropolitan government provisions are expected to get the most word play during the next few weeks. It is expected that annual sessions, not recommended by the commission, will be enacted. This could prove to be a test of urban strength against rural strength. The urban areas generally favor annual sessions.

The State Central Committee of the Democratic Party recommendations passed last weekend at the insistence of party liberals are not expected to be included in the new constitution. Registration by party and the vote in state elections for 18-year olds, passed by the committee, over the objections of many, will undoubtedly not make it into constitutional law.

But who can blame the liberals for laying down a smokescreen like this one concerning party loyalty and registering to vote by party to gain sympathy. Although Virginia Beach representatives Sidney Kellam and Owen Pickett, as well as other members of the First District committee opposed it, the 2nd, 8th and 10th District rabble rousers pushed it through.

But just how anyone could ever really know how anyone votes when the curtain on the booth is closed is just not clear. Surely many would take this matter seriously, but even party registration cannot control the conscience.

It is also interesting to note that in important matters, like a vote of confidence for committee chairman, Fourth District Representative Watkins Abbott, the liberals did not win out in their attempts to unseat or cast aspersions upon him. He received his vote of confidence.

The liberals only won where it will make little eventual difference. In the matters of consequence the serious Democrats won out and worked together in harmony.

In this election year, where there are three head-to-head candidates for the Democratic gubernatorial nomination, the constitutional revisions will no doubt be more difficult to come by. Obviously there is going to be politicking on the issues and the lines are bound to be drawn rather sharply.

It is now quite obvious that a clash between Lt. Gov. Pollard and William Battle cannot be avoided, and that there can be little or no accommodation. Political observers within the Democratic party only hope that the clash will be over issues, not personalities. If the split becomes too deep the only ones who can possibly gain will be the Republicans of Virginia.

The next 30 days of the special session should bring about a good indication of how people and issues will be lined up in the coming hot campaign ahead before July and the primary.

Dr. F. Marshall Hahn wisely elected to get out of the race before he got in. Maybe he never really meant to get in at all. But whatever his off-again, on-again candidacy was all about, he certainly did accomplish the one thing that can never hurt any politician or potential politician. He catapulted his name and attitude to the forefront of Virginia politics. Could be, and most likely is, that he is now just going to continue to serve competently as president of Virginia Polytechnic Institute until 1973. Then he'll probably make his move for the statehouse.

Who can say it won't work? After all it worked for John F. Kennedy when he made a bid for the vice presidential nomination in 1956. That shot him to the top of the list for 1960.

It is actually unfortunate that a special session had to come in the middle of such an important campaign. But the matter it has been called to settle is a serious one that certainly must be about all politics. The next 30 days are of extreme importance to Virginia. The eyes of all its people are on the State Capitol in Richmond.

SUN SPOTS

By H. Joseph Lowenthal, Jr.

"It doesn't make any difference to me," she said. "When you die I'll have your gold teeth taken out. Maybe the gold market will be better then and I can make some money on you."

"Now, that's very funny," he said. "Can I help it if I broke off part of a tooth and have to have a gold crown put in? It was an accident."

"But this is the second accident in two years under exactly the same circumstances," she pointed out. "Both times you were eating candy mints."

The Costly Candy Mints

"Us?" he exclaimed. "If you're going to be part of that 'us,' would you mind letting him grind your jaw tooth to a pulp or pound the new tooth in with a mallet?"

"I pass," she said. "But you still haven't answered my question. How much will it cost?"

"Exactly 20 bucks more than the last one did," he said. "The dentist gave me some song and dance about how much gold had gone up and the cost of laboratories and all that. Besides, he kept staring into my mouth and saying, 'Hmmm...'"

"What's that mean?" she said.

"That's what I asked him. He said that's Latin for 'It's gonna be a big bill.'"

"That figures," she said. "Why can't you be like everybody else anyway?"

"What do you mean?" he asked.

"When most people break a tooth, they don't make a big production out of it," she said. "They would just have the rest of the tooth pulled and gum their food."

"I don't like to gum my food," he said. "Besides, I like to make a production out of things."

"Well, I guess we can just forget about that new dress I wanted and about the shoes the children need," she said in that martyred tone he had come to fear. "After all a gold tooth comes first."

"Now, listen," he said. "I've heard this bit before, so cut it out. You know the dress and the shoes will get bought. They always do, even though I have to pull my hair out trying to figure out how to pay for them. Anyway, stop trying to make me feel bad for buying a gold tooth."

"Well, you really didn't need it. No one could see the hole anyway, if you'd had the tooth pulled."

"For heaven's sake," he said, "you'd think I just bought some terrible extravagant present for myself. I simply bought a tooth so I can chew."

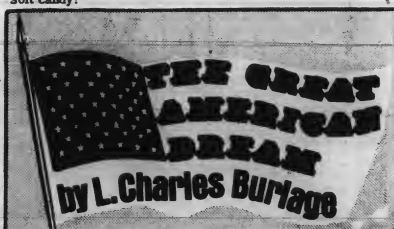

"Couldn't you get one made of plastic?" she asked.

"No," he answered quietly. "But it's not a bad suggestion. Why don't you suggest it to our friendly dentist next week when you go to him to fill all those cavities in your teeth which you wouldn't have if you watched more TV commercials about toothpastes and such."

"I think I will tell him," she said, ignoring the rest of the remark.

"Besides, I told him not to expect to get paid anytime soon," he said. "And it's all his fault. He told me a survey proved that dentists were the last ones to get paid on a family budget. I wouldn't want to upset the survey."

"All right," she said. "But in the future will you please eat soft candy?"

We have traced America from its uncertain beginnings in 1492 to its awesome presence in 1969.

It started as a refuge -- best described by those immortal words of Emma Lazarus, inscribed on the base of the Statue of Liberty:

"Give me your tired, your poor,
Your huddled masses yearning to breathe free,
The wretched refuse of your teeming shore,
Send these, the homeless, tempest-tost to me,
I lift my lamp beside the golden door."

Attracted by the prospect of wealth and freedom, every culture on earth was established in America.

This crucible has produced the following offspring: George Washington and George Wallace; Al Smith and Al Capone; Gen. Douglas MacArthur and Gen. Benedict Arnold; John Kennedy and John Dillinger; Martin Luther King and Stokely Carmichael; America has all these characteristics and has produced all these people; and yet it is to survive it must strive for much more.

Since America is an experiment in freedom, its survival depends upon the character, courage, hardihood, energy, faith and idealism of its people. Our social structure is delicate and yet durable. Our system of checks and balances provides protection for black, white, red and yellow, Jew and Gentile, rich and poor. Our power is great because it is possessed by so many.

Our huge and once-empty land has been filled, filled with every device for human comfort devised by the mind of man. We have passed the time for quantity and henceforth our concern must be for quality.

Thus far, in important ways, we have not as a practical matter produced freedom, equality and liberty for all of our citizens. As a nation, we must stop stockpiling raw materials and start producing the finished product of equality, liberty and freedom . . . all in a true, practical, meaningful, economic and sociological sense.

It can only be done through faith in our system. We must realize that in true freedom there is inherent inequality. We must not expect unattainable goals for America. We must not expect America to solve overnight the unsolved problems of the ages.

We must remember that America has done more to eliminate poverty; to create understanding between the races; to give the common man dignity; to provide material comforts and personal freedom; to give the world a sense of integrity and fair play than has any other nation in the history of the world.

We must remember that America's great contribution to mankind is that unique state of mind known as the "American Dream" -- an abiding belief that in America a man given the energy, ambition and willingness to work, can attain any stature of which he is capable and be so recognized by others. We must never stop dreaming, for when we do, we shall retreat to the old class-conscious societies of the past. We must always remember that if communism comes to America it will be disguised as a sincere regard for the injustices of our system; as an attempt to discredit our heroes and our way of life. Equally, racism if it ever comes, will be disguised as super-patriotism; therefore, we should strive for the middle of the road and avoid the extremes, for if our present system is destroyed, so man knows when the likes of it will come along again -- if ever.

Mrs. Robert M. McCall, president of the Cavalier Junior Woman's Club, and Mrs. W.M. Newbern, president of Kempsville Woman's Club, view one of the paintings inside the Virginia Museum Artmobile, whose visit to Pembroke Mall is sponsored by the two clubs. The Artmobile will be open to the public until 4 p.m. Friday.

Va. Museum Artmobile Visits

The Virginia Museum Artmobile, containing more than 40 exhibits selected from the world-famous Abbey Aldrich Rockefeller Folk Art Museum in Williamsburg, Va., will be in Virginia Beach through the Feb. 28, under the co-sponsorship of the Kempsville Woman's Club and the Cavalier Junior Woman's Club.

The "gallery-on-wheels" is stationed at North Pembroke Mall and open to the public from 10 a.m. until 5 p.m., 7 p.m. until 9 p.m. Admission is free. Tours have been arranged for 859 Virginia Beach School children.

Mrs. Mary Williams and Mrs. E. G. Middleton, Jr. of Kempsville Woman's Club, and Mrs.

Newton Dance of Cavalier Junior Woman's Club, co-chairmen, mailed invitations to city officials and school board members for a dedication ceremony and reception which was held at the Mall on Sunday, afternoon.

Mrs. John D. Rockefeller started her collection in 1920 when folk art was little known as collector's items. It includes more than 2,000 paintings, toys, sculpture, needlework and decoys.

Mrs. Rockefeller died in 1939 and her husband presented the collection to the city of Williamsburg. Before he died in 1955, he donated funds to the city for a permanent museum to house the collection.

In 1952, the Director of the Virginia Museum of Fine Arts proposed to the Virginia Federation of Women's Clubs that they raise $10,000 to finance the initial tour of the Artmobile. By 1954, Virginia club women had contributed $10,260.00 and the Artmobile was ready to go.

Since then, thousands have enjoyed Artmobile visits in cities and villages throughout Virginia.

Auction Includes Locomotive

An estimated $1.5 million worth of surplus military property will go on sale today at the Virginia Beach Civic Center. The material will be sold by the Department of Defense during a public auction which gets underway at 10 a.m.

A total of 287 different types of articles will be included in the sale. Articles will include various types of trucks, buses, heavy duty construction equipment, machine tools and one locomotive.

The sale will be conducted by means of a public auction with each item going to the highest bidder. None of the items will be on display at the Civic Center. The auction will be conducted by the use of slides, photographs and catalog descriptions of the items.

All of the property included in the sale is located at various military installations throughout Virginia and North Carolina.

Youth Improves

Young David Howe who was severely injured in a Feb. 4 auto - school bus accident on Holland Road which claimed the lives of three persons is reported recovering from his injuries.

Hospital officials say the 15-year-old son of the Robert Howe's of Ansol Lane has now been released from the intensive care unit, where he had remained since the accident with head injuries.

Although Howe is still receiving special medical care, he reportedly is alert, able to leave his bed and walk with assistance.

Issue Centers On City

The May 1969 issue of "Virginia Town and City", the official publication of the Virginia Municipal League, will be devoted largely to Virginia Beach, with particular emphasis on the municipal complex at Princess Anne.

The Virginia Beach stories will be written by newspaper and television reporters who cover activities around city hall.

Stories to be included will tell of the changing face of Virginia Beach, the new administration building, the centralized heating plant, and the other new buildings in the complex.

One of the articles will also be concerned with City Hall Day, planned for Sunday, June 1, 1969, during which time open house will be held in city buildings and guided tours will be conducted. City Manager Roger Scott said that he hopes to have the boardwalk trains available to transport visitors through the sprawling area.

He also said that his assistant, David Norman, will head a special committee to map out specific plans for the occasion.

Recently the city acquired two additional parcels of land in the complex in continuing efforts to secure all land considered necessary to meet the needs of the city in the years to come.

Since merger in 1963 the city has acquired 31 parcels in the area for city use and there are nine more that will be acquired. Negotiations are already underway for most. The cost of one of the recent acquisitions, on a $50,000 award to attorney H. Leslie Lam will be appealed by the city in hope of lowering the amount.

One of the points of interest during City Hall Day in the new administration building will be two paintings that won the best in show award in 1966 and 1967 during the annual Boardwalk Art Show. Nine sketches depicting the show were loaned to the city by the Virginia Beach Art Association, along with the two paintings. Scott said one of the two will probably hang in his office.

Other art work is also scheduled to be loaned to the city for display in the new building, according to a spokesman for the association. The sponsors of the art show pay $1,000 each year for the best in show, which then becomes the property of the association.

Dr. Lewis said he actually has three congregations - his regular local parish, the college students of William and Mary and the more than one million visitors who come to the church each year. He said this is in addition to his regular pastoral duties.

Because of this the church holds eight separate services on Easter and each one is attended by the maximum 600 to 700 persons in the church designed by Colonial Gov. Spotswood.

He also said that many weddings of foreign notables, the morning former Pres. Johnson was in the congregation.

The Rector said that Bruton Church is faithfully rebuilt as it was in Colonial days, which has been an expensive problem, since exact duplication of materials has often necessitated manufacture of a product that could not be obtained otherwise.

Stage Door Bunny Tale Scores

The elusive six-foot-six (but invisible to most) rabbit, "Harvey", has again proved his worth in the Stage Door Dinner Playhouse production of Mary Chase's winsome comedy that is now a classic.

The two lead performances were 18-carat, but some of the lesser roles were a bit hairy. The play concerns itself with a very old family that cannot take its rightful place in San Francisco society because of an uncle that never goes anywhere without his friendly rabbit, Harvey, the Puka. The trouble is that the venerable Elwood P. Dowd often appears saner than his contemporaries. This leads to massive complications when his family tries to commit him to a very looney rest home where the doctors are humorously caricatured as couch-warmerers themselves.

And the very fact that the mischievous rabbit is sometimes seen by others, including some members of the audience before it is over, makes it all the more difficult to dispute.

Jon Dawson directs himself in a fine underplayed, kindly Elwood. His pleasant smile, beneficent manner and deliberate singsong expression give the role of the old gentleman a quality that clicks.

As his sister who is trying to get him committed, rise in society and get her eager young daughter married off, Caroline O'Keefe is delightful. Her consistent whine and sorrowful expressions make this a memorable performance.

Other accolades must go to Jim Mills, as the cab driver who had driven many a nut to the rest home. He is only on stage for a few minutes, but his performance is typical of his ability. Jim Welch, as the old judge and family friend, is also highly amusing in his befuddlement. And Maurice Casey is pleasing as the sexiest nurse the home ever saw.

Joyce Williams overdoes the role of the daughter, but her interest in men...all men...does come across well. David Lang is funny as the bumbling psychiatrist, but has line difficulty.

It is unfortunate that both Dan Herlong as the second banana doctor and Morris Sussman are too young and not believable in their roles. Gladys Archer adds a small, dull bit as the doctor's wife and Mary Faulker adds a faltering bit as a dwager.

The change of sets in the middle of Act II is far too long. The set should have been better designed to avoid the grunting and grinding change.

And Harvey himself is good too. It is an old play, but one certainly worth seeing for folks of all ages, especially for us believers. H.J.L.

Police diver R. T. Munford last Sunday recovered this photographic equipment from a pond off Shore Drive. The two cameras have been identified as part of the loot missing earlier this month after the burglarizing of a residence in the 500 block of Atlantic Avenue.

Rector Has Unique Parish

The guest speaker for the Virginia Beach Jaycees annual Ministers' Breakfast last Friday was Dr. Cotesworth Lewis, rector of Bruton Parish Church in Williamsburg.

The breakfast is sponsored by the Virginia Beach Jaycees each year during Brotherhood Week to promote brotherhood and to improve communication between the various denominations and religions in the city.

The breakfast, attended by about 60 ministers and Jaycees was held in the Crystal Room of the Americana Hotel. The Jaycees chairman of the event was Kent A. Morgan.

Dr. Lewis told of the "Wacky World of Williamsburg." He said that if reporters in the audience wished to criticize him for the title of his speech, that he was used to criticism of reporters, following some works he said from the pulpit the morning former Pres. Johnson was in the congregation.

Washington socialites and many airline stewardesses are held in the church and that nearly every Sunday he has one or more VIP's in the congregation.

"I always try to say something special to them in my text," he said. That is how the Johnson visit found its way into the news, after Dr. Lewis' criticism of policies of the Johnson administration.

One of the peculiarities that Dr. Lewis pointed out about the church is that a full-time cleaning crew must be employed every night from 10 p.m. to 4 a.m. to make the building ready for the next day's visitors. He said the church has to be painted and refurnished far more often than most churches because of its historic place in the community of Colonial Williamsburg.

You Can't Go Wrong

If there is any keynote to the spring styles in Virginia Beach it is this -- "anything goes."

Fashions range from ensembles to mini-skirts with much in between. For instance the blouson (remember the 1950's?) is back. The shift is still in as is the princess style. Added to them is the safari look (revived from three years ago?), the Edwardian look, the little girl look and the weskit with coordinated skirt.

And the stores are full of pants suits. These range from the very sporty to daytime suits to evening and cocktail styles.

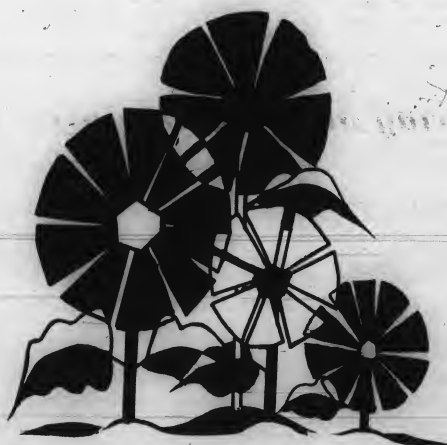

Color is important. Among the most popular are red, white and blue, along with any other color that is bright and vivid. Wild prints are in evidence as are intense solid shades.

Designers are finally realizing that children are not miniature adults and should not be expected to dress as such. Neither are they frilly dolls. Children's wear this spring reflects the results -- pretty, yet practical for the younger generation.

Take your choice. You can hardly go wrong. Remember Easter is fast approaching.

A Very Happy Unbirthday

The four-year-old will almost have a birthday Friday--or Saturday.

His seven-year-old sister happened to ask me when Bill's birthday is. I made the mistake of telling her the 29th.

After consulting her trusty Girl Scout calendar, she informed me that February only has 28 days. Ever try to explain Leap Year to a second grader? First she bemoaned the fact that her brother doesn't have a birthday. Then she decided we should celebrate Feb. 28 and March 1 both to make up for the missing day.

Bill couldn't care less. All he wants is to make sure he has cupcakes to take to kindergarten. He was rather explicit in his instructions. He wants yellow cupcakes with white icing. He also wants a yellow birthday cake with white icing plus blue candles. It was his own idea.

While the four-year-old and I were discussing cupcakes, big sister came along and suggested that I make enough for her class too. Thank goodness the six-year-old kept her mouth shut.

Next came the problem of picking a birthday present. Big sister was in favor of getting him a 1,000-piece round puzzle. She and her father have gotten on a puzzle working kick recently and they've just about run out of puzzles.

I tried to explain that Bill is not quite old enough for a puzzle that hard yet, so she then suggested a kite. I said that he was too young for a kite too. She shrugged her shoulders and replied, "Well what can he do then?"

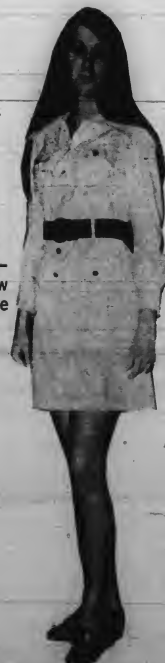

The six-year-old chimed in about that time with the suggestion of a hamster. "Kim's hamster had babies and she's going to get rid of them," I told her that the two dogs were enough trouble.

The six-year-old is also the practical one. Next she suggested getting him a hair cut. "He needs it."

It all reminds me of "Alice in Wonderland" when all the characters got together for an "unbirthday party."

HERE COMES OLGA!

Saturday night at Princess Anne Country Club everyone was celebrating George Washington's birthday.

The party was called, "George Washington slept here". If this had been the case George would have had to sleep with quite a bit of noise.

On entering the club, at the top of the steps was the bed George Washington was supposed to have slept on. On the bed were a lot of women posing for pictures. Gee, just think if George had been asleep there and all of a sudden he was awakened by the noise and saw all those women on his bed—I wonder what he would have thought.

No doubt his first thought would have been an invasion. Due to the fact that these women were quite attractive would have made it a happy invasion.

I arrived just at the time the people were around the buffet table preparing to eat. The first thing I noticed was that all the waiters were dressed in the style clothes (A la George Washington) the long continental jacket of grey, trimmed in black which hit to the middle of the thigh, black knee breeches, white ribbed hose and black loafer shoes with large buckles. Each table had a centerpiece of George Washington's picture and the little red hatched set in a circle of greens.

Standing there trying to get an idea of the people, I was very flattered when out of the crowd Col. Howard Eager (ret.) walked over to me and introduced himself. As I went to give him my name, he very quickly said, "I know your name. You are Olga and I want you to know just how much I enjoy reading your column." Thank you so much, Colonel, and I shall always remember you for these kind words. But most of all that you took the time away from your place at the buffet table to come tell me this.

There were about a 150 people attending this affair. Mrs. John Winn and Mr. Jim Van Loon were chairmen of the party. They really did an outstanding job. It was highly obvious that everyone was really enjoying themselves.

Some of those attending were: Mr. and Mrs. R. Lee Bonney, Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Shipp, Mr. and Mrs. C. Willman Brown, Mr. and Mrs. M. N. Broughton, Adm. and Mrs. James Holloway Jr. (ret.), Col. and Mrs. Howard Eager, (ret.), Lt. M. Curry, Mr. and Mrs. G. M. Whitehurst, Sr., Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Dempster, Mr. and Mrs. L. O. Branch, Mr. and Mrs. John Drew, Dr. and Mrs. J. C. Henry, Dr. and Mrs. Jim Charlton, Mr. and Mrs. R. Stroud, Dr. and Mrs. M. C. Fletcher, Dr. and Mrs. O. Cordie, Dr. and Mrs. M. D. Pullie, Mr. and Mrs. M. W. Meagher, and Mr. and Mrs. W. W. McClanan.

I walked around the buffet table trying to take down the food that was on the table. I, like so many people who attend a buffet, are not always sure of some of the food. In fact I heard one woman tell her husband that the fillet of sole was oysters. In fact I have often seen people just put a little of everything on their plate, then later get to the table, sit down to eat and find out as they start to eat that some of the food on their plate was not what they thought.

Mr. and Mrs. Bill Kellam had their first date years ago on George Washington's birthday. Bill was at that time serving his country in world war II. He met Jo on a blind date while stationed in California.

Mr. and Mrs. Bob Simpson were also celebrating their 28th wedding anniversary.

Others attending were: Mr. and Mrs. Frank Kellam, Capt. and Mrs. Monroe Kelly, Gen. and Mrs. W. G. Lee, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Neff, Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Tatum, Mr. and Mrs. V. B. Hodgson, Jr., Mr. and Mrs. J. Cromwell, James D. Hague, Jr. Mrs. Lomax Gwathmey, Mrs. Earl Van Buskirk, Mr. and Mrs. J. F. Winn, Mr. and Mrs. J. H. VanLoon, and Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Wood.

John Dierieux and his band supplied the music for the dancing. Dinner over, the band playing, dancing started, the party was well underway. It was time for my exit so I could attend the next party I had to cover.

Colonial Arms Apartment Guest House was my next stop. This party was quite different from most of my parties but believe me I think it is a great idea. It was a party for only single people.

Dr. Lyle Wilkinson was responsible for this party. He moved into the Colonial Arms apartments, and he did not know anyone. He, like almost any other single person, wanted to meet some people. He came up with the idea of having a party for all single people in the apartments so they could meet each other.

Everyone came alone and each person paid a dollar which helped to defray expenses. If any money was left over after expenses this is to go in a fund which will later be used for one big party. These parties, I believe, are to be once a month, and it will give single people a chance to meet people they perhaps would never meet otherwise.

A stereo supplied the music for dancing, but most of the crowd stood around conversing with one another. I have often thought there are a lot of people around who would like to meet other people but sometime you wonder just how do you do this without being accused of being off your base. Loneliness, I feel, is so unnecessary when there are so many people who are alone but have no way of really meeting someone properly. So, Doctor, I think the idea is terrific and I for one wish you all the success in the world.

Refreshments were served—punch, dips and a relish dish of both green and ripe olives.

Those attending were: Kitty Mullen, Marian Cooter, David S. Brooks, Marcell J. Berger, Jerry D. Davis, Laurena Smith, Mary Nelson, Elaine Griffin, Vivian Palmer, Sherry Feldman, Doug Dawnen, Johnny Sawyer, Alyce Gratton, Ronald E. Minns, Brooks Greer, Lou Witkay, Ray Zilinski, Jerry McAllister, Betty J. Barnes, L. W. Jones, G. J. Gordon, T. S. Fraim, John N. Rossion, David F. Sexton, Hazel Ware, Jay Bannon, Parker Henry, Jan Abernathy, Harry McFarland, Dennis Rooney, Diane Sanderlin, Phil Odum, Jim Townsend, Paul Strapac, Mike Herbert, Rick Turner, Chuck Henson, Woody Snell, Randy Strait, Joe Roig, Judy Waller, Sarah Partridge, Edie Dienhart, Lee Ferrell, Nicki Stegman, Jane Nelson, Joyce Rogers, Marcia Garofalo and Carolyn Clark.

No doubt I will see you next week at the Mall where Glenn Miller and his band will be playing.

Rose pruning is not difficult. Sharp tools are a pre-requisite to pruning, however. A fine toothed saw is useful for cutting dead canes. All other pruning can be done with pruning shears.

When pruning, do not leave bare stubs. Make all cuts to a cane, to the point on the crown from which the pruned member originated, or to a strong outward-facing bud.

Have you pruned your bush roses yet? This should be done in early spring just before growth starts.

Bush roses are the hybrid tea, floribunda, grandiflora, hybrid perpetual, polyantha, shrub, old fashioned, tree or standard, and miniature.

They should be pruned annually to improve their appearance, to remove dead wood, and to control the quantity and quality of flowers produced by the plants. If roses are not pruned, they soon grow into a bramble patch and the flowers are small and of poor quality. Sometimes undesired shoots come from undesired understock. These should be removed as soon as they appear, or they will soon dominate the plant.

Blame It on General Burnside's

By Yatta Jones

It is a tender, romantic love scene. He is impeccably groomed, handsome; she is chic, beautiful. They are sitting in front of a fireplace, where the only light in the room is the light given off by the flames of the fire. The strains of a haunting melody flow around them from the hidden stereo speaker system. She leans over to nuzzle him and then it happens — her false eyelash gets stuck in his false sideburn and they adhere forever, or do they adhere forever?

Blame it on U. S. Gen. Ambrose E. Burnside. At least half of it, anyway. According to history he popularized sideburns somewhere around the middle of the 19th century. Sideburns, or side whiskers as they were first known, were worn before then, but he gave them oomph! His sideburns were something to be proud of, it was hard to tell where his mustache ended and his sideburns began. The effect was so startling that most people probably didn't notice that he had an exceedingly receding hairline.

Gen. Burnside may have worn them as a diversionary tactic, but that's not the answer for their popularity today. In fact, some of the thickest heads of hair sport the best sets of sideburns. Why, then?

Don Davis of Pembroke Mall Barber Shop says, "More and more men are wearing them to keep up with the styles. They are more accepted, even by the older men." Don estimates that approximately 90 % of his customers have dropped their sideburns some. From his point of view he may be right, since a large proportion of his customers who have sideburns are employed in the business world of men's clothing. One of Don's customers, Gordon Suhre, is the manager of Clayton's in Pembroke Mall. Suhre says that all male employees at Clayton's wear sideburns.

Still, this can't be the whole picture. Let's find some females and take the old familiar "random sampling." (If it is not too worn out after all those years of the "man on the street"). What about it, ladies, do you like sideburns?

Our first interviewee, an attractive 26-year old secretary, single, says, "That depends on the man...most of the time they look repulsive...they make me look like hoochie...A man with sideburns will turn me off quicker than anything else...sideburns and long hair...I like clean-cut, clean-shaven men."

Stop, men! Don't reach for the razor yet. That was the only adverse opinion taken in this poll. It must have been the "random" part. Would you like some more "sampling"?

One beautiful young thing, single, 17 or 18 years old, has this to say about sideburns. "I like them. I think they give a man a certain masculine appeal, as do mustaches and beards. In my opinion every man should have them."

Feel better? Not really, huh, teenagers are liable to like anything. All right, how would a gorgeous blonde's opinion set with you? She is married, though. Quite happily. And to a distinguished energetic executive who has a marvelous set of sideburns.

Here is her opinion. "I like them...I think they make my husband look more handsome...I do think they look a lot better when they are trimmed...if he grows a mustache, though, no." When asked if it were her idea or her husband's to let the sideburns grow, she laughed and said, "One day I said, 'Honey, when are you going to let your sideburns grow?' And then he looked at me and said, 'They are already growing.'" Which proves that people don't begin to look alike when they are married...they begin to think alike.

More sampling. This time let's talk to a beautiful brunette whose husband is a successful, creative man in the realm of communications.

She says this about sideburns, "I really do like them...I love them...I wouldn't even mind if he grew a mustache. I think that anything men can do to enhance themselves is fine...It's been a long time since men have tried new clothes' styles and hair styles...I do like them."

Gen. Burnside in all his glory.

Another brunette this time. Vivacious, cultured, (See 'Burnsides' p. 9)

Beach Teams Survive 1st Round Fishing Tournament

Three more games are still to be played before Eastern District basketball play comes to an end. No surprises are really expected, but the way the season went, it looked like most of the top eight teams could knock off each other on a given night.

The semifinal games Friday night will find two Virginia Beach teams still in the running. Cox, winner on Tuesday night in the first elimination round over Lake Taylor, 73 to 57 will meet Booker T, which easily downed Granby Tuesday night, 75 to 29.

The second game Friday night will pit the winner of the Wednesday night elimination games against each other. That game is expected to be between Princess Anne and Maury. The Cavaliers were expected to take the Patriots Wednesday night and the Commodores were almost sure-fire winners over the Norvlel Pilots.

Cox was not particularly happy about meeting Lake Taylor in the opening round. The Falcons, downed young Norfolk team twice in regular season play, but had much trouble doing so.

The Falcons ended their regular season last Friday night with a victory over winless Indian River, 66-55. Junior Keith Sudduth set his usual hot pace, scoring 26 points. Indian River suffered its 20th consecutive loss. Cox lost three and won 15. The three losses were to Princess Anne, Maury and Booker T. Those four teams entered the Eastern District Tournament at the Norfolk Arena in the four top spots, with First Colonial a close fifth.

In the only other action Friday night Granby easily passed winless Bayside 85-53. While Bayside finished a season in knowledgeable. She has traveled to California, Puerto Rico and Europe. She is 24 years old and married. You guessed right, her husband is a naval officer. He does not have sideburns so she couldn't possibly be brain-washed. She says, very enthusiastically, "I think it makes a man look sexy... I like the short ones. Sideburns make a man's face look thin and his eyes stand out more." Maybe the sideburns' trend isn't all just for style. Of course, there are some men who have probably grown them to be different. If that is the case they may have to shave them before long to achieve this purpose.

Incidentally, women may be behind the sideburn growth in more ways than one. There are times when a simple statement, "I like sideburns," will not bring the desired results. Don Davis says that he has had wives to call and urge him to get their husbands to let their sideburns grow. And Gordon Suhre says there are women who come into Clayton's with their husbands, look at one of his employees, and say, "See, that's the way you should let your sideburns grow!"

For the men who are not sure they would like sideburns, or for those men who are asked by their bosses not to grow them (such as service men), there is always the old "buy 'em and try 'em" method. That's right, you can buy sideburns. Pembroke Mall Barber Shop, where Don Davis works, has a complete line of them. All you have to do is buy them, get them trimmed the way you like and stick them on. The most popular style right now is "bell-bottom." That is, they are broader at the bottom than at the top.

Men who decide they want to grow their own have very little trouble doing so. All they have to do is to stop shaving in the area they want the sideburns. Within two and a half to four weeks they will have their side whiskers.

And besides, it creates more hair for a woman to run her fingers through.

which the Marlins were defeated in every game, Granby suffered its worst year in seven years in basketball with seven wins and 11 defeats. Bayside also lost all of its 1968 football games.

Thus the stage is set for the moment of truth. Maury was the pre-season favorite, and the Commodores came through with only one non-conference loss to Booker T. Booker T's only loss, this one in district play,

Mayor Proclaims Week

Mayor Frank A. Dusch has proclaimed the period of March 1 through March 7 as "National Weights and Measures Week."

In his proclamation Mayor Dusch urges Virginia Beach residents to recognize the valuable contribution made by the Department of Weights and Measures in their respective jurisdictions.

National Weights and Measures Week corresponds to the week of the signing of the first Weights and Measures law by the United States Congress on March 2, 1793, reports Assistant Sealer E. L. Whitehurst of the Department of Weights and Measures.

"The department inspects all commercially used weighing and measuring devices, ranging from large capacity truck scales to the delicate prescription balances used by hospitals and pharmacies," reports Assistant Sealer Whitehurst.

In addition to testing weighing devices, Assistant Sealer Whitehurst's department checks pre-packaged foods and meats to be sure that the consumer receives accurate and correct weight each time a purchase

"The city's merchants have a high stake in accurate weights," says Assistant Sealer Whitehurst. "A merchant can lose a great deal of money if his scales or meters are 'slow' and giving away part of the product he weights. The vast majority of the merchants are honest and we have found that over half of the mistakes we discover in weighings are against the interest of the merchants—not the public. Our job is to see that everybody is protected and the public interest served in scrupulous attention to accurate weighing."

There will be three changes in the 12th annual Virginia Salt Water Fishing Tournament which opens May 1 and runs through Nov. 30.

Blue marlin with a minimum weight requirement of 250 pounds will be added to the list of eligible species. This is the first new species added to the contest since 1960 when the number of eligible species was expanded from 15 to 22.

The total number of classes in the tournament will remain at 22 because yellowfin and bluefin tuna, formerly listed separately, will now be grouped under the single classification—Tuna (large). The new grouping will permit anglers fishing Virginia waters to earn citations for bigeye as well as yellowfin and bluefin tuna.

The third change for the 1969 raises the minimum weight requirement for bluefish from 12 to 15 pounds. Almost 1100 bluefish registered in the 1968 contest weighed 15-pounds or better. And bluefish anglers accounted for 2046 of the 4504 Citations awarded for all 22 species in 1968.

All changes were recommended by the Virginia Salt Water Sport Fishing Association after a meeting with the Tournament's Director. Final approval for the recommendations was given by the Dept. of Conservation and Economic Development which operates the Tournament as one phase of the State's salt water sport fishing promotion program.

In the Tournament's eleven years of operation, over 22,000 of the coveted four-color Citation plaques have been awarded anglers registering outstanding catches. There is no Tournament entry fee and an angler may weigh his catch at any of the 100-plus official weighing stations strategically located throughout Tidewater Virginia.

Eligible species and their minimum weights for Citations are: Blue Marlin, 250 lbs.; Shark, 100 lbs.; Tuna (large), 50 lbs.; White Marlin, 50 lbs.; Black Drum, 50 lbs.; Cobia, 45 lbs.; Tarpon, 40 lbs.; Channel Bass, 40 lbs.; Wahoo, 20 lbs.; King Mackerel, 20 lbs.; Dolphin, 15 lbs.; False Albacore, 15 lbs.; Striped Bass, 12 lbs.; Bluefish, 15 lbs.; Flounder, 6 lbs.; Tautog, 5 lbs.; Sea Bass, 4 lbs.; Cray Trout, 4 lbs.; Speckled Trout, 4 lbs.; Porgy, 3 lbs.; Croaker, 3 lbs.; and Spot, 14 ozs.

Blue Marlin, White Marlin and Tarpon will have citations for release regardless of size.

Nancy Foege, Cindy Person and Debbie Bowman.

The junior class is also busy preparing for the college board examinations, which will be given at area high schools.

Pre-registration for next year has been taking place at KHS. The school counselors, headed by Mrs. Fritch, have been going to all English classes in order to register students into their correct classes.

KHS celebrated Valentine's Day in a big way, with decorated halls, lockers and heart-shaped buttons with messages written on them for the teachers. In addition, the S.C.A. sponsored a "Sweetheart" dance in the gym. Dino Deaton and the "Orange Wedge" supplied music for the dance.

There is one more regular game to play before the Airedales enter the city-wide Community League Tournament.

Players completing three or more years with the Airedales are Tasso Paphites, John Korte, Jaye Adkins and David Consolvo. Those completing two seasons are Mike Sullivan, Jon McGruder and Mark Fisher. This year additions to the team are Mark Allen, Rory Bunch, Sean Forbush, Warren Carrett, Michael McDaniel, Scott Diamond and Bill Consolvo.

P.A.H.S. Naval Cadets Tour Ships

Members of the Princess Anne High School Naval Junior Reserve Officers' Training Corps toured ships of the Cruiser-Destroyer Force, U.S. Atlantic Fleet, on Monday. The group, which numbered 120, were given guided tours of the USS Steinaker, USS R. Owens, USS Waldron, and USS Borie at the Destroyer and Submarine Piers in Norfolk.

Officers attached to each of the ships acted as guides on tours of their respective ships pointing out the functions of each vessel, their respective capabilities and the operation of the ships. Highlights of the tours included familiarizing the NJROTC Cadets with the ships' navigational systems, command of the vessels from "the bridge", armament for defense against enemy forces, or to be used in attacking an enemy. Each Cadet was also exposed to a touch of true Navy life by joining members of the ship's crew for lunch.

This marks the second year's operation of the NJROTC program at Princess Anne High School, Navy Capt. C. E. Caton is director of the program and also serves as the program's liaison officer with the navy. While the primary purpose of the program is to build good citizenship, the program will also offer two other benefits. Those who successfully complete a full three years training in the course and join the Navy upon graduation from high school will be excused from taking boot training and afforded the opportunity of going to a

Navy "Class A School". Should a graduate of the Princess Anne High program elect to attend a college offering NJROTC training and chose to enroll in the program, he will be permitted to bypass the first year of NJROTC training.

City Hires Accountant

Giles G. Dodd, assistant to the city manager—finance, has announced the hiring of a new employee in the Finance Department of Virginia Beach. The new employee, Robert M. Hayes, will begin work as an accountant in the Finance Department on March 10. His primary duties will be concerned with the internal auditing of city agencies that collect money. Starting salary for Hayes will be $9,288.

Hayes, who is now employed as an accountant with the Virginia auditor of public accounts, is a Norfolk native. He graduated from Old Dominion College in 1964.

Marine Cpl. Ronald W. Jackson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles R. Jackson of Cayuga Court, and husband of the former Miss Jinny L. McBurney of Miami City is serving with Marine Fighter Attack Squadron 314, Marine Aircraft Group 12, First Marine Aircraft Wing at Chu Lai Marine Air Base in Vietnam.

Authority Requests Study

After giving approval to two private projects in the Rudee Inlet area, the Rudee Inlet Authority voted to ask for a land and water use study of the shores of Lake Rudee and Owl Creek.

The Authority took the action Wednesday after granting approval on applications submitted by Postmaster Joseph Crosswhite and Roger L. Riggs. Authority Chairman Frank W. Kellam Sr. said there were several other applications similar to those that were approved that were waiting to see what action would be taken on Crosswhite's and Riggs'.

Crosswhite's application was to build a bulkhead on his property south of Close Street, to build a 40-foot pier from it and to dredge a canal.

Riggs' application was for a bulkhead to be built 25 feet out from his property and for a channel to be dredged along the outside.

The idea of the land and water use study was instigated by Winston Holloman, city engineer, who approved both projects.

The Veterans Administration, under certain conditions, can make a limited number of direct Government home or farm home loans to eligible veterans.

3 Seniors Share Top Honors

"They are wholesome, outstanding, well-rounded students... They're the kind you'd like your child to be." That is what Mrs. Glenn Darst, Director of Guidance at First Colonial High School has to say about the three valedictorians of the '69 Senior Class.

The three students -- June Criscoe, Chris Beebe and Paul Saunders -- are fully deserving of every word of praise Mrs. Darst has for them. They have made an "A" on every course they have taken since the eighth grade, which gives them an 8.0 average under First Colonial's grading system. They have had rough competition, too. Out of the 382 graduating seniors there are 59 honor students.

Jane Criscoe transferred to First Colonial a year ago. Prior to that she had attended schools in Portsmouth, Va. and Mississippi. While attending First Colonial she has served as captain of the Debate Team. She has been a member of the French Club, Latin Club, Art Club and History Club.

Jane has worked as a Red Cross Volunteer at General Hospital of Virginia Beach during the time she has lived in the area. She has two hobbies that she enjoys -- stamp collecting and sewing.

Chris Beebe is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Louis S. Beebe of Franklin Drive. He has two brothers, Marshall and Todd. Marshall, 13, also attends First Colonial.

Chris has held offices in the Monogram Club and the National Honor Society while at First Colonial. In addition, Chris has been captain of First Colonial's cross country team twice, he has served as a delegate to Virginia Boys' State, and he has been selected to the Tidewater Scholastic Team. Chris is presently serving as editor-in-chief of the school newspaper, The Town Crier.

When asked about his activities outside of school, Chris says his first love is surfing... "after that, anything goes."

Duke University is Chris' tentative college choice, but he has not completely decided yet. He is also considering Stanford University, the University of Virginia and the University of Colorado. Chris says he will probably major in Liberal Arts in pursuit of a writing career.

Paul is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Paul G. Saunders of Lynnhaven Drive. He is the oldest of five children, which includes three boys and two girls.

Paul is a member of the Key Club, the Interact Club, the Junior Civitan Club and First Colonial Student Forum. Paul has served on the Leger-Star Scholastic Team, the Hi-Q Team and as vice president of the National Honor Society.

Bowling, football and billiards are listed as some of Paul's hobbies. Even with his busy schedule Paul finds time to work part-time with Master-Auto Service Corp.

Although Paul has not decided which college he will attend, he is quite emphatic about his major. He knows that he will major in law.

Paul and Chris have suspected since last year that they would probably tie for top honors in the class. They have kept a close check on each other every time the grades would come out the familiar phrase, "Hey, what'd you get?" would ring out.

Jane came as a surprise to the boys. Since she transferred in last year they had no idea she was in the running too. Happily, all three students are satisfied with the solution decided upon by the school in determining which one of three 8.0 students would receive top honors.

First Colonial chooses the valedictorian solely on grades, and three 8.0 grades logically meant three valedictorians. They decided that under the present circumstance they would not select a salutatorian this year. Cowards!

Health Council Approved

The Tidewater Regional Health Planning Council, Inc., under the direction of Chairman Sidney S. Kellam, have had their plans approved for the creation of a Tidewater health planning agency.

Presented by Dr. John A. Murray of Franklin, the plans were approved by the Virginia Comprehensive Health Planning Council. The plans call for $60,363 in funds under the Federal Health Planning Act. This amount, which will be matched by the participating subdivisions, will pay for organizing the agency on a full-time basis and for its operation for two years.

The regional agency will be responsible for setting-up and carrying through a program for all health planning in 11 southeastern Virginia subdivisions.

Gov. Mills E. Godwin has approved the plan's basis agreement with the state's proposed governmental planning district boundaries, according to S. W. Rawls Jr., chairman of the state council's grant review committee. Gov. Godwin is expected to approve the entire Tidewater application.

The plan will go from the governor's office to the regional office of the Public Health Service in Charlottesville and then to Washington for final approval.
